MURDER SUSPECT PICKED HIS POCKETS

Police Think They Will Have Him in Custody Before Long

SOMERSWORTH, N. H., Aug. 16.—At a late hour last night the police had received no news of the arrest of Nicholas Capsalis, for whom Sheriff Smith of Dover and two of his deputies, Elmer Clark and Loren Casler, have been searching since Sunday.

Sheriff Smith returned last evening to Dover from Boston. He spent the day in Boston and Brockton, but had obtained no trace of the alleged murderer. Deputy Sheriff Clark, who is supposed to have been searching for Capsalis, was in the city at the time of his arrest. The fact that no trace of Capsalis' trunk was found at Biddeford yesterday led to further inquiries at the Boston & Maine station at Dover. The statement made by an assistant baggage-master there Sunday that the trunk was rechecked from there to Biddeford Sunday was declared last night to have been incorrect.

Asst. Herbert Hall of Dover, who did most of the checking Sunday, says he is quite sure that no trunk was then transferred from Somersworth to Biddeford. Without having the number of the trunk given by Capsalis at Somersworth, it was impossible to tell in which direction the trunk had been sent. As the checking sheet is sent to Boston each day, a comparison there of the sheets made out here and at Dover between Thursday and Sunday night is thought might furnish a clue. The Somersworth checking numbers, however, are not always taken down, he said, because of lack of time, and it might not have been in this instance.

The furnishing of Capsalis' photograph to the police caused some excitement in the Greek colony, and the report came to the police yesterday that some Greeks have said that if they can get hold of the man who first gave away the picture, they will treat him as the woman was treated. The picture is a very accurate likeness of Capsalis and it is thought it will aid materially in his apprehension.

With three days' start from the time the murder was committed until the sheriff's men began their hunt, it is thought here that Capsalis will not be easily caught.

Nothing has been done by the local authorities in reference to offering a reward for the Greek's arrest. The citizens are anxious that he be captured and many think a reward ought to be offered. At present, however, there is no one in authority here to call the city council together to consider the matter. Mayor Dougherty is in the Adirondacks with a patient and City Clerk Labonte is attending a secret order convention in Montreal as a delegate.

The police have not learned that Capsalis made any threats against the life of his aunt, Marietta Capsalis. The Greeks who told of the frequent quarrels between the pair over the woman's money and over her receiving attention from Nicholas Kallias, are thought to know more about the circumstances that led up to the murder than some of them have told.

The nephew's reported jealousy of Kallias' attentions to his aunt is regarded by the police as having been based on his objection to having his aunt, who was earning good wages and furnishing him considerable money, leave him to marry.

This desire to keep her with him is believed to have prompted him to endeavor to have Kallias sent back to Greece through the process of extradition to face an alleged crime. Though he, with the aid of a local lawyer, had Kallias arrested at Biddeford with that object in view, the attempt failed, because it was shown that Kallias had been in this country long enough to not be affected by the extradition laws.

LEWISTON, ME., SEARCHED.—LEWISTON, Me., Aug. 16.—All of the residences in the Greek section of the city are undergoing a thorough search in the belief that Nicholas Capsalis, who is being sought in connection with the barrel murder at Somersworth, N. H., is in hiding here.

The man is known to have several friends in this city and, it is said, has been traced here from Portland. Local Greeks who are aiding the police are said to have admitted that the man has been here but claim not to know whether he left town or not.

IN BIDDEFORD SUNDAY.—BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 16.—The police now believe that Nicholas Capsalis of Somersworth, N. H., wanted for the alleged murder of his aunt, Marietta Capsalis last Wednesday, was in the city as late as Sunday afternoon at 5, when it is thought he went east. He has visited here many times, and is well known in the Greek colony.

Sunday night, when Deputy Sheriff Casler came here from Somersworth and told Chief of Police Harmon whom he was after, immediate steps were taken to hunt for Capsalis. He has relatives living at 42 Foss street and 22 Elm street, and these houses were searched. The officers also searched 16, 17 and 21 Lacombe street, as well as other tenement houses occupied by the Greeks.

The police say that Nicholas Kallias, who kept company with the aunt of Capsalis, is at present engaged in business at Old Orchard.

If the alleged murderer's trunk was shipped here it is not here now; at least the officers were unable to locate it here.

Chief of Police Harmon says that about the middle of July Nicholas Capsalis called at his office and told him about a Greek living in this city who was wanted for murder in Greece. He claimed that this crime was committed nine years ago, and he gave a detailed and thrilling account of how the assassin laid in wait for his victim beside an old wood road, in a province of southern Europe, and shot him. Then the slayer had fled to this country and finally located in Biddeford.

Mr. Harmon cannot remember the name of the Greek against whom the complaint was made. So plausible did the story told by Capsalis, sound that the chief had the Greek detained pending an investigation.

He immediately communicated with the Greek vice consul in Boston and asked if such a crime as the Somersworth man had complained of had been committed. The vice consul was unable to give any information, and the Biddeford Greek was released. He shortly after left Biddeford and the chief says he does not know his present whereabouts. He never told the man what he was detained for, and to his knowledge the suspect never knew that a complaint had been lodged against him by Capsalis.

It is believed by the local police that the alleged murderer will be captured in a few days. It is almost sure that he is somewhere in Maine.

The local Greeks are considerably excited over the tragedy, as they were well acquainted with the parties.

NOT IN PORTLAND

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 16.—Deputy Sheriff Loren D. Casler of Somersworth, N. H., came here yesterday to try to find Nicholas Capsalis. Police Captain Thompson detailed Patrolman McDonough to go with him and they worked for hours.

He found persons who know Capsalis very well and talked with them, but did not succeed in locating him.

RELATIVES IN BROCKTON

BROCKTON, Aug. 16.—The police have been asked to watch for Nicholas Capsalis, wanted for the alleged murder of his aunt at Somersworth, N. H. Capsalis has friends and relatives here, which leads the New Hampshire police to think that he might come here.

DEATHS

MADDEN.—The many friends of Mrs. Margaret Madden, widow of the late Patrick Madden, formerly of Forge Village, will be pained to learn of her death, which occurred at her home at Fishkill on the Hudson, N. Y., where she moved after the death of her husband a few years ago.

Mrs. Madden had been in poor health for many years, but her death occurred suddenly. The body was brought to Graniteville today for burial. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Henry Post and Miss Mary T. and Miss Nellie Madden; one son, John, and one granddaughter.

HARDEN.—Mrs. Mary Harden, an old resident of Grotton, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Harrington, with whom she made her home in that town.

Mrs. Harden's age was 84 years, 4 months and 21 days. She was a native of Wilmington, but had lived in Grotton over 50 years.

She had nine children, four of whom survive her: Mrs. Etta Savage of Chelsea, Mrs. Lida Clark and Mrs. Fannie Harrington of Grotton, and Mrs. Irene Leighton of Concord, N. H., and one stepson, John Harden of Iowa. She is also survived by three brothers, Samuel Harden of Lowell, Otis of Haverhill, and Henry of Reading, and two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Mann of Los Angeles, Cal., and Mrs. Lizzie Jenkins of Wakefield.

SMITH.—J. Andrew Smith, for many years a well known resident of Lowell, died yesterday in Lawrence, at the age of 66 years. Besides his wife, Bridget, he leaves two daughters, Jennie Land and Julia M., and three sons, John, Andrew and Joseph. The body was taken to the undertaking rooms of J. P. O'Donnell & Sons.

Man Robbed While Asleep on the Common

Thief Arrested by Aid of a Man Who Witnessed the Theft—Man in Court for Stealing Check for $110

Abraham Habiaka was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with the larceny of $110 from the American Express company. He entered a plea of not guilty and by agreement the case was continued till Thursday, the defendant being held under $100 bonds.

According to the police a number of Syrians in Lawrence collected $110 to send to a fellow-countryman, Hassan L. Abdell, who is in hard circumstances in Venezuela. An American Express money order for the amount was secured and entrusted to Habiaka to send to Abdell. It is alleged that Habiaka sent an envelope with a blank slip of paper to Venezuela and on March 17 of this year came to Lowell and presented the money order and forging the name of Abdell secured the $110.

Several weeks later when Abdell wrote to his friends in Lawrence that he had not received the money, the matter was reported to the police and Sunday Habiaka was arrested in Fall River and brought to this city yesterday.

In court this morning Lawyer James F. Owens, who appeared for the government, stated that before the larceny case came to trial he would swear out complaints of forgery and uttering against the defendant.

Robbed While Asleep on Common.—Charles J. Lunney, aged 46 years and claiming a residence in Gorham street this city, was arrested in South street near the South common shortly before nine o'clock by Patrolman Daniel Cogger after the latter had been informed by Michael McMahon of 68 Franklin street that he had seen Lunney "go through" the clothing of a drunken man who was lying on one of the seats in the corner of the common near the junction of Thorndike and Summer streets.

After Lunney had been brought back to the place where the drunken man was lying a telephone call was sent in for the patrol wagon and when that vehicle arrived Lunney and his alleged victim, who was in a comatose condition, were bundled into the wagon and taken to the police station. Lunney was booked for larceny from the person and the other man, who was unable to give his name, was booked for drunkenness.

At about 8:45 o'clock this morning there were quite a number of people on the common. Some were sleeping off the effects of the night before and the "eye openers" in the morning while others resorted to the common for the purpose of securing fresh air.

Stretching out on one of the benches near the corner of Thorndike and Summer streets was a drunken man. Despite the fact that some boys had tried to arouse the man from his slumbers their efforts went for naught for the man was "dead to the world."

Seated on a bench a short distance away was Michael McMahon of 68 Franklin street and from time to time he looked in the direction of the man occupied by the intoxicated man. On one occasion when he glanced in that direction he noticed a person near the man who was acting in a very suspicious manner. Keeping a close watch on the latter he saw the stranger place his hands in the pockets of the trousers of the drunken man and take a watch and chain and what looked to be money. The man then walked off. Mr. McMahon immediately realized that there was something wrong and decided to follow the man until he ran across a police officer.

Following at a distance behind the man in order not to attract attention Mr. McMahon continued until he reached the corner of South and Summer streets where he met Patrolman Daniel Cogger. McMahon told his story to the officer and the latter detained the stranger who proved to be Lunney. Lunney denied that he had stolen anything from the man and quite reluctantly agreed to accompany the officer back to where the drunken man was lying on the seat.

On the way up Summer street Patrolman Cogger noticed Supt. Welch passing through Thorndike street and calling him over had McMahon relate his story to the superintendent.

The superintendent, Patrolman Cogger, McMahon and Lunney went over to where the man was lying on the seat but all attempts to revive the man proved without avail.

Turning to Lunney Supt. Welch asked: "Did you get any money from this man?"

"He gave me 50 cents to get a pint of booze," was Lunney's reply. "Is that all?"

"How much money have you in your pocket?"

"About $2.50," Lunney then drew $1.90 in change from one of his pockets.

"What have you got in your left hand pocket?"

He was rather reluctant about showing what was in the pocket, but the superintendent assisted him and succeeded in bringing $20 to light—one $10 bill and two $5 bills.

"Where did you get that money?" asked Supt. Welch.

"He gave it to me to mind for him," was the answer.

At this point Mr. McMahon informed the superintendent that he had seen Lunney take a watch and chain from the drunken man and sure enough there was the watch in the little pocket of Lunney's trousers while the chain was stuck inside the trousers.

"Were you minding this for the man also?"

"Yes."

"Do you know this man?" asked the superintendent pointing to the man on the seat.

"Yes," said Lunney.

"Where does he belong?"

"What?"

"I asked where he belongs?"

"Oh, he's a florist from Prine's Crossing."

"What's his name?"

"His name is either Simmons or Simmonds, I forget."

Lunney's story was rather too frail to depend on and word was sent to the police station for the patrol wagon.

While they were waiting for the patrol Philip Dolan of 15 Concord street and James Moran of 6 Goward's court off Appleton street, corroborated the story told by Mr. McMahon relative to Lunney's stealing the watch and chain and money.

The man who got robbed was in such a condition that the police were unable to get any information from him and at the time of going to press he did not show much signs of improvement. A close watch is being kept over the man and it may be necessary to send him to the farm in order that he may recuperate.

Superintendent Welch speaks in high terms of the clever work of Mr. McMahon and in conversation with the representatives of the press this morning stated that if there were more men like Mr. McMahon in this city that there would be few criminals at large.

Violated Sunday Law.—Mohamed Osman, who conducts a store at 61 East Merrimack street, appeared in court this morning to answer to a complaint charging him with violating the Lord's day. Osman sold a box of sardines to a patrolman in citizen's clothes on Sunday and although he pleaded ignorance this morning he was fined $5.

Assault and Battery.—John Sobor and John Sobak got into a mink; a few nights ago with the result that Sobak got a good jolting from Sobor. Sobor admitted his guilt and was released after paying a fine of $5.

Drunk on the Tracks.—Thomas Murphy "wandered" into Tewksbury yesterday afternoon and feeling tired laid down by the side of the road. Chief Farmer of the Tewksbury farm hearing of the man's condition went to the place and after procuring him placed him aboard an electric car. The car had gone but a quarter of a mile when the conductor put Murphy off and the latter after leaving the car went to sleep on the car tracks. Chief Farmer happened to be passing a few minutes later and finding Murphy in the roadway bundled him into a wagon and drove him to the police station. He was fined $5.

Drunken Offenders.—John L. Bowers, charged with being drunk, was sentenced to four months in jail.

Daniel J. Curtin, William Laurensen and Michael Spillane were each fined $5, and one first offender was fined $2.

George Cummings and Thomas Statley who were in police court for assault yesterday, say they were not arrested. They went to the police station, were booked and then bailed out.

FUNERALS.—COLBURN.—The funeral of Annie M., wife of Charles W. Colburn took place at her home in Pelham, N. H., Saturday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Russell of Methuen, and a quartet composed of Mrs. Ethel Johnson, Mrs. Fannie Carlton, Messrs. Daniel Webster and Otis Gage sang "Face to Face" and "Abide With Me." Burial was at Pelham Centre. At the cemetery Mrs. Mary C. Berry made a beautiful prayer and spoke words of comfort, and the quartet sang "Nearer My God, to Thee." The bearers were J. Otis Tjebom, Forest E. Kelley, Ernest Mills and Henry Tjebom.

Besides her husband she leaves two brothers, Alexander McKinnis of Methuen, William McKinnis of Lynn, and one sister, Mrs. John Cheney of Providence, R. I., who was her devoted attendant during her painful illness.

HINDLE.—The funeral of Daniel L. Hindle took place yesterday afternoon from the funeral parlors of Undertaker C. M. Young, 38 Prescott street, Rev. S. W. Matthews, pastor of the First Primitive Methodist church, officiated. The bearers were members of Post 120, G. A. R. Delegations were present from Samuel H. Hines lodge, K. of P., and from the Sons of St. George. The burial was in the Edison cemetery, where the Grand Army services were held at the grave. The arrangements were in charge of C. M. Young, undertaker.

LETTRELL.—The funeral of Mrs. Ann M. Lettrell took place Monday afternoon from her home, 172 Pleasant street, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. Services were held at the Immaculate Conception church at 2:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Fr. Flynn, O. M. I. There were many beautiful floral offerings, among them being a large standing cross on base, inscribed "At Rest," from Mr. and Mrs. James Fielding; a large spray of purple asters from Miss Minnie Conner and a large spray of asters from Mr. and Mrs. David Thomas. The bearers were Messrs. James Fielding, James Riley, John Cox, Michael O'Shea, William Hayes and David Thomas. Burial was in the family lot in St. Patrick's cemetery in charge of Funeral Director Thomas J. McDermott.

SVERNEY.—The funeral of Mrs. Julia A. Sweeney took place yesterday afternoon from her late residence, 5 Hastings street and was largely attended. Rev. Asa Reed Dilts officiated. The floral pieces were many and beautiful, among them being the following: wreath of lavender asters and white rose buds, family; spray of purple and white asters, Mrs. Martha Sweeney; Mrs. Marshall; spray of purple asters, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Gardner; wreath of purple asters and white sweet peas, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Gardner; wreath of asters, roses, pinks and lilies, Miss Louise Beaman of Somerville; spray of pink and white asters, Mrs. M. E. Light; spray of purple and white asters, Mr. and Mrs. O. I. Grant; spray

HIS THROAT CUT

Griffin Was Searching For Restelli, Alleged Murderer

QUINCY, Aug. 16.—"Griffin found dead this morning; throat cut" was the text of a message received here today by Chief of Police Burrell of Quincy and bearing the signature of Chief McInchurn of North Sydney, C. B. Griffin, who is believed to belong in Quincy, conducted on his own account a search for Luigi Restelli, the Italian stone worker who killed two persons and wounded three others in this city nearly three weeks ago. Chief Burrell does not know whether the message intended to convey the idea of suicide or murder and is awaiting further advice. Griffin had sent several telegrams to Mayor Shea and Chief Burrell detailing various incidents of his pursuit of the person whom he suspected of being Restelli. He was also dissatisfied with the apparent inaction of the North Sydney police displayed in failing to apprehend the person whom he suspected of being the fugitive murderer. Finally, upon Griffin's representations an Italian was detained by the North Sydney police. This man, however, did not answer the description of the fugitive and upon his proving that he came from Richmond, Ind. He was discharged from custody.

Chief Burrell received another telegram this morning which was signed by a Boston man and stated Restelli would reach Utica, N. Y., on a train arriving in that city at 10:10 today. Although the chief did not place any faith in the announcement, nevertheless he arranged with the Utica police to have the train men and the passengers subjected to a close scrutiny.

BUILDING INSPECTOR

Hampered by Committee in Securing Boiler for Fire Station

Committee Says the Station Can Get Along for Some Time Without a New Boiler — New School in Pawtucketville — Meetings Tonight

The committee on lands and buildings, Aldermen Qua and Byam; Councilmen Whitte, Howe and Tarrant, has said that the Central fire station can get along all right for a year or so without a new boiler. The insurance inspectors, who are in every way state inspectors, have said that a new boiler should be installed at the Central fire station, but the inspectors did say in their recommendation that the old boiler was not dangerous. The inspectors recommended a new boiler lest the old one should go bad in cold weather.

James Dow, inspector of buildings, called for bids on a new boiler for the Central fire station allowing of course, that the committee on lands and buildings would endorse the recommendation of the inspectors for a new boiler. It may be that Mr. Dow's action in calling for bids before the money had been appropriated was influenced to a certain extent by the present pump controversy between the water board and the committee on appropriations.

The committee recommending that bids on the pump be called for before the money is appropriated, but, be that as it may, Mr

SOLDIERS READY

To Suppress Riots at Cincinnati-- Officers Discharged

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—The ground in the state house yard is filled with the "pup" tents of the first regiment, Ohio National guard, who arrived from Cincinnati early today. There has been very little rioting since the announcement that troops would be again in Columbus.

The thirty three mutinous policemen who refused to go on the cars when ordered by Mayor Marshall were formally discharged today.

Want the New State Named After Lincoln

NEWTON, Aug. 16.—A movement to have the name of Abraham Lincoln commemorated by giving the name of Lincoln to the latest state to be admitted to the Union has been started by members of the G. A. R. post of this city. The local post is trying to have the movement endorsed by the Grand Army as a body. At the last regular meeting of the post the following resolutions were adopted:

"Whereas, a new star is about to be added to our flag by the admission to the Union of another state, therefore,

TRAIN WAS DERAILED

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—The Iron Mountain fast mail which left here at 2.30 o'clock this morning was derailed at Annapolis, Mo., 112 miles south of here, while going at a high speed. The conductor's leg was broken and five mail clerks were bruised. The train carried no passengers.

CADETS IN CAMP

Young Soldiers Cheered as They Boarded the Cars

No happier regiment of soldiers ever left Lowell than were the O. M. I. Cadets when they boarded special cars at 1.15 this afternoon, bound for Millis, Mass. to enter on their annual tour of camp duty. The cadets with their parents and people of the parish, who have been a great help in the training of the boys, accompanied them to the depot. The boys were in the full ranks of the army in the immaculate blue uniforms of the O. M. I. and were escorted by the chaplain, Lieut. Bernard McCardle, and Police Officer Matthew McManis, who is athletic instructor of the boys. The tents are pitched in a pine grove and are ideally located. When all had been assigned to quarters they were called to the drill field by Lieut. McCardle and dress parade was in order.

JAMES T. BOYLE

Made Stubborn Fight Against Arrest

James T. Boyle started a roughhouse exhibition in the saloon of the Belvidere hotel in Prescott street yesterday afternoon and later had a "run in" with the police. He gave the police a battle before he was subdued and landed at the police station. He was badly hampered before he ceased to fight.

In police court this morning he was charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on John J. Brennan, a clerk at the hotel. Through his counsel, Joseph P. Loughran, he entered pleas of not guilty and a continuance till Thursday was asked for and granted by the court. He was held under $300 bonds on the assault charge and $100 for drunkenness, his personal recognizance being taken for the latter bond.

According to the police, Boyle entered the hotel bar and got into an argument with Mr. Brennan with the result that he struck Mr. Brennan over the head. He then ran out and made his way through Middle street. At about the same time Joseph L. Considine, one of the recently appointed supernumerary patrolmen, in citizen's clothes, was passing through Middle street and noting the condition of Boyle's face questioned him as to where he had been. He said that he had been assaulted by a man and was running away from him. His story did not go with the officer, however, and he asked Boyle to accompany him to where the alleged assault was.

Considine and Boyle walked side by side through Middle street until they came to the alleyway near the Talbot Chemical Co.'s works when Boyle struck the officer and started through the alley. Considine started after him and soon succeeded in catching up to him and after considerable difficulty succeeded in subduing him.

A pair of handcuffs were snapped on Boyle's wrists and he was escorted to the police station. On the way Inspector John Walsh was met and he assisted in arresting the man. Boyle did not like the idea of the inspector interfering and raising his manacled hands brought his two hands and the cuffs down on Inspector Walsh's head, smothering the latter's hat. The inspector retaliated by landing Boyle an open hander on the side of the face which quelled the disturber until he reached the police station.

Boyle is well known to the police and has raised considerable trouble for them. A few years ago when he was wanted by the police ward was telephoned to this city that he was on a Lawrence car bound for Lowell. Several officers were stationed in the square to capture Boyle, but he saw them first and jumping over the railing of the car just before it reached Morrisbiak square ran through one of the side streets towards the canal, plunged into the canal, swam across and pulling himself out of the water entered the yard of the Massachusetts mills and after leading the police a merry chase managed to escape over a high picket fence.

A few months after that while passing through Merrimack street several officers saw him and gave chase. He hid them through a maze of streets and after finally finding himself cornered entered a house and hid in the cellar. When the police located him he put up a hot battle and it took four men to subdue him.

VET.'S WIDOW

May Lose Her Right to Pension

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—The pension authorities of this state will be called upon in a few days to decide whether the widow of a man who did not like the name bestowed upon him by his parents and had it changed to another name is entitled to a pension due the wife of a veteran of the Civil war.

Lucille Boyd, who died in Worcester yesterday, is the name of the man who changed his name. When still in his teens Boyd had his first name changed to "Bill" and always went by that name.

When he enlisted in the Civil war, however, Boyd enlisted under his right name, Lucille. Upon the close of the four years of fighting the man married, taking out the certificate under the name of "Bill Boyd."

Yesterday Mrs. Boyd expressed considerable fear that she would not be able to secure the pension to which she is entitled, owing to her dead husband enlisting and marrying under two different names.

The widow also stated that she has ample proofs to show that Lucille and Bill Boyd were one and the same person.

Boyd died at his home, 30 Beacon street, Worcester, Sunday afternoon, at the age of 62.

The man was a wireworker by trade, being employed in the factory of the Building Fish company on Herman street, that city.

He was born in Hopkinton, and was the son of Thomas Boyd. Besides a wife, one son, Louis E., and a brother, Theophilus P., of Upton, survive him.

THIRTY-NINE LOST

Drowned From Spanish Steamer After a Collision

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 16.—The Spanish steamer Martos foundered this morning off Tarifa on the African coast opposite Gibraltar after a collision with the German steamer Elsa.

Thirty-nine were drowned, of whom 32 were passengers. The survivors were landed here.

A dense fog prevailed at the time of the collision.

Nine of the victims on the Martos were first cabin passengers. The other twenty-three passengers who perished were in the steerage. The bow of the Elsa was stove in by the collision and her forepeak filled quickly with water. The steamer, however, managed to keep afloat.

THE BANK'S ACCOUNTS

Alleged Method of Falsifying Them is Explained

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 16.—An explanation of the alleged method used by Richard Ingersoll, the 77 year old bank treasurer, to conceal the York county savings bank loss on western securities a quarter of a century ago by making the affairs of the bank appear more prosperous than they really were has been given. This bank closed its doors because of irregularities in the accounts which will cause a shortage, the extent of which will not be known until the passbooks have been examined. The changing of the books was said to have been done in this way: "If for the week there were $5000 in deposits and $8000 of withdrawals and $500 interest on loans, the interest account was swelled to $1500 by adding another $1000 on the books, while the withdrawals were increased by $1000, thus making the books of the bank balance. The depositors were in this way given full credit upon the cash books for their deposits but their books did not show the withdrawals which only appeared on the bank's books."

SPEAKER CANNON

Strong in His Denunciation of the "Insurgent"

DANVILLE, Ill., Aug. 16.—Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the house, in an interview last night denounced insurgents, said that he would be a candidate for the speakership of the next house and declared that reports of the reorganization of the republican party originated with insurgents and democrats.

Referring to the despatches from Beverly, Mr. Cannon said:

"I don't believe Mr. Taft contemplates any such action. The president is not the kind of man to yield to every passing whim of a minority. The story that Senators Aldrich and Hale and myself were to be thrown out of the party will be found, when traced to its source, to have originated with some of the insurgents, democratic allies whose wishes are father to the thought."

"I expected to be re-elected to congress by an overwhelming majority and then I will be a candidate for speaker, but always subject to the will of the people. If I am beaten in the caucus, which I believe is remote, I will willingly take my place in the ranks."

Answering the question "Will you be a candidate for re-election as speaker of the next house?" Mr. Cannon said:

"I have been asked that question frequently, especially by our democratic friends and their practical allies, the followers of La Follette and Cummins. I have answered it but so far the answer as I gave it has never been published by our friends, the enemy."

"I am speaker of the house, elected by a republican majority four times. I have been in harmony with and have to the best of my ability co-operated with the republican majority in the

MUNSEY AUTO TOUR

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—Twenty-eight of the 31 autos entered in the Munsey historic tour of the New England and Middle Atlantic states left here on schedule time today. The pilot car left the Hotel Walton, the starting point of the 1500 mile tour, at 7 a.m. and at 7 o'clock the first of the entrants got away. The other cars followed at one minute intervals. Today's run is to West Point, N. Y., a distance of 160.3 miles, and the schedule calls for one stop at Morrisstown, N. J. Owing to copious rains during the last two days heavy roads were encountered during the morning. Leaving West Point tomorrow morning the run will be to New London, Conn. The automobilists will be in Boston Thursday night, Portland, Me., Friday night and Bethlehem, N. H., Saturday evening, where the big party will remain until Monday morning.

BIG STRIKE IN SALEM

Over 1000 Shoe Workers to Leave the Factories Today

SALEM, Aug. 16.—A general strike of union employes in the Salem shoe factories was begun today and it was expected by union officials that before tonight more than 1000 shoe factory workers would have quit their bouches. The strike came as the result of a meeting of the United Shoe-workers of America last night, at which it was voted almost unanimously to declare a general strike of the union men if a conference this morning failed to bring about a settlement of the troubles that have existed for some time between the union and L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. The chief issue is the demand of the union that several union employes who are alleged to have been locked out by the L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. be reinstated.

The conference this forenoon between the representatives of the union and the officials of the L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. failed to reach an agreement and at 10.15 the general quitting of union men began. First the cutters employed in the factory of the Jonathan Brown & Sons Co. left their work and marched down Canal street in a body. On their way down the street they passed the factories of the Woodberry Shoe Co., P. A. Fields & Co. and the L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. and at each factory the ranks of the strikers were strengthened. The unions participating in the strike include the lasters, the Mackay stitchers, the stockfitters, the treasers and the ironers. The cutters, although not affiliated with the United Shoe-workers of America, have voted to join the strike. It is generally believed that the four factories of the Cass & Daly Co., the largest shoe manufacturing plant in the city will not be affected inasmuch as the Cass & Daly firm recently adopted a union stamp. The union leaders say that the strike will be carried across to the adjoining city of Beverly. The union officials claim that several of the Beverly shoe manufacturers whom they do not name, have joined with the Salem manufacturers in the fight against the union.

No trouble of any kind developed during the forenoon, the strikers behaving in a most orderly manner.

LOWELL OFFICER MAN

He Wanted to See the President

BEVERLY, Aug. 16.—There was an amusing episode on the lawn of the president's cottage yesterday afternoon, resulting in the second arrest of the summer.

A mild-mannered old man drifted along the driveway leading to the cottage until he was stopped by Secret Service Agent Sloan. When asked his mission the old fellow replied that he wanted to see the president regarding a message.

Sloan told the visitor that he had better apply to the executive offices in the city and was about to dismiss him when the man wheeled around and said: "I am also the man who is responsible for the stories that have been sent out of Beverly about the reorganization of the republican party."

Sloan immediately took the man into custody. Upon examination he was found to be J. E. O'Connor, formerly a patient at the state farm for the mentally infirm. He was released some time ago as harmless.

STRUCK BY AUTO

Prominent Worcester Man May Be Fatally Injured

WORCESTER, Aug. 16.—Ex-Representative Lucian B. Stone, former street commissioner and one of the best known residents of the city, was struck and fatally injured by an auto driven by Edward J. Fagan, 1048 Hanover street, Quincy, opposite his home at 1030 Main street last night. Stone's skull was fractured at the base and the brain was injured, causing hemorrhages; and Dr. George M. Albee, 1025 Main street, to whose home he was first taken, says the patient cannot live more than a few hours.

Mr. Stone was riding home by trolley early last evening and jumped off the car in front of his home. Witnesses tell the police that the trolley conductor shouted a warning to the aged man, who is 51 years old, telling him to look out for the approaching auto, but Mr. Stone is deaf and failed to hear the warning. The auto, according to the police, was proceeding at a moderate rate of speed and Fagan sounded his horn, but Mr. Stone jumped off so close to the auto that it was impossible to avoid hitting him and the front wheel passed over his body.

He was taken to the piazza of Dr. Albee's house and later removed to his own home next door. Late last night his condition was pronounced extremely critical. Fagan was placed under arrest on a charge of assault and battery and gave bonds for his appearance in court. With him in the auto were his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Fagan, and two sisters, Mary and Zita Fagan.

Mr. Stone, with his brother, ran the first public conveyance, through the streets of Worcester, from Lincoln square to Webster, opening a stage line in 1857. Three months later they continued the stage line to Spencer and continued to carry on the traffic business until 1881, when the trolley line from Worcester to Spencer was put through.

From 1882 to 1898 he served the city of Worcester as street commissioner. In 1901 he was elected an alderman, and in 1906 a representative, being re-elected at a moderate rate.

Mr. Stone is a member of Montacute lodge, A. F. and A. M., and is a life member of all the bodies up to the 33d degree. He is a member of Montacute lodge of Odd Fellows and is a charter member of the Massachusetts highway commissioners' association.

Mr. Craig smiled, but made no reply. Several new angles in the case which developed yesterday, also served to keep the interest at fever heat. One of them was the appearance in the case of Mrs. Naomi Boller, a private detective, who testified to transactions with Corbett. Mrs. Boller was the subject of a savage attack by Atty. McIntyre.

She testified that she went to see Corbett in the interests of ex-Judge Smith East of Westchester county, who had a judgment against Qualey and wanted Mrs. Boller to serve him with papers in supplementary proceedings.

OHIO'S CAPITAL CITY IN THROES OF STRIKE TROUBLE MAY NEED MILITIA

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16.—Ohio's capital city is in a state of confusion as a result of the street car strike since the state militia has been withdrawn and Governor Harmon may recall the troops any hour. Two regiments are under arms and can be rushed to the scene in record time. Mayor Marshall has ordered more than a score of policemen suspended, and officials of the car company assert that they will expend a million dollars rather than give in to the strikers. Shooting and throwing of deadly missiles are of daily occurrence, and many women and children have been seriously injured. Cars have been dynamited. Charges of political bias have been made against Governor Harmon, Democrat, and Mayor Marshall, Republican.

POLICE SCORED

By Judge Mahoney of Lawrence

LAWRENCE, Aug. 16.—Jeremiah Keefe was sentenced to three months in the house of correction by Judge Mahoney yesterday for assault on Henry C. Magoon, a business man. The assault took place on Broadway, where repaving is being done.

Mr. Magoon had asked that obstructions be removed and when workmen failed to comply with his request he undertook to do the work himself Saturday, with the result that he was struck down and left unconscious. Sunday Keefe called at the police station and said he committed the assault.

Judge Mahoney remarked that the revelations showed a shockingly lax condition of affairs in the police department. "The assault was as brutal," said Judge Mahoney, "that every available man on the force should have been put to work and the defendant arrested within an hour."

PICTURE SHOWS

HAVERHILL COUNCIL PLACES CENSOR ON THEM

HAVERHILL, Aug. 16.—The municipal council held a conference yesterday with the managers of the local theatres and moving-picture shows, after which it was decided to put under the censorship of the city marshal all moving pictures shown in this city.

The managers' association and the federation of men's clubs urged the appointment of a board of censors, but the council decided the police should undertake the duty.

The marshal will instruct patrolmen to watch the theatres and report any objectionable features exhibited. The municipal council also changed the fees for licenses, charging theatres $50 per year and the moving-picture houses $25.

Further developments are expected later in the week in the matter of securing a writ of mandamus asked for a week ago by the aldermen to compel Acting Mayor Jordan to call a joint convention.

WERE SAVED ONCE

Two Sailors Then Went Out in Small Boat Again

GLOUCESTER, August 16.—The schooner Pauline, Capt. Nels Lawson, arrived here yesterday with two of the crew of the schooner Marcella, Thomas Hayes and Monte Colson. They shipped about five weeks ago, and when a week out, while hauling their trawls on the western banks, became separated from their vessel in a fog.

Their compass became unreliable, and they rowed for a day and night in the fog until they fell with the schooner or Eglantine on board which they stayed several days.

When the weather cleared and some vessels were despatched to anchor on the horizon, the men set out again to find their craft. Soon afterward a gale accompanied by a fog sprang up, and the two men again found themselves adrift. For 24 hours they were at the mercy of the wind and sea, but fortune was again with them, and they fell in with the schooner Pauline.

On getting over the rail the first person to assist Hayes to the vessel was his son, who was a member of the crew. Capt. Lawson took them on, and they finished the voyage with him.

The schooner Margaret, Capt. William Grady, which arrived yesterday from a baiting voyage to the Labrador waters, reports that on Aug. 1, while 20 miles east of Buena Vista, on the northern coast of Newfoundland, he

SPECIAL SESSION

Of the Rhode Island Assembly Convened Today

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 16.—The general assembly of the state convened today in a special adjourned session for the purpose of acting upon the report of the redistricting commission, enacting a corporation tax law and considering other legislative matters of importance. It is a rare occurrence for the assembly to meet at this season of the year and it was called in order that the next election might be along the lines laid out by the redistricting commission.

The session is expected to be a brief one, about two weeks, but the number of important matters which will come up for consideration promises to make it notable. In addition to the redistricting report it was announced that a special message would be submitted by the governor and that the body would also have to pass on the bill for the revision of the tax laws which includes a corporation tax bill and a bill for the creation of a state tax commissioner. Other legislation which may come before the assembly includes amendments to the egg lobster law which caused the withdrawal of several of the inland fisheries commissioners, appointment of new commissioners, appointment of a state harbor improvement committee to take charge of the expenditure of the $500,000 bond issue and a resolution for the relocating and repairing of the boundary stones between Rhode Island and Connecticut. The boundary marks between this state and Massachusetts have been relocated and put in good condition during the past year.

MAYOR GAYNOR IMPROVING

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Mayor Gaynor steadily continues along the path of recovery and when he awoke he seemed to be stronger and better than any time since he was shot a week ago today as he was about to sail for Europe. Dangers of an infection are almost past, although everything is in readiness should circumstances render an operation necessary. Mayor Gaynor is being kept very quiet and few visitors are permitted to see him. The wounded executive feels the heat, but otherwise seems not disturbed by his unfortunate situation.

Should no complications develop it is believed that Mayor Gaynor can be taken to the camp of a friend in the Adirondacks in about two weeks. The mayor's physicians stated at 6 o'clock that he had slept all during the night and was doing nicely this morning.

When Leblanc reached Amiens the flock was not yet in sight, the first pigeon arriving six minutes and twenty seconds after Leblanc. Before the last of the flock had come in Legagneux who had started at the same time as Leblanc but consumed nine minutes more on the trip arrived and beat the last pigeon by twelve minutes.

The Whalers, the league leaders, and Lowell met at Spalding park yesterday and the game was witnessed by a fair-sized and enthusiastic attendance of fans. Manager Dowd of the visiting team did not appear in Lowell owing to the fact that he is confined to his bed with a severe attack of fever. The players stated that he pressed a very bad night last night and it is thought that he will be confined to the house for several days.

During the practice prior to the game Riley, the new utility man for Lowell, covered third base, but he did not appear in the game. Jack Boutles covering the third sack.

Manager Gray announced prior to the game that he would like to meet the manager of the Lowell Americans and Sanitary club teams at his office in the fifteenth building at their earliest opportunity.

The game was called at three o'clock by Umpire Lanigan.

First Inning
Walsh, the first man up, hit to Fitz and was retired at first, and a few minutes later McCrone fled to Cooney. Rising singled to right center and Fluharty allowed the ball to go through him. Rising tried to make three bases on the fumble, but Blakely fielded the ball and relayed it to third with the assistance of Cooney, and Rising was nailed at third.

In the latter half of the inning Blakely hit to Cunningham and was out at first. Fitz fled to Bauman and Cooney hit to Wilson and was out at first.

Score—Lowell 0, New Bedford 0.

Second Inning
Cunningham drew a base on balls. McCrone bunted to Tyler who threw Cunningham out at second and Cooney sent the ball to first for a double play. Bauman singled to left field and stole second, but Wilson closed the first half of the inning by flying to Blakely.

Magee hit to Bauman and died at first. Tenney hit to Bauman and the latter threw bad. Tenney going to third on the play. Fluharty hit to Armstrong and Tenney started for home, but was caught between third and home. Boutles struck out.

Score—Lowell 0, New Bedford 0.

Third Inning
Lowell broke the ice in the third inning by scoring one run. Ulrich sent a grounder to Tenney and was out at first. Armstrong struck out and Walsh hit to Tyler and was third out. In Lowell's half Huston fled to Cunningham and Tyler singled. Blakely hit Cunningham forcing Tyler at second. He then stole second. Fitz sent a slow grounder to Bauman and beat the ball to first. Blakely scoring on the play. Cooney fled to Armstrong forcing making a pretty running catch.

Score—Lowell 1, New Bedford 0.

Fourth Inning
Lowell scored another run in the fourth inning. McCrone opened with a fly to Fluharty and Rising hit to McCormick and was out at first while Cunningham was third out on a stellar throw.

In the latter half of the inning Magee hit to left field for two bases and went to third on Tenney's sacrifice. Magee and Fluharty attempted a squeeze play, but Fluharty missed the bunt and Magee was caught between the bases but he was enabled to score on a bad throw. Fluharty bunted along to third base. Fluharty beat the ball to first. Boutles hit to Bauman and Fluharty at second. Huston singled to center field. Tyler hit to Armstrong, who knocked the ball down and throwing to second got Fluharty.

Score—Lowell 2, New Bedford 0.

Fifth Inning
Neither side scored in the fifth. McCormick hit to Blakely and was out. Bauman drew a base on balls and Wilson was retired on strikes. Bauman stole second and Ulrich fled to Blakely.

In the latter half of the inning Blakely fled to Bauman. Fitz hit to Bauman and was out at first. Cooney bunted to Wilson who threw lead and the runner got on first, but while trying to steal second he was thrown out.

Score—Lowell 2, New Bedford 0.

Sixth Inning
Armstrong opened the sixth with a single and Walsh followed with a fly to Magee. McCrone struck out and Rising knocked a foul fly which Huston gathered in.

Magee fled to McCormick and Tenney went out on strikes. Fluharty hit to McCrone, Armstrong covering first, but Fluharty beat the ball for a safe hit. Fluharty was later caught while trying to steal second.

Score—Lowell 2, New Bedford 0.

Seventh Inning
With three men on base and but one out Lowell made a double play and prevented the Whalers from scoring. Cunningham foul flied to Tenney, after which McCormick singled to center field and Bauman singled to left field. Wilson hit to Fitzpatrick who had a chance to make a double play, but he fumbled the ball and the bases were filled. Ulrich and McCormick attempted a squeeze play and when Ulrich bled, McCormick started for home. Tyler got the ball and throwing home got McCormick at the plate and Huston sent the ball to first for a double play on Ulrich.

In the latter half of the inning Boutles and Huston sent grounders to Bauman and were out at first. Tyler hit to McCrone and was third out.

Score—Lowell 2, New Bedford 0.

Eighth Inning
In the eighth inning Tyler struck out Armstrong. Walsh and McCrone in rapid succession.

In Lowell's half Blakely got hit by a pitched ball. Fitz sent him to second with a sacrifice. Cooney fled to Kling. Magee hit one too hot for Wilson and he recalled that, Blakely going to third. Tenney hit to center field for two bases, scoring Blakely and Magee. Fluharty singled to center scoring Tenney.

Boutles hit to Bauman, forcing Fluharty at second.

Score—Lowell 5, New Bedford 0.

Ninth Inning
The last inning was played in a downpour of rain. Rising hit to Cooney and died at first. Cunningham fled out to Blakely. McCormick got hit by a pitched ball and took first. Bauman hit to Tenney and was out.

DIAMOND NOTES

The Whalers again today.

We crowded just a few inches nearer the first division yesterday.

Rain poured down in Merrimack Square as Lowell was finishing the sixth inning, but the juice didn't reach Spalding park until the first of the ninth.

The umpire like that other devil is entitled to his due and the fan with the fog-born voice who kept yelling: "Lanigan, you're a rummy; Lanigan you're drunk!" should have been ducked in the water barrel. Lanigan is a footballer. The sun or buttermilk, or even badwin apples might have made his face red, but not the other stuff.

Oh, you George with the out-drop. How the Southpaw batter did fall for them. Three of them fanned in "conclusion" in the eighth, including Mr. McCrone whose mound at present is entertaining a major league bee, who made the only kick in the game.

McCrone should wear the O'Sullivan heel so that his foot will stick to the bag. But with all his faults there's no first baseman in the league that can get to a ground ball like Mac.

Cunningham played his usual artistic game at second. There was no gold brick concealed in the sale of Cunningham to the big league.

On the occasion of his previous appearance here Rising used language in addressing the third base bleachers which entitled him to a licking. But the fans were charitable and forgiving and when he made a great catch that robbed Cooney of a three-bagger the crowd gave him a good round of applause.

Poor old Haverhill. Left with only two pitchers and one catcher with double-headers coming along.

A telegram was received Sunday night by Pitcher McTighe and Catcher Boyle from Secretary Farrell of the national commission notifying them to report to New Bedford at once. Here's the situation in a nut shell. McTighe and Boyle belonged to Birmingham, Ala. and were loaned to Kankakee, Ill. Kank went up the line and Tom Fleming, erstwhile manager of the Haverhill, secured them from the Kankakee management which had no right to dispose of them. As soon as Fleming got the pair to Haverhill he negotiated with the Boston Nationals for the sale of McTighe and the deal is put through. Meanwhile Tom Dowd buys the pair from Birmingham. Then came the question as to where the Alabama babies and the Dutton Kid belonged. The big Moguls say New Bedford and that goes. Once more, also, poor Haverhill.

Lowell showed two fast double plays in yesterday's game though what possessed Ulrich to bunt with three on bases and only one out is a mystery. If the squeeze play was intended then McCormick who was on third was the goat for he failed to get a start.

That squeeze play by Magee and Fluharty was a dismal failure but thanks to Garry Wilson's bad throw, the end in view was reached.

LODGE'S AGENTS

Have Been Turned Down By Candidates

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge is meeting with considerable difficulty in securing pledges of support from republican candidates for the legislature throughout the state.

Despite the fact that he has been able to line up leaders like Speaker Joseph Walker, Representative "Bob" Washburn of Worcester and Norman White of Brookline, who have shown themselves on many occasions to be independent of the machine, he is having his troubles with less conspicuous members who are seeking re-election.

It was stated yesterday that the agents of the senior senator through the state have been able to secure few pledges for him and that most of the candidates for the house refuse to go on record. In the majority of cases, they decline to say whether they will vote for Senator Lodge. Congressman Butler Ames or somebody else.

Congressman Ames plans to make a sharp, short, fight. According to the statement made by one of his political lieutenants, after looking the field over he came to the conclusion that it would cost at least $500,000 to put anti-Lodge candidates in the field in every representative and senatorial district in the state.

Despite the fact that Congressman Ames is many times a millionaire he feels that on the financial end of a campaign he would have to play second with Senator Lodge.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. George E. Morrison and Miss Helene Cordeau were married yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Louis' church, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Fr. Jacques, the pastor. The bride was attended by her father, Mr. Celestin Cordeau and the bridegroom by his brother, Mr. Joseph Morrison. After the ceremony a luncheon was served for the relatives only, at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Charles L. Cordeau, 65 Bowdoin street. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison left for Westworth, N. H., to spend their honeymoon at the Morrison summer home there. They have received many beautiful gifts, and on their return will make their home at 65 Bowdoin street.

RUBE OLDRING, ATHLETICS'
LEADING SPHERE WALLOPER

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—Barring accidents or a complete slump on the part of the Athletics, it looks almost certain that one-half of the world's championship series will be played here at Shibe park next October. The Athletics have completed their series in the west and have finished with a better record than even the stoutest supporters of the team dared to hope for when Connie Mack and his band set sail to conquer the western teams Aug. 1. All Mack's men are in excellent condition and playing brilliantly. Rube Oldring, the Athletics' crack center fielder, is leading his teammates in batting with a percentage of .316. Besides hitting the ball hard, Oldring is gobbling up everything sent out to his garden.

KID McDONALD

Knocked Out Bill Collins of London

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 16.—Kid McDonald of Boston made short work of Billy Collins, late of London, Eng., before the New Bedford A. C. last night. The Englishman, who gained a reputation as a wrestler, afterward went into the boxing game with such success that he is said to have a record of 27 knockouts to his credit out of 40 bouts.

Last night McDonald put him away in the third round. McDonald's shiftiness and cleverness in covering up prevented the Englishman from doing him much damage. Collins had a snappy left-hand punch, but McDonald's handiness with both mitts set him guessing and in the third round he began to hit wildly as a result of McDonald's swift rushes.

In a mixup, McDonald slammed both hands hard to Collins' stomach and the English boxer had to be assisted from the ring.

For the first bout, Young Bridges, a colored boxer from Gloucester, was scheduled to go against Kid Williams of Philadelphia for eight rounds, at 150 pounds. Williams' left shift dazzled Bridges at the start and though he fought back furiously, Williams sent him down twice in the first round and through the ropes in the second. Bridges came back, but was knocked down again, finally dropping to the door and taking the count.

Young Yell of Taunton, who has won amateur prizes before the B. A. A., made his professional debut in a bout with Young Larry of Fall River. Larry essayed to carry the fight to his opponent, but Yell met him on the way and in the first round a shower of blows sent Larry down for a knockout. About 500 members witnessed the exhibition.

ALBANY BOUTS

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Although Frank Alanti of Pawtucket and Jim Howard of Chicago were matched for 10 rounds in the main event last night before the Knickerbocker A. C., they gave such a poor exhibition that half the crowd left before the battle was half over. It was only a series of hogging matches and love laves. The fighting was perhaps the worst the club has ever had.

In the semi-final Young Ghetto of New York and Mickey Sheridan of Chicago put up the real article in 10 classy rounds. The fight was fast and furious all the time. If there had been a decision doubtless Sheridan would have been given it, but as there was none the crowd good naturedly evened up on the two men.

PIERCE-KAUFMAN FIGHT

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—The Pierce-Kaufman bout last night was postponed until tonight because of the rain.

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN BY DR. HARVEY W. WILEY
WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, pure food expert, originator of the "poison squad," and "general adviser to the consuming public," has now undertaken to tell the housewives how to kill, pick, broil and fry chickens. Here are the directions for killing:

"Grasp the chicken when killing by the bony part of the skull. Do not let the fingers touch the neck."

"Make a small cut with a small, sharp-pointed knife on the right side of the roof of the chicken's mouth, just where the bones of the skull end."

"Brain for dry picking by thrusting the knife through the groove which runs along the middle line of the roof of the mouth until it touches the skull midway between the eyes."

"Use a knife which is not more than two inches long, one-fourth inch wide, with a thin, flat handle, a sharp point, and a straight cutting edge."

GOV. HASKELL

Now

GUTHRIE, Okla., Aug. 16.—Gov. Chas. N. Haskell is much in the public eye just now. It is said that should Senator Gore lose his seat at Washington, Lee Cruce, recently nominated by the democrats for the governorship, would appoint the present governor as Gore's successor and will stump the state for Haskell at the next election. Besides this, there is yet the unsettled battle over the removal of the state offices from Guthrie to Oklahoma City. Gov. Haskell has threatened to remove all state officials who refuse to move, and Atty. Gen. West has advised the state auditor not to cash warrants for state officers' expenses until the supreme court has finally passed on the removal of the capital.

GOV. HASKELL

LITTLE ONE MISTOOK KEROSENE FOR WATER

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Mistaking kerosene for water, Robin Millis, 3 years old, of 3 Oak street, corner Bowdoin, drank several mouthfuls of the oil yesterday and was removed to the City hospital in a serious condition.

Mrs. Millis at the time was visiting her youngest daughter, Dora, who lies ill at the City hospital. During her absence she left her daughter Elsa in charge of the house.

While the little girl, who is only 1 year old, was cleaning up the kitchen, Robin reached up to the table and, getting hold of the oil can, placed it to his lips and evidently was enjoying it when his sister turned around and caught him. She took the can away from him just as the mother returned. She immediately carried him to the hospital.

HORSE DISEASES

Troubles of the Respiratory Tract

Roaring, high blowing, thick wind, grunting—Roaring is a chronic condition in breathing caused by some sort of obstruction to the respiratory tract; polyp, thickened membrane, deformed bones, paralysis of the nostrils may cause the condition called roaring, and paralysis of the muscles of the larynx, this last being the cause for most cases of roaring.

Sometimes nervous horses will snort and make a blowing noise, which is not starting out, this being frequently the result from checking or forced cramping of the neck in some manner.

Chronic roaring shows no evidence of any disease of the larynx, excepting a wasting condition of the muscles; when roaring actually becomes confirmed no medicine will be of any use, but if the trouble is taken in hand early enough much may be expected from proper treatment. A skilled veterinary may operate successfully. Electricity may be effective. Absorbent or blistering is sometimes used.

To demonstrate a case of true roaring, drive rapidly up hill with good load requiring more than ordinary exertion. Some cases require more work than others to show the full characteristic sound. The breathing becomes rapid, nostrils expanded and the horse is almost suffocated. Never breed from a roarer. It seems transmissible.

Grunting does not always mean a true "roarer." Still such a horse is to be looked upon with suspicion. Of course, a horse afflicted with pleurisy, pneumonia, rheumatism, urinary and kidney trouble, may grunt when suddenly moved about or started up, but this circumstance does not indicate the "grunter" work him out by extra driving up hill with a load, testing his wind for signs of the roarer. Of course you would not try the sick horse for this purpose.

Sometimes roaring is confounded with high blowing. The latter is purely a nasal sound, nothing like roaring, and it is not a disease, just a habit. They soon stop high blowing if put to work. Whistling is only another sound of the roarer, although many horses affected with sore throat or lamed larynx produce a whistling sound when breathing; but upon recovery this peculiar noise in breathing passes away so too. Thick wind is another name for roarsers, or else it is connected with heaves, while horses too fat, pot bellied from too much hay food,

MANY PRISONERS

Have Been Taken to Omo Prison in Honduras

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 16.—A special from Spanish Honduras, under date of Aug. 10 says:

"Advices from Ceiba, Honduras, state. Several prisoners were brought in here from Armenia where a large number of Bonilla supporters gathered last week to await General Lee Christmus. One of those brought in today was Adolfo Meralda, a lawyer of considerable prominence, who was once judge of Trullio but whose sympathies with the Bonilla movement were very strong. He was made to walk the entire distance of thirty miles with his arms tied behind his back, tending rivers, climbing steep inclines, going through places where a man with both arms free has sometimes difficulty in passing. Fifty or more prisoners in this court were taken to Omo prison this morning. Prisoners immured there seldom leave it alive.

GENEROUS OFFER

Is Made by a Lee Millionaire

LEE, Aug. 16.—Roderick B. Andrews, many times a millionaire, showed himself a philanthropist yesterday when he announced that for every dollar saved and placed in the bank by Lee boys he would add a similar amount to their account.

Mr. Andrews wants the boys to save their pennies instead of spending them on cheap picture shows and ice cream cones.

He authorizes the following offer: "If any boy of Lee, of good character, will earn $1 and deposit it in the Lee Savings bank, with the purpose of starting an account, I will put $1 with it. All accounts thus started must remain in the bank until the depositors are of age."

Made Fortune in Stocks

Mr. Andrews will deposit a sum of money this week as a guarantee of good faith.

In the panic of 1907 he made a for-

ture on stocks, buying them right and left when they were at the lowest point, holding them till they reached the top level and unloading them. His pet stock was New York Central.

Only last spring, Mr. Andrews announced he was willing to bet $10,000 that Mayor Gaynor of New York city would be the next president of the United States and he is of the same opinion today. He believes Mayor Gaynor has made a record in New York city, and, with the sympathy aroused by the attempt to assassinate him the other day, he will be the most popular democrat in the land when the national convention is held.

The Lee philanthropist is a self-made man and was once a poor boy in Baltimore. Dame Fortune smiled upon him and he entered business, in Baltimore with successful results, until today he is ranked as many times a millionaire. He spends money lavishly upon the poor of the community.

SEARCH FOR MURDERER

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Posses of armed citizens are skirting the swamps near North Bergen, N. J., today searching for Bertrand Pond, who is wanted for the killing of Mrs. Mary Umschies in the presence of her six year old son. Pond killed the woman because she rejected his attentions.

THE BURKE FUND

HAS INCREASED TO THE SUM OF $7,000,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—It is more than eight years since John Masterson Burke, a wealthy but little known recluse, living at 18 West Forty-seventh street, announced a donation of $4,000,000 to found and endow a home for convalescents in or near Manhattan. The real estate and securities in which the money was invested enhanced in value and Mr. Burke during his lifetime made two other gifts. When he died on Dec. 2 last, at the age of 88 years, the Winifred Masterson Burke Foundation, as the endowment has been called, in memory of the founder's mother, was worth $5,000,000.

Mr. Burke left the greater part of his estate to the foundation. Relatives contested the will, but Surrogate Thomas decided last week that it was valid. Personal property worth $2,000,000, roughly speaking, thereby has been added to the foundation. The trustees have $7,000,000 with which to carry out Mr. Burke's purpose.

Nothing ever has been done toward building the home. The site has not even been selected. And there is little likelihood of any definite movement toward carrying out Mr. Burke's wishes being made in the immediate future.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

The attraction at the Lakeview theatre for the next two days is entitled "A Social Outlaw," a comedy drama in four acts, and the performance last night was attended by a good audience which showed its appreciation of the show. The leading part was taken by Mr. James Thatcher, and he took it in his usual strong manner, and was well supported by the rest of the company. Miss Florine Farr as "France" carried the part very well.

The play besides containing many strong dramatic incidents is full of humor, and furnishes no end of laughter.

"St. Elmo," the play which was presented here two weeks ago is to be given again the last three nights of this week, and should prove a drawing card. Upon its last performance here "St. Elmo" drew the largest house of any show this season. Next week comes the strongest bill of the season when the Wagenhals and Kemper company will present their special production of "Paid in Full." This is a genuine high priced company, and Lakeview performances are to be the initial presentations of the coming season.

BILLERICA

The selection of the town of Billerica gave a hearing last night on the petition of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company for the location of poles in the following thoroughfares: Billerica avenue between end of present Lowell Electric Light Corporation's line and driveway leading to town farm, nine poles; driveway between Billerica avenue and town farm, one pole; Delorey avenue between Chelmsford road and residence of F. P. Delorey; Billerica avenue between residence of D. J. Dowire and end of Lowell Electric Light Corporation's present line, 11 poles; one pair wire attachments each.

There were no remonstrants and the petitions were granted and signed by the selectmen.

A GOOD RULE TO FOLLOW

No doubt President Taft would be "delighted" if Mr. Ballinger should resign from the cabinet after the disclosures of the Pinchot hearing, but Ballinger may not resign, and Mr. Taft is too good-natured to apply the official boot where it is much needed. The president's weakness seems to be his desire to please everyone. This is a dangerous failing in a public man, for he who attempts to please everyone oftentimes succeeds in pleasing no one. If you have any important decisions to make, the best rule is to please yourself first, then if the rest of the world is satisfied, why well and good, and if no one else is satisfied you always have the consolation that one good man is satisfied at any rate.

NEED OF A WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

When a mill operative is mangled in a machine and sent to a hospital for treatment, what happens relative to his claim for damages?

The insurance companies that have by contract agreed to hold the corporation safe against all claims for damages send their doctors to examine the man with a view to minimize his injuries and their agents to look up every bit of evidence to prove that the accident was due to the victim's own carelessness.

They can go further and influence witnesses in favor of the injured man not to testify. This can be done through the employing company which can discharge any employee who appears as a witness against it in a case of damages, for the insurance company usually remains in the background while the corporation is made the defendant in the suit for damages.

All this is done while the mangled operative is in the hospital, it may be, hovering between life and death with no thought of possible litigation after his recovery or after his death if that be the outcome.

Assuming that he recovers but is disabled for life through no fault of his own, what redress does the employers' liability act furnish? None at all without a long legal battle in which he, a poor man, penniless and inexperienced in such matters, has to fight a large and wealthy corporation backed by insurance companies whose aim is to deny the justice of his claims and to defeat him if possible in the courts.

If he wins a verdict it is paid only after appeals to the supreme court or repeated trials that eat up the greater part if not all of the amount. Sometimes the verdict is not sufficient to meet the legal expenses and in the majority of cases there is a verdict for the defendant even when the claim for damages is one that should be sustained. But the plaintiff in such a case has not the experience, the legal resources or the other advantages possessed by the defense and hence, although his claim may be good, the chances of success are against him.

What is the remedy against this injustice to the injured operative?

It is a law known as the workmen's compensation act, such as has been adopted in twenty-two other countries and which gives entire satisfaction to all the parties concerned.

The agitation for a workmen's compensation act in this state dates back to 1903 when Governor Bates appointed a commission to consider the relations between employer and employee. That commission with other very excellent recommendations, reported in favor of a workmen's compensation act and submitted a draft of a bill for enactment by the legislature. That bill we are glad to say, was drawn by a Lowell man, William N. Osgood, and it has been before every legislature since that year in practically the same form as then reported.

At first, the interested insurance companies, the public service corporations and even the labor organizations regarded it as a menace. These interests packed the hearings in opposition to the measure and the voices raised in its favor were drowned in the storm of opposition. As the question was discussed, however, and as the injustice to the injured operative was exposed, public opinion became aroused and sentiment in regard to the question underwent a radical change.

This change was emphasized by the endorsement of ex-President Roosevelt, prominent labor leaders and others of national repute and by the declaration of Speaker Walker of the Massachusetts legislature after the hearing last year that this was the most important subject which had been before the legislature during the last session.

Even the insurance companies and the public service corporations are beginning to see the change in the public mind on this question and to prepare for the inevitable. The Boston Elevated Railway Co. is said to have sent attorneys to investigate the workings of the law in England and Germany, where it has been in operation for many years. The other countries in which the law is in force are: Austria, Belgium, British Columbia, Cape of Good Hope, Denmark, Finland, France, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Queensland, Russia, South Australia, Spain, Sweden and Western Australia.

What are some of the arguments in favor of such a law?

The first and most important is that a combination of liability insurance companies and employing corporations has practically nullified the protective benefits that the injured workman should derive from the employers' liability law.

During the past dozen years the employers' liability insurance companies in the United States collected about $100,000,000 of which 70 per cent was spent in expenses leaving but 30 per cent to meet damage claims. Of this amount the proportion that actually found its way into the pockets of the injured was probably less than one-half, or 15 per cent of the whole.

What are the results under the workmen's compensation act?

Only 10 per cent of the money paid out is consumed in expenses and 90 per cent goes to the injured workmen.

The workmen's compensation act provides a fixed sum as compensation for the loss of an eye, a hand, an arm and so on whether through the carelessness of the injured or somebody else. The money is to be paid over without any litigation except where there is reason to believe that the claim is fraudulent. Not only is this immeasurably better for the injured workman but for the state, for the court dockets are crowded with actions of tort which are to be contested at great length, thus involving great expense to the county. The aim of the compensation act is to give practically all the money paid out for damages or damage insurance to the injured workmen. The long and tedious litigation by which just claims, have often been defeated will be eliminated and justice will be done where now the highest injustice is wrought through a misapplication of the present law and the abuse of the courts of justice.

It is time the laboring people should wake up to their own interests on this matter. There will probably be hearings on this issue in different parts of the state, under the direction of the recess committee to which it was referred. Those hearings should be well attended and as the author of the bill is a Lowell man, our city should take a special interest in urging the enactment of the measure and thus securing fair treatment for the injured workmen instead of leaving them to fight a hopeless legal battle in which even a liberal verdict is eaten up in expenses.

SEEN AND HEARD

Mark Twain, as an example of "unconscious humor," used to quote a Hartford woman who said one day in the late spring:

"My husband is the dearest fellow. 'Jim,' I said to him this morning, 'are you very hard up now?'"

"I certainly am hard up," he replied, soberly. "This high cost of living is terrible. I don't know what I'm going to do."

"Then, Jim," said I, "I'll give up all thought of going to the country for July and August this year."

"But the dear fellow's face changed and he said:

"Indeed, then you won't, darling. I thought you wanted to buy a hat with an albatross or some such foolishness. No, no, my darling—Jim can always find the money to let his dear little wife go to the country." Hurrah! hurrah!

One of the most remarkable creatures known to natural history is the bowerbird, which builds a miniature cabin made of small sticks and surrounds it with a perfectly kept ring of flowers, composed of twigs and moss, studded with brilliantly colored flowers, fruits and insects. As the curious ornaments become faded they are constantly replaced by fresh ones, so that scientists are inclined to credit the bird with the possession of the artistic sense. In these decorated playgrounds the males meet and pay their court to the female, the bower being used purely for purposes of recreation and not as a nesting-place. These birds are chiefly found in the Owen Stanley Range of British New Guinea.—Wide World Magazine.

Tramp Steamer Has a Valuable Cargo

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Laden with the most valuable cargo brought to Boston for months, the British tramp steamer Atholl, of Leith, Capt. S. S. S. came in yesterday from oriental ports. She docked at pier 48, Mystic wharf.

There were curios aplenty on board the steamer. For ten minutes before the Atholl docked two rival boatmen, who were in rowboats at the steamer's side, engaged in a wordy battle as to who should get the job of running the lines. Above the noise they created could be heard the sweet notes of a Chinese mocking bird which was hung in a cage on the forward deck. The bird is of a very rare species and is valued at about $100.

In six heavily strapped boxes carried on the bridge deck were half a dozen monster pythons, measuring from 15 to 25 feet in length. The pythons were purchased at Singapore by the officers. They are well behaved reptiles and remained snugly in their cases during the long passage. A bucket full of water doused over each python every morning was all they received in the way of sustenance, but before they were taken on board they each had a feast of several rabbits, enough to last them for two months.

At Suez the Atholl took on 12 tons of Egyptian antiquities for the Metropolitan museum, New York. They were 52 cases of these antiquities, and the collection includes some of the most valuable excavations from the buried temples and tombs in Egypt.

The Atholl came from Yokohama, Kobe, Nippon, Shanghai, Hongkong, Singapore, Peking, picking up cargo at each port. The ship stopped at Suez, Port Said and Algiers. In the Atlantic the weather was favorable with the exception of a head current nearly all the way.

The steamer brought in 5400 tons of cargo, including 12,339 ingots and pieces of copper, loaded at Yokohama; thousands of quantities of tea skins, wool, spices, curios, jeton, tin, gambler, straw matting, human hair, bamboos, tiger and leopard skins, bristles, camphor, bean oil, toys, vegetable wax, rare porcelain, etc. The estimated value of the ship's cargo is $1,500,000.

The Atholl carries a crew of 38 Chinamen and they will be watched day and night to prevent any of them deserting while the vessel is in port.

PRESIDENT TAFT

SENDS A LETTER TO GOVERNOR EBERHART

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 16.—President Taft's interest in the second national conservation congress to be held in St. Paul, Sept. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, is shown in a letter to Gov. Eberhart of Minnesota.

The letter from the president, which follows, is used as the basis of letters to the governors who have given excuses for not attending the congress, urging them to reconsider the matter and come to St. Paul:

"Beverly, Mass., Aug. 6.

"Hon. A. O. Eberhart, Governor of Minnesota, St. Paul.

"Dear Governor: I acknowledge your letter of the 2nd, written from Boston, in which you request me to issue an invitation to the governors of the states to visit the conservation congress. I feel that I ought not to issue such an invitation since that matter is entirely in the hands of Mr. Baker, Mr. White and yourself, and should remain there; but I am glad to say to you that it is my sincere hope that the governors of the various states, by their attendance at the congress, will express the interest which I now feel in securing a full and valuable discussion of this great problem, which so much interests every American.

"William H. Taft."

It is believed in St. Paul that this letter from the president will be the means of bringing more governors to the congress than otherwise would be attended. It is recognized here that the time is not really the best for some of the governors. There are hot campaigns in some of the states and several of the governors are candidates for re-election. However, the president's letter is expected to show just where he stands on the conservation question and since he has agreed to come himself and urges the governors to do the same, there is no doubt will be a larger attendance of state executives than has been expected.

Monday, Sept. 5, is to be President's and Governors' day at the congress and former President Roosevelt has expressed the wish that it will be the big day. The address of the president and the meeting of the governors are the only things on the program for that day. The governors will talk on any phase of the conservation congress that suits them and the states they represent and much of value is expected to come from these speeches.

TARIFF AND TRUSTS

Are Blamed for the High Cost of Living

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The tariff of trade, the wholesale grocers, lumber dealers—associations that have contributed largely to the advance in prices and the frands perpetrated by manufacturers of certain goods in reducing the weight of contents of packages from 20 to 50 per cent and maintaining the same price.

"The methods of the meat trust," they declare, "seem to be admirably adapted to taking from the consumer and the producer the largest amount that the traffic will bear. Their destruction of local competitors cannot be improved upon." As what they call a "sample of the working of our combines," they say that "while everywhere else in the world the price of harvesting machinery has been appreciably reduced since 1900, in the United States it has been materially increased. The increase," they add, "started nearly contemporaneously with the Dingley tariff."

As to wages, they say that "the fear that wages would fall if the tariff were removed, and the fall in prices would not be a clear gain to the consumer, is not warranted by the experience of Great Britain. Great Britain is a free-trade nation, and it is the most prosperous nation in the world except our own. Shoals of emigrants from the tariff-ridden nations of France, Germany, Italy and Russia go to England to work. But Englishmen do not emigrate to those countries because the standard of living is lower. The general testimony is that the rate of wages for all mechanical trades is substantially higher in Great Britain than in those protectionist countries, while the prices of necessities are lower, leaving the Englishman a wider margin to live upon."

"It is about sixty years since Great Britain adopted free trade, and during that time, according to a table published in Whitaker's Almanac, wages have increased 81.7 per cent and prices only 2 per cent. It is, therefore, well seen that the abolition of the tariff in England did not bring down the rate of wages. Neither would it in this country. If we remove the obstruction, allowing prices to sink to their natural level, the question of wages may be trusted to take care of itself."

Replying to the majority's statement, in its report, that an "increased demand for farm products is a cause of advancing prices, the minority cites the wheat crop as having increased from less than 7 bushels per capita in 1900, to more than 8 in 1909; corn from 27 to 30 bushels per capita; and potatoes from almost 3 to more than 4 bushels. Notwithstanding the increase in the price of farm products, the farmer, they say, "has realized a small net return on his labor and investment by reason of the increased cost of the articles necessary for him to purchase to carry on his business."

RIOT IN STREETS

Heads Cut and Faces Bruised in East Boston

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Riotous scenes were enacted in East Boston last evening, several persons being injured by blackjacks and baseball bats. In a fight between two "gangs" one of which was seeking revenge because of an incident that occurred the previous evening.

The police finally broke up the fight, but not until eight young men were taken into custody. A number of these had their faces and heads cut and received several bruises on various parts of their bodies. Many others whom they were unable to locate afterward were cut and bruised, the police believe.

A dozen or more young men, ranging in ages from 17 to 22, all living in the North End district, crossed the ferry to East Boston about 8 last evening. The crowd started immediately to "clean up" the young men and boys who frequent Border, Maverick, Sumner and Liverpool streets. The battle waged for 15 minutes.

Eight persons were arrested. They are Emanuel Rouen, 20 years old, 435 Hanover street; Louis Pello, 22, Prince street; William Glango, 19, 368 Hanover street; John Sackett, 22, 184 Salem street; Prisco Ambrosia, 20, 12 Greenough lane; Costanzo Solli, 20, 94 Prince street; Salvatore Bellis, 17, 10 Battery street; and Giuseppe Caruso, 18, 8 Salutation street.

The only statement that the police claim to have been able to get from the arrested young men was made to Patrolman Michael Alessi of the East Boston station, who is of Italian parentage. One of the prisoners stated to this policeman that a young man of the Italian colony of the North End was in East Boston Sunday night and because of the abuse which he and the young lady that accompanied him received, he was much provoked and made his feelings known to his home crowd.

Before hostilities had been opened many of the invaders, it is claimed, provided themselves with either a bat or blackjack, and that this is true was evidenced in the office of the East Boston station last night, where half a dozen bats and blackjacks, the latter about a foot in length, were on exhibition which had been taken away, the police say, from members of the arrested gang.

So far as is known the East Boston contingent escaped without any bloody marks, while several of the North Enders required the service of a physician to dress their wounds. The East Boston contingent escaped arrest.

Dr. James J. McDevitt treated those who required assistance at the station house, the police not finding it necessary to send any of them to the hospital.

It appears that the North End delegation had been in East Boston but a few minutes when the trouble started. They walked from the ferry landing up Border street to a point about midway between Maverick and Sumner streets, and here the first blows were alleged to have been struck.

J. Kearney claims to have been standing at the corner of Border and Sumner streets. He stated to a reporter last night that the invaders seemed to be excited and all were talking in Italian. Kearney watched and when they had gone along about 200 yards he saw bats, bricks and stones were flying through the air.

From the Border street start the fight spread to the corner of Border and Maverick streets and then farther along on Border street near the plant of the Atlantic works an encounter took place.

The three engagements perhaps consumed between 10 and 15 minutes' time, during which more than 1000 people gathered. Patrolman Edward P. Murphy was on duty in that section last night and he was the first policeman on hand. He gave chase, but before he arrived word had been passed along and the fight broke up. Murphy got out of the crowd and rushing him to the station house, some five minutes' walk away, he called for reinforcements.

In the meantime Kearney, who had overheard, he claims, the remarks about bloodshed, got into the battle. Kearney forced three into a doorway. Sergt. William P. Auburns was soon on the spot and he placed these three under arrest.

The warning having been sounded by Murphy at the station, Sergt. Daniel J. Stweeney sent out Patrolmen Patrick Hickey, George Greer, Stoddard, Trekin and Samuel Kelly and they apprehended four more of the alleged trouble-makers.

The young men will be arraigned at this forenoon's session of the East Boston district court on the charge of disturbing the peace.

PRES. CANNON

Gives Some Facts to the Fraternal Congress

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 16.—Growing demands by state insurance departments for regulation of the ten billions of fraternal insurance, coupled with the endorsement by representatives of both the National Fraternal Congress and the Associated Fraternities of America of the regulation bill proposed and the co-operation of those two great organizations on all matters of legislation during the past year was disclosed by the annual report of President Thomas H. Cannon of Chicago to the National Fraternal Congress which began its sessions today at Hotel Ponchartraine.

The ultimate amalgamation of the Associated Fraternities of America with the National Fraternal Congress in a giant merger, that would mark the victory of the sound principles to which the congress has been pledged was indicated as possible. President Cannon said: "Should the revised tentative bill become the law generally it would be passed to the law. The congress may then, looking after 10 years, all the reputable fraternal societies of the land." What he termed "scandalous transactions in the merger of fraternal societies" were scathingly denounced by President Cannon, who recommended that action be taken by the congress regarding them in behalf of the good name of fraternal insurance in general.

State Supervision

"The trend of the times seems to indicate a demand for more active state supervision by the respective insurance departments," said President Cannon. This demand has been formulated through the Insurance Commissioners' conventions and during the year there were submitted to the societies by the fraternal committee of the insurance commissioners a series of some 30 questions calling for information regarding the internal management of our associations. Some unfortunate scandals arising out of the merger of societies have accentuated the demand for order and more active state supervision.

"During the past year there have been two important conferences between the fraternal committee of the insurance commissioners' convention and the officers of fraternal societies for the purpose of formulating a uniform fraternal society law. The first of these conferences was held in Chicago and the second in New York. At the first conference a tentative bill was drafted. This bill was the outcome of an exhaustive discussion between the insurance commissioners and the society representatives. It was not entirely satisfactory to all concerned and after it was printed and circulated a final conference was had on June 15th at New York for the purpose of overcoming the objections raised and of moulding the bill into more satisfactory shape to all those interested."

The Insurance Demand

"The insurance commissioners' fraternal committee takes the position that the societies should be placed upon a safe and solvent basis and that the societies should be compelled to take such steps in regard to rates of assessments as would place them upon this footing and that this result should follow by mandatory legislation governing all societies alike. The societies' representatives were informed that this was the purpose of the insurance commissioners and that unless the societies would agree, legislation in the matter of a force bill would be pressed by the insurance commissioners."

"The outcome of the New York conference was a compromise tendered by some of the representatives of the fraternal societies which, in brief, provided that those societies at present not having adequate rates of contribution might be allowed, within a reasonable time, to progress to a condition of solvency. This compromise is incorporated in section 22a of the revised tentative bill, which will be before this congress for discussion and action."

"Your executive committee stood firmly for the principles of the National Fraternal Congress, as heretofore enunciated. They decided, however, to report upon the compromise sections of the bill to this congress and are agreed that the revised tentative bill, under the circumstances, is the best that can be secured and will insure the united co-operation of all fraternal in the enactment into law of a uniform bill."

High Finance is Grilled

Concerning the mergers of fraternal societies which he referred to as "scandalous transactions," President Cannon said: "Regardless of the rights of members, promoters of high finance have undertaken to merge the memberships of different organizations. The main object scoundrelly has been to grab the funds of the societies, pay large commissions to the merger promoters and entirely ignore the rights of the members. These transactions have been ventilated in the courts with no credit to the parties concerned and have given occasion to the enemies of the fraternal system to decry the whole system as unsafe and unsound. As a consequence, the good name of the fraternal insurance in general has been assailed and it is my opinion, therefore, that this congress should take some action or give some expression as to its position on the merging of fraternal societies."

Co-operation between the congress and the associated fraternities in litigation affecting fraternal insurance in general was mentioned by President Cannon. Important decisions in New York, Iowa and Texas were reviewed. The organization of an association of the general counsel of fraternal societies in both the N. F. C. and A. F. of A. camps was announced.

Uniform systems of accounting satisfactory to the Insurance Commissioners' convention have been proposed.

NIGHT EDITION

SPAULDING'S SHOE SHOP

"Infant" Industry Working 52 Weeks Per Year

The first annual outing of the employees of the L. H. Spaulding shoe shop will take place on Aug. 27th, when the entire plant will close down for the entire day and the company will entertain its employees at Nahasset grove.

In Haverhill, Brockton, Lynn and other big shoe-manufacturing cities the shoe shop outings are annual events of more than ordinary importance and it is pleasing to see the Lowell shoe shops following the examples of the other cities. The Federal company started the annual shoe shop outings in Lowell and the Spaulding company has taken up the practice.

The manufacturing of shoes in Lowell is somewhat of an infant industry, but is a lusty and fast developing industry, and according to Secretary Murphy of the board of trade more than one shoe concern is looking at Lowell as a good place in which to establish a plant.

The L. H. Spaulding plant came here from Woburn, N. H., some eight years ago, starting in with a modest plant. Now its business takes up a considerable portion of two buildings and it averages 350 employees, who work the full 52 weeks per year.

The Spaulding company is engaged in the manufacture of McKay shoes, men's and women's slippers and men's "nullifiers." Last, like the writer, there may be some who don't know what a "nullifier" is, we glean the information from Mr. Daniel Dunn, the expert shoe manufacturer, who has charge of all the shoemaking of the Spaulding plant, that a "nullifier" is a man's house shoe, made with a gore.

The product of this plant tramps the entire world, for they ship not only to all parts of America, but to South America, Europe, Porto Rico and the Philippines, so that Lowell-made shoes beat the products of many climates and undoubtedly do their share of climbing.

The making, packing and finishing departments of the Spaulding company occupy three large floors in the mammoth building at the corner of Rock and Willie streets, also occupied by the White, Mfg. Co. The sewing and stitching departments occupy the top floor of the Stover & Bean shop in the C. I. Hood building. So prosperous has the company been under the efficient management of Mr. Dunn that more room will soon be needed and the company may yet be seen with all its departments in one large plant.

Mr. David Emery is the superintendent of the plant while Mr. Dunn is the practical shoe-maker. Mr. Dunn was for many years connected with the big concern of Luddy and Currier of Lynn and what he doesn't know about the business isn't worth knowing.

Speaking briefly of the shoe industry in Lowell, Mr. Dunn said: "Of course the shoe industry in Lowell is practically a new industry, but growing, and therefore it is new to the working classes of Lowell. We have to break in many of our help as we do the others, whereas if located in cities that have shoe shops for years we would have a surfeit of experienced applicants for work. There is one thing I must say for Lowell help. They are a fine class of help. We have no difficulty in getting good help. But then one can always get good help when his plant gives them 52 weeks in the year as we do. "We employ both men and women, the latter being all together in the sewing and stitching department in the Hood building. We expect to make our coming outing a grand success."

It is interesting to note that the Spaulding company is engaged in the manufacture of McKay shoes, men's and women's slippers and men's "nullifiers." Last, like the writer, there may be some who don't know what a "nullifier" is, we glean the information from Mr. Daniel Dunn, the expert shoe manufacturer, who has charge of all the shoemaking of the Spaulding plant, that a "nullifier" is a man's house shoe, made with a gore.

DUPES OF WOMAN

Who for Five Years Posed as a Man

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Several hundred men and women in New York city first gasped with astonishment and then laughed, yesterday, when they read the amazing story of "Alas Al Martinez," or Elena B. Smith, who for five years had posed as a man, and in man's clothing had gone through all sorts of masculine experiences, from business to "rough houses," and had never been suspected. These were the persons with whom "Al Martinez" worked and played, and at whom she is now quietly laughing, demurely and femininely clad, at the Hotel Brevoort.

In business establishments where the supposed young "Spaniard" had been employed the routine of the morning was everywhere broken up by reminiscences, excited gossip and laughter. The stenographers, telephone operators and other women employees thought it was not so surprising that they had not discovered the secret of Martinez, because they had not been closely associated with him.

Consequently they bantered men workers who had gone to cafes, to the races, to ball games and even to boxing matches with "Al" and had not dreamed they were going about with a woman. Moreover, they had given "him" their confidence about love affairs, matrimonial difficulties, debts, and so on, and had used language to "him" that would have been considered most shocking to a woman.

"You may assure all my young men friends, however," said Mrs. Smith yesterday, "that I'll never tell any of what I've been with them or what they said to me. Even if I am a girl again I'll keep to the male code of honor about such things."

At the first business place where "Al Martinez" worked after taking up that role in Boston and coming here—the tobacco manufactory of Jacob Stahl, Jr., now at First avenue and Ninety-eighth street—"Al" is still well remembered. Mr. Stahl was not there yesterday, but a forewoman of the factory (who asked that her name be withheld) said:

a trifle chagrined at first when asked about this.

But when he saw the smiling faces of the bookkeepers and heard the open giggles of the girls about the place Mr. Bernhard enjoyed a hearty laugh at his own expense.

At the cloth importing house of Greeff & Co. at Mercer and Spring streets, most of the laughs, apparently, were at the expense of W. James Faith, the manager, who not only advanced young Martinez many times but when he left gave him a letter testifying to how honest and capable a "young man" the bearer was. Mr. Faith, however, did not appear yesterday.

"Don't ask me about Martinez," said Mr. Day, the head bookkeeper. "Of course, he worked here. I've been hearing nothing but Martinez all day. No, I never knew he was a woman—never suspected. But ask Mr. Faith; he's the boss."

In a Spring street cafe nearby they remembered the slim young Spaniard, and the bartender enjoyed telling how Martinez used to put his feet on the rail with the rest of the Greeff employees. This was in the fall of 1908.

Nearly is a hand-hoop man, who lays odds on the horse races. "I knew Martinez well," he said. "On days when he couldn't get to the track he used to bet with my book, and he did pretty well."

Not one person could be found in any of the places that employed "Al Martinez," who over suspected that the slim Spaniard was a woman. Many of Martinez's "pals" called up Mrs. Smith at her hotel yesterday to congratulate her on her cleverness.

For a long time Frank Strachan, a young real estate salesman who worked with Martinez for the Laurenton Land company, could not believe the story.

"Why, I feel as if I had lost an old chum," he told a friend. "Al and I were as close friends as two men could be. I have even been up to his house and met his wife. I never dreamed he was anything else but one of the boys. Well, I hope I meet him—or her—again."

LOWELL MILITIA

Will Take Part in Sham Battle at Canobie

A very enthusiastic meeting was held after mass at the Canobie Lake theatre Sunday, for the lawn party in aid of the Immaculate Conception church at Salem Depot, to be held next Saturday afternoon and evening, at the ball grounds in the park.

The various committees reported a very favorable week and by Saturday everything will be in readiness for the big event.

After the meeting the committee on the sham battle together with Lieut. Southworth, Co. L. Lawrence, and Lieut. Doyle, Co. G. of Lowell, proceeded to the ball grounds and there laid plans for the sham battle. A fort which is to take in the whole northwest corner of the grounds, will be erected for the defending force and the invaders will enter over the fence at a point only known to themselves. Upon taking their position of attack they will advance under fire of the company in possession of the fort. Should the invaders force the defenders from their stronghold, they will take possession of the fortification and await a like attack from the company just driven out, which after scaling the fence behind the fort, will re-enter the field and strive to retake the stronghold. Should the invading army hold the invaders at bay, the prize will be theirs. Should the defenders retake the fort, however, the contest will be decided a draw.

Prominent militia men will referee the contest and award the winning company the beautiful cup, donated by Peter Graham, the Methuen blacksmith.

Both companies will arrive at the lake about 3.30 o'clock, where they will pitch their tents.

At 5 o'clock the competition drill will take place. This feature will give the onlooker an idea of what is expected of militia men and should prove spectacular as well as interesting.

After the drill the boys will return to their respective mess tents and partake of refreshments, prepared for them by the young ladies on the committee.

At 7 o'clock the battle begins and then a performance starts which not even Coney Island is capable of reproducing.

Superintendent Woodman of the Southern New Hampshire railroad has arranged for extra cars to accommodate the large crowd expected to attend the lawn party.

MILK CONTRACTORS

Say That Schedule Adopted by Railroads is Excessive

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—The controversy over the transportation of milk turned up before the Interstate commerce committee today when three local contractors claimed that the schedule recently adopted by the Boston & Maine, the Maine Central and the St. Johnsbury & Lake Champlain railroads are excessive.

The petitioners were the Boston Dairy company, D. Witting & Sons and H. P. Hood & Son, and their attorneys, who claimed that the new rates in Massachusetts were unreasonable and an increase of 175 per cent for distances under 40 miles from Boston, and from 60 to 100 per cent outside that limit.

The railroad attorney said that the Saunders act had forced the railroads into making a new rate. The railroads did set $100 a day more for the carrying of milk but 35¢ is consumed in icing and $5 in extra clerical work so that the railroads are naming nothing under the revised conditions.

Some of the milk lawyers asked that the hearing be postponed until after the Saunders could be repealed, but Commissioner Pratt declined to allow it, saying that the controversy had been going on for years and that it was time to settle it.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS REPORTED

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 16.—Six new cases of infantile paralysis were reported today. This was the largest number of cases reported in one day since the epidemic first started. Four of the children live in this city, one in Cumberland and one in Riverpoint.

SEEKS HER HUSBAND

Woman Wants Him to Share Legacy She Got

HARTFORD, Aug. 16.—Bent with the infirmities of age and from a long period of physical suffering, Mrs. Albert G. Finney, aged 70, left here last night for Plainfield in search of her husband, who believes that she died years ago from spinal meningitis. She feels that he is in need of her, and although it is possible he has since remarried, she has decided to find him.

Only in the brightness of her eyes was there anything to indicate that the aged woman, who leaned heavily on a cane, was about to set forth on a quest of love. Her once brown hair had become as snow since she and her husband had lived happily together. Her step has lost its vigor, her hand shakes, but her love has lost none of its strength, and she depends upon it to support her on the strange mission.

Mrs. Finney was married thirty-nine years ago, and four years later was taken ill with spinal meningitis. For thirty-four years she was unable to walk or get out of bed. Two years ago, to the surprise of physicians, she became well and has regained some of her old strength.

At the time she became ill her husband was connected with the firm of Finney & Vale of Waterbury. He employed the best doctors to treat her, and she was sent to various hospitals. Mr. Finney spent almost his entire substance, and when a business depression occurred he became bankrupt.

Mrs. Finney was then thrown upon the charity of the city, and remained in a hospital as a public charge.

She frequently was visited by her husband, who was struggling along with difficulty. One day when he reached the hospital the attendants would not admit him to his wife's room as she said she was dying. Heartbroken and almost penniless, Finney left and did not return. He went away from Hartford supposing his wife had died.

Nonos Rzmbywyzw r

Recently Mrs. Finney received a legacy from an unexpected source, and was again made independent. She at once began a search for her lost spouse, and has found a clue which takes her to Plainfield. She is under the impression her husband is employed there in insurance work, and depends upon instinct to ferret him out.

All insurance offices in Hartford have been visited by her, and she has been again made independent. She at once began a search for her lost spouse, and has found a clue which takes her to Plainfield. She is under the impression her husband is employed there in insurance work, and depends upon instinct to ferret him out.

"I simply want to share my legacy with him," she said. "I don't care if he has remarried. All I want to do is help him. He was good to me when I was ill and helpless. And I love him."

Mrs. Finney lives at the South Mayd Home, No. 885 North Main street, Waterbury, and when not searching for her husband, spends her time revisiting the scenes of her early married life.

FOR A.O.H. WEEK
Committee to Confer With Board of Trade

Upon receipt of the communication of the board of trade notifying the Central council of the A. O. H. of the appointment of a special committee to act with it in connection with the program of Hibernian week, the central body met in special session and appointed a sub-committee to confer with the board of trade committee tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock at the board of trade rooms. The A. O. H. committee consists of Humphrey O'Sullivan, Daniel E. Hogan, Michael McNeill, Patrick Connolly, John C. O'Rourke, James O'Sullivan, Hugh R. McQuade, John P. Sheehan, John Barrett, Robert J. Crowley and John W. McEvoy.

The board of trade committee is as follows: Chairman, Harvey B. Greene, president of the board; secretary, John H. Murphy; Dr. J. E. Lamoureux, chairman of the school board; Walter Gayette; John A. Hunnewell, manager of the Lowell Electric Light Co.; Patrick O'Hearn, John C. Burke, Frederick A. Fisher, Daniel Carroll, Elsie J. Neale, Harry Dunlap, Henry L. Rourke and Frank P. Putnam.

It is expected that this committee's work will be principally looking after and entertaining the distinguished visitors who are slated to come to this city.

Judging from the manner in which the decorators are scurrying around town, there will be a general display of bunting throughout the city. The first display to appear was on Hibernian hall in Merrimack square, which went up today.

The Wolf Tone Guards will meet tonight to receive final orders for the great parade.

DIED IN ASYLUM

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Miss Mary Hammel, whose eventful life extended back eighty-one years, was buried yesterday in the family plot at Elmhurst, L. I. Miss Hammel, granddaughter of Philip Freneau, who once opposed Washington for the presidency, and who was called by Washington Irving "The Barking Dog of the Revolution," spent a life brimming over with trouble. Losing her family by death, she finally lost her fortune and would have been penniless but for friends.

Several years ago Miss Hammel and sister were swindled out of their estate. Soon after Miss Hammel was found starving in an old house in Flushing. Friends aided her, and finally her property was restored. Two years ago her mind became unbalanced after an automobile accident, and she was placed in the Central Islip asylum, where she died.

HIS THROAT CUT

Griffin Was Searching For Restelli, Alleged Murderer

QUINCY, Aug. 16.—Griffin found dead this morning; throat cut" was the text of a message received here today by Chief of Police Burrell of Quincy and bearing the signature of Chief McEachern of North Sydney, N. S. W. Griffin, who is believed to belong in Lynn, conducted on his own account a search for Luigi Restelli, the Italian stone worker who killed two persons and wounded three others in this city nearly three weeks ago. Chief Burrell does not know whether the message intended to convey the idea of suicide or murder and is awaiting further advice. Griffin had sent several telegrams to Mayor Shea and Chief Burrell detailing various incidents of his pursuit of the person whom he suspected of being Restelli. He was also dissatisfied with the apparent inaction the North Sydney police displayed in failing to apprehend the person whom he suspected of being the fugitive murderer. Finally, upon Griffin's representations an Italian was detained by the North Sydney police. This man, however, did not answer the description of the fugitive and upon his proving that he came from Richmond, Ind. He was discharged from custody.

Chief Burrell received another telegram this morning which was signed by a Boston man and stated: Restelli would reach Utica, N. Y. on a train arriving in that city at 10.15 today. Although the chief did not place any faith in the announcement nevertheless he arranged with the Utica police to have the train men or the passengers subjected to a close scrutiny.

BUILDING INSPECTOR

Committee Says the Station Can Get Along for Some Time Without a New Boiler — New School in Pawtucketville — Meetings Tonight

This committee on lands and buildings, Aldermen Qua and Byram; Councilmen Whittier, Howe and Tarrant, has said that the Central fire station can get along all right for a year or so without a new boiler. The insurance inspectors, who are in every way state inspectors, have said that a new boiler should be installed at the Central fire station, but the inspectors did say in their recommendation that the old boiler was not dangerous. The inspectors recommended a new boiler lest the old one should go bad in cold weather.

James Dow, inspector of buildings, called for bids on a new boiler for the Central fire station allowing, of course, that the committee on lands and buildings would endorse the recommendation of the inspectors for a new boiler. It may be that Mr. Dow's action in calling for bids before the money had been appropriated was influenced to a certain extent by the present pump controversy between the water board and the committee on appropriations. The committee recommending that bids on the pump be called for before the money is appropriated, but, be that as it may, Mr. Dow called for the bids and now the committee on lands and buildings throws him down.

You can't keep a good man down any more than you can keep a squirrel on the ground. Mr. Dow will be heard from before the coming of the harvest moon. He allows that what the insurance inspectors, or state inspectors say, costs, and the chances are that if he can scrape up money enough from some other appropriation the Central fire station will have a new boiler.

New School House

The Oblate Fathers have been granted a permit to build a school house in Fourth avenue. The building will contain three class rooms and two store rooms. It will be 50 by 40 feet and one story high. The estimated cost is $4500.

James Evans has been granted a permit to build a two-family house, two and one-half stories high, in Methuen street. The building will be 26 by 53 feet and the estimated cost is $4000.

Two Meetings Tonight

There are two city hall meetings scheduled for tonight; the board of charities and the committee on fire department. The aldermanic committee appointed to interview the chairman and superintendent of the former board of charities relative to their refusal to sign the annual report of the board for 1909 has not yet reported. The report has not yet gone to the printer because it has not been signed.

Marriage Intentions

The following marriage intentions have been registered since the last were published:

Robert L. Lee, 35, foreman, 31 Mead street and Isabelle L. Hunter, 23, operative, same address.

Henry Melver, 23, gardener, 86 East Merrimack street and Theresa McDermott, 22, maid, Hensburg, Scotland.

James R. McNally, 42, police officer, 73 Fletcher street, and Catherine V. Holmes (nee Lang), (widow), 41, at home, 127 Hastings street.

William Hillier, 38, merchant, 23 Iron street, Johnston, Pa., and Katherine Zelda Taborsky, 23, at home, 65 Railroad street.

HATTIE LEBLANC'S TRIAL

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—The trial of Hattie Leblanc, charged with the murder of Clarence Glover of Waltham, originally assigned for October 3 at the East Cambridge court house may be held in September. Today District Attorney Higgins conferred with Chief Justice Aiken and later the clerk of courts was ordered to refrain from sending out the notices calling for the trial in October.

District Attorney Higgins wishes an earlier date for the trial.

A conference to fix the date will be held by all parties interested in the office of the chief justice at Greenfield tomorrow.

THREE MEN KILLED

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—The Iron Mountain fast mail train which left at 2.30 this morning was wrecked near Piedmont, Mo. The train consisted of mail cars. Poplar Bluff dispatches say that three men were killed. At the headquarters of the road this report is denied.

PICKED HIS POCKETS

Man Robbed While Asleep on the Common

Thief Arrested by Aid of a Man Who Witnessed the Theft—Man in Court for Stealing Check for $110

Abraham Habiaka was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with the larceny of $110 from the American Express company. He entered a plea of not guilty and by agreement the case was continued till Thursday, the defendant being held under $500 bonds.

According to the police a number of Syrians in Lawrence collected $110 to send to a fellow-countryman, Hassan L. Abdell, who is in hard circumstances in Venezuela. An American Express money order for the amount was secured and the latter had been taken to Abdell. It is alleged that Habiaka sent an envelope with a blank slip of paper to Venezuela and on March 17 of this year came to Lowell and presented the money order and forging the name of Abdell secured the $110.

Several weeks later when Abdell wrote to his friends in Lawrence that he had not received the money the matter was reported to the police and Sunday Habiaka was arrested in Fall River and brought to this city yesterday.

In court this morning Lawyer James F. Owens, who appeared for the government, stated that before the larceny case came to trial he would swear out complaints of forgery and uttering against the defendant.

Robbed While Asleep on Common

Charles J. Lunney, aged 45 years and claiming a residence in Gorham street, this city, was arrested in South street near the South common shortly before nine o'clock by Patrolman Daniel Cogger. The latter had been informed by Michael McMahon of 36 Franklin street that he had seen Lunney "go through" the clothing of a drunken man who was lying on one of the seats in the corner of the common near the junction of Thorndike and Summer streets.

After Lunney had been brought back to the place where the drunken man was lying a telephone call was sent in for the patrol wagon and when that vehicle arrived Lunney and his alleged victim, who was in a comatose condition, were bundled into the wagon and taken to the police station. Lunney was booked for larceny from the person and the other man, who was unable to give his name, was booked for drunkenness.

At about 8:45 o'clock this morning there were quite a number of people on the common. Some were sleeping off the effects of the night before and others were waiting for a bus. When the "eye opener" in the morning while others were waiting for a bus. When the "eye opener" in the morning while others were waiting for a bus.

Stretched out on one of the benches near the corner of Thorndike and Summer streets was a drunken man. Despite the fact that some boys had tried to arouse the man from his slumbers their efforts went for naught for the man was "dead to the world."

Seated on a bench a short distance away was Michael McMahon, of 36 Franklin street and from time to time he looked in the direction of the seat occupied by the intoxicated man. On one occasion when he glanced in that direction he noticed a person near the seat who was acting in a very suspicious manner. Keeping a close watch on the latter he saw the stranger place his hands in the pockets of the trunks of the drunken man and take a watch and chain and what looked to be money. The man then walked off.

Mr. McMahon immediately realized that there was something wrong and decided to follow the man until he ran across a police officer.

Following at a distance behind the man in order not to attract attention Mr. McMahon continued until he reached the corner of South and Summer streets where he met Patrolman Daniel Cogger. McMahon told his story to the officer and the latter detained the stranger who proved to be Lunney. Lunney denied that he had stolen anything from the man and quite reluctantly agreed to accompany the officer back to where the drunken man was lying on the seat.

On the way up Summer street Patrolman Cogger asked Supt. Welch passing through Thorndike street and calling him over had McMahon relate his story to the superintendent.

The superintendent, Patrolman Cogger, McMahon and Lunney went over to where the man was lying on the seat but all attempts to revive the man proved without avail.

Turning to Lunney Supt. Welch asked: "Did you get any money from this man?"

"He gave me 50 cents to get a pint of booze," was Lunney's reply.

"Is that all?"

"Yes sir."

"How much money have you in your pocket?"

MURDER SUSPECT THE INDIAN LANDS

Police Think They Will Have Him Claim That Government Was Justified in Delaying Sale

SOMERSWORTH, N. H., Aug. 16.—At a late hour last night, the police had received no news of the arrest of Nicholas Capsalis, for whom Sheriff Smith of Dover and two of his deputies, Elmer Clark and Loren Casler, have been searching since Sunday. Sheriff Smith returned last evening to Dover from Boston. He spent the day in Boston and Brockton, but had obtained no trace of the alleged murderer. Deputy Sheriff Clark, it is understood, will visit Lawrence after he concludes his search at Lowell. Deputy Casler is searching in Portland.

The fact that no trace of Capsalis' trunk was found at Biddeford yesterday led to further inquiries at the Boston & Maine station at Dover. The statement made by an assistant baggage-master there Sunday that the trunk was rechecked from there to Biddeford Sunday was declared last night to have been incorrect.

Asst. Herbert Hall of Dover, who did most of the checking Sunday, says he is quite sure that no trunk was then transferred from Somersworth to Biddeford. Without having the number of the check given Capsalis at Somersworth, it was impossible to tell in which direction the trunk had been sent. As the checking sheet is sent to Boston each day, a comparison there of the sheets made out here and at Dover last night Thursday and Sunday night it is thought might furnish a clue. The Somersworth check numbers, however, are not always taken down, he said, because of lack of time, and it might not have been in this instance.

RELATIVES IN BROCKTON

BROCKTON, Aug. 16.—The police have been asked to watch for Nicholas Capsalis, wanted for the alleged murder of his aunt at Somersworth, N. H. Capsalis has friends and relatives here, which leads the New Hampshire police to think that he might come here.

He found persons who know Capsalis very well and talked with them, but did not succeed in locating his man.

NOT IN PORTLAND

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 16.—Deputy Sheriff Loren D. Casler of Somersworth, N. H., came here yesterday to try to find Nicholas Capsalis, Police Captain Thompson detailed Patrolman McLaughlin to go with him and they worked for hours, but without success.

DEATHS

MADDEN—The many friends of Mrs. Margaret Madden, widow of the late Patrick Madden, formerly of Forge Village, will be pained to learn of her death, which occurred at her home at Fishkill on the Hudson, N. Y., where she moved after the death of her husband here a few years ago.

Mrs. Madden had been in poor health for many years, but her death occurred suddenly. The body was brought to Greenville today for burial. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Henry Post and Miss Mary T. and Miss Nellie Madden; one son, John, and one granddaughter.

HARNDEN—Mrs. Mary Harnden, an old resident of Groton, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Harrington, with whom she made her home in that town.

Mrs. Harnden was 84 years, 4 months and 21 days. She was a native of Wilmington, but had lived in Groton over 50 years.

She had nine children, four of whom survive her: Mrs. Etta Savage of Chelsea, Mrs. Lida Clark and Mrs. Fannie Harrington of Groton, and Mrs. Irene Leighton of Concord, N. H., and one stepson, John Harnden of Iowa. She was also survived by three brothers, Samuel Harnden of Lowell, Otis of Haverhill, and Henry of Reading, and two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Mann of Los Angeles, Cal., and Mrs. Lizzie Jenkins of Wakefield.

SMITH—J. Andrew Smith, for many years a well known resident of Lowell, died yesterday in Lawrence, at the age of 65 years. Besides his wife, Bridget, he leaves two daughters, Jennie Land and Julia M., and three sons, John, Andrew and Joseph. The body was taken to the undertaking rooms of J. P. O'Donnell & Sons.

THAXEIRA—Maria Thaxeira, aged 3 months, child of John and Rosa Thaxeira, died yesterday afternoon at the home of her parents, 406 Central street. The funeral took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the home of her parents. Burial was in the Catholic cemetery. Undertakers M. H. McDonough & Sons had charge.

HOGAN—Annie Hogan, aged 70 years, died today at St. John's hospital. The deceased was an old resident of this city. The remains were removed to the funeral parlors of Undertakers M. H. McDonough & Sons on Gorham street.

SONDER YACHT RACES

MARBLEHEAD, Aug. 16.—The weather conditions off Marblehead rock were so strenuous today that the Spanish sonder yachmen did not venture out of the harbor, in fact one or two of them said that if the northeast continued tomorrow they might ask for a postponement of the first race.

That the visitors should have declined to try their boats in a fifteen knot northeast and a tumble of a sea caused considerable surprise here. As it has been the impression that they were more used to such conditions than the usually smooth waters of Massachusetts bay. All the boats were hauled out today for their last rub-downs and will not take the water until a couple of hours until the start tomorrow.

TWO NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 16.—Two national conventions opened in Detroit today. The first of the conventions was that of the National Fraternal congress which held its first session this forenoon. The 25th annual meeting of the American Philatelic society was opened later in the day.

REV. DR. BRODIE DEAD

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Rev. Dr. James Brodie, for many years prominent in the Congregational pulpit and for the last two years connected with the editorial department of the American board for foreign missions, died at a private hospital here today. Dr. Brodie was born in Hammond, N. Y., in 1841.

CENSUS BUREAU REPORT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The value of the manufactured product of Delaware, the first given out by the census bureau as the result of its investigations in connection with the recent census-taking is $52,781,011.

This is a gain of over 28 per cent. since 1904. There was a 29 per cent. gain in salaries and wages, or 17 per cent. in the number of establishments and of almost 20 per cent. in the capital employed. More than two thousand officials and clerks and more than 21,000 laborers are employed.

MURDER SUSPECT THE INDIAN LANDS

Police Think They Will Have Him Claim That Government Was Justified in Delaying Sale

SULPHUR, Okla., Aug. 16.—Attempts to show that the government was justified in delaying the sale of $30,000,000 worth of Indian land in Oklahoma occupied the congressional committee in the investigation of the McMurray contracts today. Testimony was given that it would have been impossible for the government to sell out the land and distribute the money among the Indians as speedily as J. F. McMurray had promised to do on a ten per cent attorney's fees basis.

Rep. Carter of Oklahoma was recalled and was asked: "What is your opinion of Vice President Sherman in matters pertaining to Indian affairs?"

"He has always shown a deep interest in the Indians," Carter replied. "What was his attitude towards large fees?"

"He was opposed to them."

It has been asserted in previous testimony that Mr. Sherman had expressed emphatically his disapproval of the ten per cent fee.

Rep. C. H. Burke, chairman of the investigating committee, pointed out to the witness that much of the government's alleged delay in selling the land was due to the failure of the Indians to take their shares of allotted land.

Douglass Johnson, chief of what is known as the Chickasaw nation, testified he signed the McMurray contracts. He had urged others to sign but never had been induced to do so by McMurray.

MAYOR OPPOSES BULL FIGHT

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—A genuine bull fight announced by the Ridge Country club on Friday and Saturday has attracted the attention of the authorities in the village of Morgan Park where the fight is scheduled.

"No such spectacle shall be given or advertised in my jurisdiction," said Mayor Ney of Morgan Park.

Nevertheless the promoters insist that they will hold the fight in spite of the authorities.

Posters which Mayor Ney refused to allow displayed in Morgan Park have a brilliantly colored picture of a mounted knight. The reading matter is as follows:

"No need to go to Spain to see a bull fight. The Ridge Country club will have the real thing. An imported, ramping, ferocious Andalusian. You will hear him roaring on the grounds. No police interference.

"Beautiful women, Spanish costumes, toreros, matadors, espadas, rebosas, hijos, hermanas, frijoles."

CRUSADE AGAINST BETTING

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 16.—Harry Devereux, president of the Forest City Livestock & Fair Co., appeared in Police Justice Murphy's court today to answer to a charge of permitting pool selling at the grand circuit light harness meet at North Randall track last week. The hearing went over until Aug. 25.

Horsemen here alarmed by Gov. Harmon's crusade against betting on races are awaiting the result of the hearing with considerable anxiety. The fate of racing in this state hinges on the Devereux case.

MILLIONAIRES COL. ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's name was presented for the office of temporary chairman of the republican state committee at the meeting of the republican state committee today and his election for that honor was last by a vote of 20 to 15. Vice President James Sherman was named as temporary chairman of the coming state convention by a unanimous vote following the defeat of the motion to make Colonel Roosevelt the temporary presiding officer of the convention. The state committee selected Saratoga and Sept. 27 as the place and time for the republican convention.

William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, nominated Vice President Sherman for the office of temporary chairman of the state convention, while in opposition to Mr. Sherman, Col. Theodore Roosevelt was nominated.

The resolution to make Colonel Roosevelt temporary chairman was then lost by a vote of 20 to 15 following which Vice President Sherman was unanimously chosen for the temporary presiding officer of the convention. Lloyd Griscom and State Committee-man Mack of New York not voting.

The state committee then adjourned to meet Monday evening, Sept. 26, at Saratoga.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Ambrose of 175 Adams street are rejoicing over the arrival of a daughter at their home. Mr. Ambrose is the well known member of the protective company of the fire department.

Capt. Hugh Downey of the police department resumed his duties at the police station this morning and is looking much improved after his two weeks' vacation.

REPUBLICAN OUTING

NANTASKET, Aug. 16.—Gov. Draper, Lieut. Gov. Frothingham, Speaker Waller and Sen. Lodge were the guests and principal speakers at the outing of the republican club at Plymouth county at Nantasket beach today. In his address Gov. Draper devoted considerable time to a discussion of legislation acted during his administration.

BANK CLOSED

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The British Bank of Commerce, a small private concern, closed its doors today. No importance is attached to the failure of the bank which started business only in 1908.

$6,000,000 FOR STOCKHOLDERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Directors of the Standard Oil company held their midsummer dividend meeting today and declared the regular six per cent dividend for the quarter which calls for a distribution to the Standard stockholders of $6,000,000.

WENT TO REVERSE

Several hundred people left Merrimack square this morning at 8:15 o'clock on the semi-weekly excursion to Revere beach and Waverland under the auspices of the Boston & Northern Street railway company.

STRUCK BY AUTO

Prominent Worcester Man May Be Fatally Injured

WORCESTER, Aug. 16.—Ex-Representative Lufan B. Stone, former street commissioner and one of the best known residents of the city, was struck and fatally injured by an auto driven by Edward J. Pagan, 1048 Main street, Quincy, opposite his home at 1030 Main street last night. Stone's skull was fractured at the base and the brain was injured, causing hemorrhages, and Dr. George M. Albee, 1028 Main street, to whose home he was first taken, says the patient cannot live more than a few hours.

Mr. Stone was riding home by trolley early last evening and jumped off the car in front of his home. Witnesses tell the police that the trolley conductor shouted a warning to the aged man, who is 81 years old, telling him to look out for the approaching auto, but Mr. Stone is deaf and failed to hear the warning. The auto, according to the police, was proceeding at a moderate rate of speed and Pagan rounded his horn, but Mr. Stone jumped off so close to the auto that it was impossible to avoid hitting him and the front wheel passed over his body.

He was taken to the piazza of Dr. Albee's house and later removed to his own home next door. Late last night his condition was pronounced extremely critical. Pagan was placed under arrest on a charge of assault and battery and gave bonds for his appearance in court. With him in the auto were his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Pagan, and two sisters, Mary and Zita Pagan.

Mr. Stone, with his brother, ran the first public conveyance through the streets of Worcester from Lincoln square to Webster, opening a stage line in 1847. Three months later they continued the stage line to Spencer and continued to carry on the traffic business until 1891, when the trolley line from Worcester to Spencer was put through.

From 1883 to 1888 he served the city of Worcester as street commissioner. In 1901 he was elected an alderman, and in 1906 a representative, being re-elected the following year.

Mr. Stone is a member of Montacute lodge, A. F. and A. M., and is a life member of all the bodies up to the 23rd degree. He is a member of Montacute lodge of Odd Fellows and is a charter member of the Massachusetts highway commissioners' association.

SCANDAL PROMISED

Lawyer McIntyre Threatens to Make Known Names

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The bitterest session of the police court hearings of the charges brought by Mrs. Mary Nevins Bull against John A. Qualey and Harvey W. Corbett took place yesterday before Magistrate Krotel in the criminal courts building. John F. McIntyre, attorney for the two men accused by Mrs. Bull of getting $50,000 from her by false pretenses, abandoned his former suavity and demanded technical proof of every link in the prosecution's chain. At one stage of the proceedings he shouted to Charles L. Craig, attorney for Mrs. Bull:

"If you keep dragging names in, I'll drag in some names. If there's going to be a scandal here, it's going to be a good scandal. I have purposely kept certain names out of this case. I won't do it much longer. Now, you know what I mean. Be careful."

Mr. Craig smiled, but made no reply. Several new angles in the case which developed yesterday also served to keep the interest at fever heat. One of them was the appearance in the case of Mrs. Naomi Bolter, a private detective, who testified to transactions with Corbett. Mrs. Bolter was the object of a savage attack by Atty. McIntyre.

She testified that she went to see Corbett in the interests of ex-Judge Smith Lent of Westchester county, who had judgments against Qualey and wanted Mrs. Bolter to serve him with papers in supplementary proceedings.

She testified that she went to see Corbett in the interests of ex-Judge Smith Lent of Westchester county, who had judgments against Qualey and wanted Mrs. Bolter to serve him with papers in supplementary proceedings.

She pored to Corbett as the agent of a woman who had obtained $100,000 by trickery and who had engaged Mrs. Bolter to invest her money.

Says She Duped Corbett
She told Corbett if a proper cash commission could be arranged she would feel no compunction about advising her client to put her ill-gotten cash in the Magnesia-Asbestos enterprise. Corbett was thoroughly taken in, she testified, and told her that Mrs. Hopkins, "a society lady," had a wealthy woman (Mrs. Bull) who was going to invest a large amount in the company.

Detective Lieutenant Frank Price identified the seven checks which he found on Qualey at the time of his arrest. They were signed by Qualey personally and as treasurer of the Stone Age Plaster company, and were in blank. The signatures on the checks were identified by Leon Kresser, who had Qualey and Corbett arrested on a fraud charge last year.

The checks made it possible, Atty. Craig said, for Qualey to draw every cent of the money which Mrs. Bull and others had paid over in checks on Corbett's order.

Atty. Edward W. Weiss, assistant to Mr. McIntyre, told the reporters that the grand jury had refused to indict Qualey and Corbett. Acting District Attorney Frank Moss said that this was absolutely untrue, and added that the grand jury was still investigating the case. Kresser and his attorneys, Mrs. Bolter and the cashiers and bookkeepers of the banks in which Corbett deposited Mrs. Bull's money and later transferred it, also testified before the grand jury yesterday.

Squabble Over Mrs. Hopkins
Mrs. Ellen Dunlap Hopkins did not appear to testify either before the grand jury or at the police court hearing. Her friend, the artist, Wilhelm Funk, was an interested listener, however, at the police court hearing. The subject of a spirited colloquy between Messrs. Craig and Weiss in an ante-room.

"Are you really going to call Mrs. Hopkins?" Mr. Craig asked.
"Are you anxious that we should call her?"

"We'd be delighted to have her testimony. We'd like to ask her a lot of pertinent questions."

"Why doesn't your side call her then?" pursued Mr. Weiss.

"We call her and vouch for her as our own witness?" asked Mr. Craig, in mock amazement. "Not much."

OHIO'S CAPITAL CITY IN THROES OF STRIKE TROUBLE MAY NEED MILITIA

MAJOR GEN. DICK AND STAFF READY FOR RIOT CALLS

CLEARING THE TRACKS AFTER MOB ATTACK

STRIKERS MARCHING IN HIGH STREET COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16.—Ohio's capital city is in a state of confusion as a result of the street car strike since the state militia has been withdrawn and Governor Harmon may recall the troops any hour. Two regiments are under arms and can be rushed to the scene in record time. Mayor Marshall has ordered more than a score of policemen suspended, and officials of the car company assert that they will expend a million dollars rather than give in to the strikers. Shooting and throwing of deadly missiles are of a first mortgage on the plant. I said my client had acquired her money through trickery, and I wasn't very particular about her investment, that what I was after was my commissions.

"Mr. Corbett told me that he would give me a stock bonus. I said I wanted cash. He said that with that amount of money a cash commission could be very easily arranged."

Magistrate Krotel adjourned the hearing until Friday at 2 o'clock. The hearing before the grand jury will continue today.

POLICE SCORED
By Judge Mahoney of Lawrence

LAWRENCE, Aug. 16.—Jeremiah Keefe was sentenced to three months in the house of correction by Judge Mahoney yesterday for assault on Henry C. Magoon, a business man. The assault took place on Broadway, where repairing is being done.

Mr. Magoon had asked that obstructions be removed and when workmen failed to comply with his request he undertook to do the work himself Saturday, with the result that he was struck down and left unconscious.

Sunday Keefe called at the police station and said he committed the assault.

Judge Mahoney remarked that the revelations showed a shockingly lax condition of affairs in the police department. "The assault was so brutal," said Judge Mahoney, "that every available man on the force should have been put to work and the defendant arrested within an hour."

HAVERHILL COUNCIL PLACES CENSOR ON THEM

HAVERHILL, Aug. 16.—The municipal council held a conference yesterday with the managers of the local theatre and moving-picture shows, after which it was decided to put under the censorship of the city marshal all moving pictures shown in this city.

The ministers' association and the federation of men's clubs urged the appointment of a board of censors, but the council decided the police should undertake the duty.

The marshal will instruct patrolmen to watch the theatres and report any objectionable features exhibited. The municipal council also changed the fees for licenses, charging theatres $50 per year and the moving-picture houses $25.

THE ALDERMEN
MADE NO ATTEMPT TO ELECT MAYOR

LAWRENCE, Aug. 16.—The board of aldermen held a short session last night, but no effort was made to bring about a joint convention for the election of a mayor to succeed William F. White, who resigned recently after beginning his three-year sentence in the local jail. Acting Mayor Jordan presided.

Further developments are expected later in the week in the matter of securing a writ of mandamus asked for a week ago by the aldermen to compel Acting Mayor Jordan to call a joint convention.

Of the Rhode Island Assembly Convened Today

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 16.—The general assembly of the state convened today in a special adjourned session for the purpose of acting upon the report of the redistricting commission, enacting a corporation tax law and considering other legislative matters of importance. It is a rare occurrence for the assembly to meet at this season of the year and it was called in order that the next election might be along the lines laid out by the redistricting commission.

The session is expected to be a brief one, about two weeks, but the number of important matters which will come up for consideration promises to make it notable. In addition to the redistricting report it was announced that a special message would be submitted by the governor and that the body would also have to pass on the bill for the revision of the tax laws which includes a corporation tax bill and a bill for the creation of a state tax commissioner. Other legislation which may come before the assembly includes amendments to the egg lobster law which caused the withdrawal of several of the inland fisheries commissioners, appointment of new commissioners, appointment of a state harbor improvement committee to take charge of the expenditure of the $500,000 bond issue and a resolution for the relocating and repairing of the boundary stones between Rhode Island and Connecticut. The boundary marks between this state and Massachusetts have been relocated and put in good condition during the past year.

MAYOR GAYNOR IMPROVING

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Mayor Gaynor steadily continues along the path of recovery and when he awoke he seemed to be stronger and better than any time since he was shot a week ago today as he was about to sail for Europe. Dangers of an infection are almost past, although everything is in readiness should circumstances render an operation necessary. Mayor Gaynor is being kept very quiet and few visitors are permitted to see him. The wounded executive feels the heat, but otherwise seems not disturbed by his unfortunate situation.

Should no complications develop it is believed that Mayor Gaynor can be taken to the camp of a friend in the Adirondacks in about two weeks. The mayor's physicians stated at 6 o'clock that he had slept all during the night and was doing nicely this morning.

A NOVEL AERIAL RACE

AMIENS, France, Aug. 16.—The first aerial race between the birds of nature and man's production took place in the course of the great cross country competition and was easily won by man. A flock of 47 carrier pigeons was released at Dousai yesterday at the same instant that Leblanc in his Farman biplane started from the mark on his fifty mile flight to Amiens.

When Leblanc reached Amiens the flock was not yet in sight, the first pigeon arriving six minutes and twenty seconds after Leblanc. Before the last of the flock had come in Legagneux who had started at the same time as Leblanc but consumed nine minutes more on the trip arrived and beat the last pigeon by twelve minutes.

AN EARTHQUAKE SHOCK

MOUTIERS, France, Aug. 16.—A heavy earthquake shock was felt here this morning. It lasted 27 seconds. Moutiers is located in southeastern France, a short distance from Mont Blanc, Mount Cenis and other giants of the Alps.

In that latitude it is piercing cold at night in summer, and the men suffered much. For two days rain fell and they were drenched to the skin. They were forced to keep awake all the time, bailing to keep their dory afloat.

At the end of the fourth day they landed at Double Island, off the Labrador coast. They found only a few deserted shacks, but some Eskimos, who touched there in a boat, advised them to go south to Hopedale, where there is a station of Moravian missionaries. The Eskimos acted as guides. At Hopedale they stayed 22 days. The men were taken to Halifax last week, and thence to their homes in Nova Scotia.

LOWELL'S GAME

The Gray Boys Put Up a Clever Exhibition

The Whalers, the league leaders, and Lowell met at Spalding park yesterday and the game was witnessed by a fair-sized and enthusiastic attendance of fans. Manager Dowd of the visiting team did not appear in Lowell owing to the fact that he is confined to his bed with a severe attack of fever. The players stated that he passed a very bad night last night and it is thought that he will be confined to the house for several days.

During the practice prior to the game Riley, the new utility man for Lowell, covered third base, but he did not appear in the game. Jack Boutles covering the third sack.

Manager Gray announced prior to the game that he would like to meet the managers of the Lowell Americans and Sanctuary Choir teams at their office in the Eldridge building at their earliest opportunity.

The game was called at three o'clock by Umpire Lannigan.

First Inning

Walsh, the first man up, hit to Fitz and was retired at first, and a few minutes later McCrone fled to Cooney. Rising singled to right centre and Fluharty allowed the ball to go through him. Rising tried to make three bases on the fumble, but Blakely fielded the ball and relayed it to third with the assistance of Cooney, and Rising was nailed at third.

In the latter half of the inning Blakely hit to Cunningham and was out at first. Fitz fled to Bauman and Cooney hit to Wilson and was out at first.

Score—Lowell 0, New Bedford 0.

Second Inning

Cunningham drew a base on balls. McCormick bunted to Tyler who threw Cunningham out at second and Cooney sent the ball to first for a double play. Bauman singled to left field and stole second, but Wilson closed the first half of the inning by flying to Blakely.

Magee hit to Bauman and died at first. Teague hit to Bauman and the latter threw bad, Tenney going to third on the play. Fluharty hit to Armstrong and Tenney started for home, but was caught between third and home. Boutles struck out.

Score—Lowell 0, New Bedford 0.

Third Inning

Lowell broke the tie in the third inning by scoring one run. Ulrich sent a grounder to Tenney and was out at first. Armstrong struck out and Walsh hit to Tyler and was third out.

In Lowell's half Huston fled to Cunningham and Tyler singled. Blakely hit Cunningham forcing Tyler at second. He then stole second. Fitz sent a slow grounder to Bauman and beat the ball to first. Blakely scoring on the play. Cooney fled to Rising, the latter making a pretty running catch.

Score—Lowell 1, New Bedford 0.

Fourth Inning

Lowell scored another run in the fourth inning.

McCrone opened with a fly to Fluharty and Rising hit to McCormick and was out at first while Cunningham was third out on strikes.

In the latter half of the inning Magee hit to left field for two bases and went to third on Tenney's sacrifice. Magley, but Fluharty attempted a squeeze play, but Fluharty missed the bunt and Magee was caught between the bases but he was enabled to score on a bad throw. Fluharty bunted along the third base line and beat the ball to first. Boutles hit to Armstrong forcing Fluharty at second. Huston singled to centre field. Tyler hit to Armstrong, who knocked the ball down and throwing to second got Fluharty.

Score—Lowell 2, New Bedford 0.

Fifth Inning

Neither side scored in the fifth. McCormick hit to Blakely and was out. Bauman drew a base on balls and Wilson was retired on strikes. Bauman stole second and Ulrich fled to Blakely.

In the latter half of the inning Blakely fled to Bauman. Fitz hit to Bauman and was out at first. Cooney bunted to Wilson who threw bad and the runner got on first, but while trying to steal second he was thrown out.

Score—Lowell 2, New Bedford 0.

Sixth Inning

Armstrong opened the sixth with a single and Walsh followed with a fly to Magee. McCrone struck out and Rising knocked a foul fly which Huston gathered in.

Magee fled to McCormick and Tenney went out on strikes. Fluharty hit to McCormick, Armstrong covering first, but Fluharty beat the ball for a safe hit. Fluharty was later caught while trying to steal second.

Score—Lowell 2, New Bedford 0.

Seventh Inning

With three men on base and but one out Lowell made a double play and prevented the Whalers from scoring. Cunningham foul fled to Tenney, after which McCormick singled to centre field and Bauman and Huston fled to left field. Wilson hit to Fitzpatrick who had a chance to make a double play, but he fumbled the ball and the bases were filled. Ulrich and McCormick attempted a squeeze play and when Ulrich bunted McCormick started for home. Tyler got the ball and throwing home got McCormick at the plate and Huston sent the ball to first for a double play on Ulrich.

In the latter half of the inning Boutles and Huston sent grounders to Bauman and were out at first. Tyler hit to McCormick and was third out.

Score—Lowell 2, New Bedford 0.

Eighth Inning

In the eighth inning Tyler struck out. Armstrong, Walsh and McCrone in rapid succession.

In Lowell's half Blakely got hit by a pitched ball. Fitz sent him to second with a sacrifice. Cooney fled to Rising. Magee hit one too hot for Wilson and he reached first. Blakely going to third. Tenney hit to centre field for two bases, scoring Blakely and Magee. Fluharty singled to center scoring Tenney.

LODGE'S AGENTS

Have Been Turned Down By Candidates

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge is meeting with considerable difficulty in securing pledges of support from republican candidates for the legislature throughout the state.

Despite the fact that he has been able to line up leaders like Speaker Joseph Walker, Representative "Bob" Washburn of Worcester and Norman White of Brookline, who have shown themselves on many occasions to be independent of the machine, he is having his troubles with less conspicuous members who are seeking re-election.

It was stated yesterday that the agents of the senator through the state have been able to secure few pledges for him and that most of the candidates for the house refuse to go on record. In the majority of cases, they decline to say whether they will vote for Senator Lodge, Congressman Dutier Ames or somebody else.

Congressman Ames plans to make a sharp, short fight. According to the statement made by one of his political lieutenants, after looking the field over he came to the conclusion that it would cost at least $500,000 to put anti-Lodge candidates in the field in every representative and senatorial district in the state.

Despite the fact that Congressman Ames is many times a millionaire he feels that on the financial end of a campaign he would have to play second with Senator Lodge.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. George E. Morrison and Miss Helene Cordeau were married yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Louis church, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Fr. Jacques, the rector. The bride was attended by her father, Mr. Celestin Cordeau and the bridegroom by his brother, Mr. Joseph Morrison. After the ceremony a luncheon was served for the relatives only, at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Charles L. Cordeau, 65 Bowers street. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison left for Westworth, N. H., to spend their honeymoon at the Morrison summer home there. They have received many beautiful gifts, and on their return will make their home at 65 Bowers street.

Lowell showed two fast double plays in yesterday's game: though what possessed Ulrich to bunt with three on bases and only one out is a mystery. If the squeeze play was intended then McCormick who was on third was the goat for he failed to get a start.

That squeeze play by Magee and Fluharty was a dismal failure but thanks to Garry Wilson's bad throw, the end in view was reached.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—Barring accidents or a complete slump on the part of the Athletics, it looks almost certain that one-half of the world's championship series will be played here at Shibe park next October. KID McDONALD GOV. HASKELL

Knocked Out Bill Collins Is Having His Troubles of London Now

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 15.—Kid McDonald of Boston made short work of Billy Collins, late of London, England, before the New Bedford A. C. last night. The Englishman, who gained a reputation as a wrestler, afterward went into the boxing game with such success that he is said to have a record of 27 knockouts to his credit out of 40 bouts.

Last night McDonald put him away in the third round. McDonald's shiftiness and cleverness in covering up prevented the Englishman from doing him much damage. Collins had a snappy left-hand punch, but McDonald's handiness with both mitts set him guessing, and in the third round he began to hit wildly as a result of McDonald's swift rushes.

In a mixup, McDonald slammed both hands hard to Collins' stomach and the English boxer had to be assisted from the ring.

For the first bout, Young Bridges, a colored boxer from Gloucester, was scheduled to go against Kid Williams of Philadelphia for eight rounds at 150 pounds. Williams' left shift dazzled Bridges at the start and though he fought back furiously, Williams sent him down twice in the first round and through the ropes in the second. Bridges came back, but was knocked down again, finally dropping to the floor and taking the count.

Young Yell of Taunton, who has won amateur prizes before the B. A. A. made his professional debut in a bout with Young Larry of Fall River. Larry essayed to carry the fight to his opponent, but Yell met him on the way and in the first round a shower of blows sent Larry down for a knockout. About 500 members witnessed the exhibition.

ALBANY BOUTS

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Although Frank Mantell of Pawtucket and Jim Howard of Chicago were matched to go 10 rounds in the main event last night before the Knickerbocker A. C., they gave such a poor exhibition that half the crowd left before the battle was half over. It was only a series of bugging matches and love taps. The fighting was perhaps the worst the club has ever had.

In the semi-final, Young Gheilo of New York and Mickey Sheridan of Chicago put up the real article in 10 classy rounds. The fight was fast and furious all the time. If there had been a decision doubtless Sheridan would have been given it, but as there was none the crowd good naturedly evened up on the two men.

TO KILL CHICKENS

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN BY DR. HARVEY W. WILEY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, pure food expert, originator of the "poison squad," and "general adviser to the consuming public," has now undertaken to tell the housewives how to kill, pick, broil and fry chickens. Here are the directions for killing:

"Grasp the chicken when killing by the body part of the skull. Do not let the fingers touch the neck."

"Make a small cut with a small, sharp-pointed knife on the right side of the roof of the chicken's mouth, just where the bones of the skull end."

"Brain for dry picking by thrusting the knife through the groove which runs along the middle line of the roof of the mouth until it touches the skull midway between the eyes."

"Use a knife which is not more than two inches long, one-fourth inch wide, with a thin, flat handle, a sharp point, and a straight cutting edge."

"Starve the chicken for 24 hours before slaughter, allowing it, however, a liberal supply of fresh, clean water during this period."

LITTLE ONE MISTOOK KEROSENE FOR WATER

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Mistaking kerosene for water, Rubin Millas, 3 years old, of 8 Oak street terrace, Roxbury, drank several mouthfuls of the oil yesterday and was removed to the City hospital in a serious condition.

Mrs. Millas at the time was visiting her youngest daughter, Dora, who lies ill at the City hospital. During her absence she left her daughter Elsa in charge of the house.

While the little girl, who is only 7 years old, was cleaning up the kitchen, Rubin reached up to the table and got a tin hold of the oil can, placed it to his lips and evidently was enjoying it when his sister turned around and caught him. She took the can away from him just as the mother returned. She immediately carried him to the hospital.

HORSE DISEASES

Troubles of the Respiratory Tract

Roaring, high blowing, thick wind, straining—these are a chronic condition of the larynx caused by some sort of obstruction to the respiratory tract; polyp, thickened membrane, deformed bones, paralysis of the nostril may cause the condition called roaring, and paralysis of the muscles of the larynx, this last being the cause for most cases of roaring.

Sometimes nervous horses will snort and make a blowing noise, when first starting out, this being frequently the result from checking or forced cramping of the neck in some manner.

Chronic roaring shows no evidence of any disease of the larynx, excepting a wasting condition of the muscles; when roaring actually becomes confirmed no medicine will be of any use, but if the trouble is taken in hand early enough much may be expected from proper treatment. A skilled veterinary may operate successfully. Electricity may be effective. Absorbent or blistering is sometimes used.

To demonstrate a case of true roaring, drive rapidly up hill with good load requiring more than ordinary exertion. Some cases require more work than others to show the full characteristic sound. The breathing becomes rapid, nostrils expanded and the horse is almost suffocated. Never breed from a roarer. It seems transmittable.

Grunting does not always mean a true "roarer." Still such a horse is to be looked upon with suspicion. Of course, a horse afflicted with pleurisy, pneumonia, rheumatism, urinary and kidney trouble, may grunt when suddenly moved about or started up, but this circumstance does not indicate the "grunter," work him out by extra driving up hill with a load, testing his wind for signs of the roarer. Of course you would not try the sick horse for this purpose.

Sometimes roaring is confounded with high blowing. The latter is purely a nasal sound, nothing like roaring, and it is not a disease, just a habit. They soon stop high blowing if put to work. Whistling is only another sound of the roarer, although many horses affected with sore throat or inflamed larynx produce a whistling sound when breathing; but upon recovery this peculiar noise in breathing passes away so too. Thick wind is another name for roarer, or else it is connected with navies, while horses too fat, port belted from the much hay feed, horses not exercised enough, mares with foal, these all breathe in a manner to be styled thick wind, but if the cause is removed, the breathing becomes normal.

VETERAN OF CRIMEA

Eben Meserve Also Served in the Civil War

Eben Meserve, who has a daughter living in this city, will feel sadder than the average man because of the death of Florence Nightingale, "angel of the Crimea."

A remarkable record is that of Eben Meserve, veteran of two wars, and on Friday he celebrated his 77th birthday anniversary. Some years ago Mr. Meserve lost his wife by death and he spends much of his time with his daughter in this city and another daughter at Milford, N. H., but there is another spot he loves to visit and that is Amherst, N. H., where he lived on a little farm surrounded by his children.

He is one of the last survivors of the Crimean war, and the history of his strenuous life is full of interest.

Born in Dover, in early life he developed a propensity for the sea. On one of his first voyages in 1858 he landed in England, and after wandering around for a short time, he became interested in the war which was going on in the Crimean peninsula. But 21 years old then, he assumed the name of J. J. Jones, and at Shewsbury, County of Shropshire, he enlisted in the Fourteenth Light Infantry.

Inkerman and Balaklava were the battles that had passed into history, but filled with the stories of the charges of the Light Brigade, and overflowing with a desire for adventure, he went to the front in the hopes of seeing another Balaklava. His regiment was ordered to Sebastopol, and when he arrived there the long sieges had just begun. There he remained with his regiment, earning the pitance of eight cents per day, until the end of the war.

Among Mr. Meserve's possessions is a silver medal bearing the head of Queen Victoria and the word "Crimea," and covering the pin a bar with the word "Sebastopol." This was presented to the young soldier on the battlefield.

After Sebastopol, Mr. Meserve went to the Island of Malta with his companions and remained there for two years. His term of enlistment was for ten years, but after considerable red tape he succeeded in being discharged after it was found he was an American.

Returning to the United States, he enlisted in the Fifth Massachusetts volunteers in the Civil war, and served under Col. S. C. Lawrence of Medford, Mass. He was at the first battle of Bull Run, and for bravery was promoted to the rank of sergeant.

After recovery from wounds he again returned to the service, this time with a New York cavalry company, and was engaged, for a time, in frontier service.

LOSS IS ABOUT $6,000,000

BRUSSELS, Aug. 16.—Duplicate list of awards, kept at the residence insures the prizes of exhibitors at the exposition just destroyed by fire with an estimated loss from $6,000,000 to $10,000,000. It was first thought the only list of awards was lost in the fire.

"COWBOY". MAYOR OF OMAHA SEEKS TO WIN GOVERNORSHIP

JAMES C. DAHLGREN, COWBOY MAYOR OF OMAHA

OMAHA, Aug. 16.—The two leading democratic aspirants for the gubernatorial nomination in Nebraska, James C. Dahlgren, the "cowboy" mayor of Omaha, and Gov. Ashton C. Shallenbarger, have worked earnestly for weeks in all parts of the state. Unalterable opposition to county option was the "cowboy" mayor's slogan, and the present state executive took a more conciliatory position, agreeing to sign such a bill if it were passed by the next legislature. The fight for Indorsement of the voters for the United States senatorship was an exceptionally strenuous one between Gilbert M. Hitchcock, present congressman from the Omaha district, and Richard L. Metcalf, editor of Bryan's paper, the Commodore. Elmer J. Ruskett, the present senator, was the leader for the publican nomination.

GENEROUS OFFER

Is Made by a Lee Millionaire

LEE, Aug. 16.—Roderick B. Andrews, many times a millionaire, showed himself a philanthropist yesterday when he announced that for every dollar saved and placed in the bank by Lee boys he would add a similar amount to their account.

Mr. Andrews wants the boys to save their pennies instead of spending them on cheap picture shows and ice cream cones.

He authorizes the following offer: "If any boy of Lee of good character, will earn $1 and deposit it in the Lee Savings bank, with the purpose of starting an account, I will put $1 with it. All accounts thus started must remain in the bank until the depositors are of age."

Made Fortune in Stocks

Mr. Andrews will deposit a sum of money this week as a guarantee of good faith.

In the panic of 1907 he made a forlune, on stocks, buying them right and left when they were at the lowest point, holding them till they reached the top level, and unloading them. His net stock was New York Central.

Only last spring, Mr. Andrews announced he was willing to bet $10,000 that Mayor Gaynor of New York city would be the next president of the United States and he is of the same opinion today. He believes Mayor Gaynor has made a record in New York city, and, with the sympathy aroused by the attempt to assassinate him the other day, he will be the most popular democrat in the land when the national convention is held.

The Lee philanthropist is a self-made man and was once a poor boy in Baltimore. Dame Fortune smiled upon him and he entered business in Baltimore with successful results, until today he is ranked as many times a millionaire. He spends money lavishly upon the poor of the community.

SEARCH FOR MURDERER

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Posses of armed citizens are skirting the swamps near North Bergen, N. J., today searching for Bertrand Pond, who is wanted for the killing of Mrs. Mary Umachies in the presence of her six-year old son. Pond killed the woman because she rejected his attentions.

THE BURKE FUND

HAS INCREASED TO THE SUM OF $7,000,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—It is more than eight years since John Masterson Burke, a wealthy but little known reclusive, living at 18 West Forty-seventh street, announced a donation of $1,000,000 to found and endow a home for convalescents in or near Manhattan. The real estate and securities in which the money was invested enhanced in value and Mr. Burke during his lifetime made two other gifts. When he died on Dec. 2 last, at the age of 98 years, the Winifred Masterson Burke Foundation, as the endowment has been called, in memory of the founder's mother, was worth $5,000,000.

Mr. Burke left the greater part of his estate to the foundation. Relatives contested the will, but Surrogate Thomas decided last week that it was valid. Personal property worth $2,000,000, roughly speaking, thereby has been added to the foundation. The trustees have $7,000,000 with which to carry out Mr. Burke's purpose.

Nothing ever has been done toward building the home. The site has not even been selected. And there is little likelihood of any definite movement toward carrying out Mr. Burke's wishes being made in the immediate future.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

The attraction at the Lakeview theatre for the next two days is entitled "A Social Outlaw," a comedy drama in four acts, and the performance last night was attended by a good audience which showed its appreciation of the show. The leading part was taken by Mr. James Thatcher, and he took it in his usual strong manner, and was well supported by the rest of the company. Miss Florine Farr as "France" carried the part very well.

The play besides containing many strong dramatic incidents is full of humor, and furnishes no end of laughter.

"St. Elmo," the play which was presented here two weeks ago is to be given again the last three nights of this week, and should prove a drawing card. Upon its last performance here "St. Elmo" drew the largest houses of any show this season. Next week comes the strongest bill of the season when the Wagenhals and Kemper company will present their special production of "Pain in Full." This is a genuine high priced company, and Lakeview performances are to be the initial presentations of the coming season.

BILLERICA

The selectmen of the town of Billerica gave a hearing last night on the petition of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company for the location of poles in the following thoroughfares: Billerica avenue between end of present, Lowell Electric Light Corporation's line and driveway leading to town farm, nine poles; driveway between Billerica avenue and town farm, one pole; Delorey avenue between Chelmsford road and residence of F. P. Delorey; Billerica avenue between residence of D. J. Dewire and end of Lowell Electric Light Corporation's present line, 14 poles, one pair wire attachments each.

There were no remonstrances and the petitions were granted and signed by the selectmen.

A GOOD RULE TO FOLLOW

No doubt President Taft would be "delighted" if Mr. Ballinger should resign from the cabinet after the disclosures of the Pinchot hearing, but Ballinger may not resign, and Mr. Taft is too good-natured to apply the official boot where it is much needed. The president's weakness seems to be his desire to please everyone. This is a dangerous failing in a public man, for he who attempts to please everyone oftentimes succeeds in pleasing no one. If you have any important decisions to make, the best rule is to please yourself first, then if the rest of the world is satisfied, why well and good, and if no one else is satisfied you always have the consolation that no good man is satisfied at any rate.

NEED OF A WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

When a mill operative is mangled in a machine and sent to a hospital for treatment, what happens relative to his claim for damages?

The insurance companies that have by contract agreed to hold the corporation safe against all claims for damages send their doctors to examine the man with a view to minimize his injuries and their agents to look up every bit of evidence to prove that the accident was due to the victim's own carelessness.

They can go further and influence witnesses in favor of the injured man not to testify. This can be done through the employing company which can discharge any employee who appears as a witness against it in a case of damages, for the insurance company usually remains in the background while the corporation is made the defendant in the suit for damages.

All this is done while the mangled operative is in the hospital, it may be, hovering between life and death with no thought of possible litigation after his recovery or after his death if that be the outcome.

Assuming that he recovers but is disabled for life through no fault of his own, what redress does the employers' liability act furnish? None at all without a long legal battle in which he, a poor man, penniless and inexperienced in such matters, has to fight a large and wealthy corporation backed by insurance companies whose aim is to deny the justice of his claims and to defeat him if possible in the courts.

If he wins a verdict it is paid only after appeals to the supreme court or repeated trials that eat up the greater part if not all of the amount. Sometimes the verdict is not sufficient to meet the legal expenses and in the majority of cases there is a verdict for the defendant even when the claim for damages is one that should be sustained. But the plaintiff in such a case has not the experience, the legal resources or the other advantages possessed by the defense and hence, although his claim may be good, the chances of success are against him.

What is the remedy against this injustice to the injured operative? It is a law known as the workmen's compensation act, such as has been adopted in twenty-two other countries and which gives entire satisfaction to all the parties concerned.

The agitation for a workmen's compensation act in this state dates back to 1903 when Governor Bates appointed a commission to consider the relations between employer and employee. That commission with other very excellent recommendations, reported in favor of a workmen's compensation act and submitted a draft of a bill for enactment by the legislature. That bill we are glad to say, was drawn by a Lowell man, William N. Osgood, and it has been before every legislature since that year in practically the same form as then reported.

At first, the interested insurance companies, the public service corporations and even the labor organizations regarded it as a menace. These interests packed the hearings in opposition to the measure and the voices raised in its favor were drowned in the storm of opposition. As the question was discussed, however, and as the injustice to the injured operative was exposed, public opinion became aroused and sentiment in regard to the question underwent a radical change.

This change was emphasized by the endorsement of ex-President Roosevelt, prominent labor leaders and others of national repute and by the declaration of Speaker Walker of the Massachusetts legislature after the hearing last year that this was the most important subject which had been before the legislature during the last session.

Even the insurance companies and the public service corporations are beginning to see the change in the public mind on this question and to prepare for the inevitable. The Boston Elevated Railway Co. is said to have sent attorneys to investigate the workings of the law in England and Germany, where it has been in operation for many years. The other countries in which the law is in force are: Austria, Belgium, British Columbia, Cape of Good Hope, Denmark, Finland, France, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Queensland, Russia, South Australia, Spain, Sweden and Western Australia.

What are some of the arguments in favor of such a law? The first and most important is that a combination of liability insurance companies and employing corporations has practically nullified the protective benefits that the injured workman should derive from the employers' liability law.

During the past dozen years the employers' liability insurance companies in the United States collected about $100,000,000 of which 70 per cent was spent in expenses leaving but 30 per cent to meet damage claims. Of this amount the proportion that actually found its way into the pockets of the injured was probably less than one-half, or 15 per cent of the whole.

What are the results under the workmen's compensation act? Only 10 per cent of the money paid out is consumed in expenses and 90 per cent goes to the injured workman. The workmen's compensation act provides a fixed sum as compensation for the loss of an eye, a hand, an arm and so on whether through the carelessness of the injured or somebody else. The money is to be paid over without any litigation except where there is reason to believe that the claim is fraudulent. Not only is this immeasurably better for the injured workman but for the state, for the court dockets are crowded with actions of tort which are to be contested at great length, thus involving great expense to the county. The aim of the compensation act is to give practically all the money paid out for damages or damage insurance to the injured workmen. The long and tedious litigation by which just claims have often been defeated will be eliminated and justice will be done where now the highest injustice is wrought through a misapplication of the present law and the abuse of the courts of justice.

It is time the laboring people should wake up to their own interests on this matter. There will probably be hearings on this issue in different parts of the state, under the direction of the recess committee to which it was referred. Those hearings should be well attended and as the author of the bill is a Lowell man, our city should take a special interest in urging the enactment of the measure and thus securing fair treatment for the injured workmen instead of leaving them to fight a hopeless legal battle in which even a liberal verdict is eaten up in expenses.

SEEN AND HEARD

Mark Twain, as an example of unconscious humor, used to quote a Hartford woman who said one day in the late spring:

"My husband is the dearest fellow, 'Jim,' I said to him this morning, 'are you very hard up now?'"

"I certainly am hard up," he replied, soberly. "This high cost of living is terrible. I don't know what I'm going to do."

"Then, Jim," said I, "I'll give up all thought of going to the country for July and August this year."

"But the dear fellow's face changed and he said:

"Indeed, then you won't, darling. I thought you wanted to buy a hat with an egrette or some such foolishness. No, no, my darling—Jim can always find the money to let his dear little wife go to the country."—Hurrah! hurrah!

One of the most remarkable creatures known to natural history is the bower-bird, which builds a miniature cabin made of small sticks and twigs, and it with a perfectly-kept ring or circus, composed of twigs and moss, studded with brilliantly colored flowers, fruits and insects. As the curious ornaments become faded they are constantly replaced by fresh ones, so that the bower is in the possession of the artistic sense. In these decorated playgrounds the female meet and pay their court to the males, the bower being used purely for purposes of recreation and not as a nesting-place. These birds are chiefly found in the Owen Stanley Range of British New Guinea.—Wide World Magazine.

A MUSICAL SURFEIT

At first I "Cough" Thru the Rye, At Wagner's "Eveiling Star" I sigh, His "Prize Song" puts me out of gear; The "Ach, mein Sohn" of Meyerbeer, Six times repeated makes me moan, It's getting on my nerves, my dear, My neighbor's busy gramophone.

Twice I come "The Lorelei," Twice I draw Her Chord a Pearly Tear, And fifty times a week "Good-By," To madness drives me very near; The "Power Song" I once heard dear, But now my love for it has flown Into the sea 'd like to steer, My neighbor's busy gramophone.

I hate "Brunnhilde's Battle Cry," The "Jewel Song" is getting dear; When I get "Madam Butterfly," In wholesome doses it is clear, There's reason in my feeling queer, There is no sorrow like my own, And, oh, it does no good to fear, My neighbor's busy gramophone.

St. Peter bid me be of cheer, When I draw high unto the throne, Tell me I'll not be forced to hear, My neighbor's busy gramophone.—Nathan M. Levy, in N. Y. Sun.

I walked with a highbrow of learning one day in the Temple of Fame, and after much winding and turning, I said: "I am tired of this game. I've tried of this Jim-swizzled game. I've looked, but I've failed of discerning a picture of Poe in a frame, which I think is a rickety shame. Oh, tell me, thou highbrow of learning, why his picture is not in a frame?" The highbrow, he coughed and he stuttered and wiped off some sweat from his forehead, "the fellow you mention," he muttered, "was doubtless a poetry fiend, he sure was no slouch of a fan; he's barred from this temple, and shuttered, for he was a dissolute man, and given to rushing the can; we have to be careful," he spluttered, "and place on the shoulders of him, we know where our biscuits are buttered and stuck to a high moral plan." They he hung on the wall an engraving of Julius Terwilliger Sneed, who's written some neat bits of raving that none in his senses would read; who's written some fierce bits of raving, that only the piper, dreamers read. "His verse," said the highbrow, "on shoving, was moral and helpful indeed. And all through his life his behavior was chaste, his uplifted screed!"—Walt Mason in Philadelphia Bulletin.

It is stated a man's hair grows gray five years earlier than a woman's. This must be of considerable comfort to the fellow whose sweetheart's locks are "like the raven" while his are a little on the gray.

There has been a lot of talk about politics in connection with the congress. That there will be in St. Paul at that time members of the United States senate, members of the house, governors of many states and mayors of many cities, is sufficient cause to say that there will be some political fireworks on the side, but it is the intention of the officers of the congress to keep politics out of the proceedings as far as possible.

"Insurgency" is pretty well represented on the program with Pinchot, Garfield and Senators Beveridge and Dilliver as speakers. This in itself is a refutation of the statements that Taft's connection with the program, it was said that the president insisted upon certain changes being made before he would agree to speak.

When Governor Eberhart returned to St. Paul after heading the committee which visited the president at Beverly and tendered the invitation, he said the program and made no suggestions whatever concerning it.

The program will not be given out for a few days but it is known that Senator Dilliver will talk on "Cattle, Food and Leather." Such a subject naturally gives the senator a chance to say something on the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, but it is said on good authority that he will not take the opportunity of doing so. The big fight made by Senator Dilliver on the tariff bill was chiefly in connection with the hide and leather schedules. However, it is believed the senator will insert enough ginger into his speech to make it interesting.

"The Natural Resources Belong to the People" is the subject to be discussed by James H. Garfield, former secretary of the Interior. Mr. Garfield is prepared, according to reports received in St. Paul, to handle this subject in a way to make it interesting.

Francis J. Heney, who fought the land frauds in the west is going to talk about "Safeguarding the Public Domain." It is doubtful if a person more competent to handle such a subject could be found.

The subject given to James J. Hill, chairman of the Great Northern road, is "Sells, Crops, Food and Clothing." Mr. Hill long has given much thought to the fertilization of soils and he has been helping the farmer in this respect for years.

Thomas M. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, the greatest labor union in the United States, is going to talk on the subject "Are We Mining Intelligently?" It is not known what the subject of Mr.

Tramp Steamer Has a Valuable Cargo

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Laden with the most valuable cargo brought to Boston for months, the Finnish tramp steamer Atholl, of Leith, Capt. S. L. Sackby, came in yesterday from oriental ports. She docked at pier 45, Mystic wharf.

There were curios aplenty on board the steamer. For ten minutes before the Atholl docked two rival boatmen, who were in rowboats, at the steamer's bow, engaged in a worthy battle as to who should get the first look at the curios. Above the noise they could be heard the sweet notes of a Chinese mocking bird which was hung in a cage on the forward deck. The bird is of a very rare species and is valued at about $100.

In six heavily strapped boxes carried on the bridge deck were half a dozen monster pythons, measuring from 15 to 25 feet in length. The pythons were purchased at Singapore by the officers. They are well behaved reptiles and remained snugly in their cases during the long passage. A bucket full of water doused over each python every morning was all they received in the way of sustenance, but before they were taken on board they each had a feast of several rabbits, enough to last them for two months.

At Suez the Atholl took on 12 tons of Egyptian antiquities for the Metropolitan museum, New York. They were 52 cases of these antiquities, and the collection includes some of the most valuable excavations from the buried temples and tombs of Egypt.

The Atholl came from Yokohama, Kobe, Moji, Shanghai, Hongkong, Singapore and Penang, picking up cargo at each port. Then she stopped at Suez, Port Said and Algiers. In the Atlantic the weather was favorable with the exception of a head current nearly all the way.

The steamer brought in 8400 tons of cargo, including 12,930 ingots, great pieces of copper, loaded at Yokohama; immense quantities of tea skins, wool, spices, curries, pepper, jetonets, tin, gambier, straw matting, human hair, bamboos, tiger and leopard skins, bristles, camphor, bean oil, toys, vegetable ivory, rare porcelain, etc. The estimated value of the cargo is $1,500,000.

The Atholl carries a crew of 35 Chinamen and they will be watched day and night to prevent any of them deserting while the vessel is in port.

PRESIDENT TAFT SENDS A LETTER TO GOVERNOR EBERHART

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 16.—President Taft's interest in the second national conservation congress to be held in St. Paul, Sept. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, is shown in a letter to Gov. Eberhart of Minnesota.

The letter from the president, which follows, is used as the basis of letters to the governors who have given excuses for not attending the congress, urging them to reconsider the matter and come to St. Paul.

"Beverly, Mass., Aug. 6. Hon. A. O. Eberhart, Governor of Minnesota, St. Paul.

"Dear Governor: I acknowledge your letter of the 2nd, written from Boston, in which you request me to issue an invitation to the governors of all the states to visit the conservation congress. I feel that I ought not to issue such an invitation as that matter is entirely in the hands of Mr. Baker, White and myself, and should remain there; but I am glad to say to you that it is my sincere hope that the governors of the various states, by their attendance at the congress, will express the interest which I know they all feel in securing a full and valuable discussion of the great problem, which so much interests every American.

"William H. Taft."

It is believed in St. Paul that this letter from the president will be the means of bringing more governors to the congress than otherwise would have attended. It is recognized here that the time is not really the best for some of the governors. There are not many in some of the states, and several of the governors are candidates for re-election. However, the president's letter is expected to show just where he stands on the conservation question and since he has agreed to come himself and urges the governors to do the same, there no doubt will be a larger attendance of state executives than has been expected.

Monday, Sept. 5, is to be President's and Governors' day at the congress and former President Roosevelt has expressed the wish that it will be the big day. The address of the president and the meeting of the governors are the only things on the program for that day. The governors will talk on any phase of the conservation congress that suits them and the states they represent and much of value is expected to come from these speeches.

Pinchot's address will be given by Governor Eberhart and Cummings have not said on what subjects they will talk. Other speakers, besides the president and former president are:

Governor Eberhart, Minnesota; Governor Stubbbs, Kansas; Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporations; Senator Joseph M. Dixon, Montana; Arthur Radcliffe Dugmore, author, artist, writer on nature subjects, and an expert on birdlife; Walter H. Paige, editor, The World's Work; Governor Herbert S. Hadley, Missouri; Alfred L. Baker, president of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce; Henry Wallace, expert on farming and country life; Des Moines, Iowa; William L. Chapman, curator American Museum of Natural History; Senator Moses B. Clapp, Minnesota; Prof. Henry S. Graves, United States forester; John Barrett, director Bureau of American Republics; Dr. W. J. ## TARIFF AND TRUSTS

Are Blamed for the High Cost of Living

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The tariff of trade, the wholesale grocers, lumber dealers—associations that have contributed largely to the advance in prices and the frauds perpetrated by manufacturers of certain goods in reducing the weight of contents of packages from 20 to 50 per cent, and maintaining the same prices.

"The methods of the meat trust," they declare, "seem to be admirably adapted to taking from the consumer and the producer (the largest amount) that the traffic will bear. Their destruction of local competitors cannot be improved upon." As what they call a "sample of the working of our combines," they say that "while everywhere else in the world the price of harvesting machinery has been appreciably reduced since 1900, in the United States it has been materially increased. The increase, they add, started nearly contemporaneously with the Dingley tariff."

As to wages, they say that "the fear that wages would fall if the tariff were removed, and the fall in prices would not be a clear gain to the consumer, is not warranted by the experience of Great Britain. Great Britain is a free-trade nation, and it is the most prosperous nation in the world except our own. Shoals of emigrants from the tariff-ridden nations of France, Germany, Italy and Russia go to England to work. But Englishmen do not emigrate to those countries because the standard of living is lower. The general testimony is that the rate of wages for mechanical trades is substantially higher in Great Britain than in those protectionist countries, while the prices of necessities are lower, leaving the Englishman a wider margin to live upon."

"It is about fifty years since Great Britain adopted free trade, and during that time, according to a table published in Whiteaker's Almanac, wages have increased 57 per cent and prices only 5 per cent. It is, therefore, well seen that the abolition of the tariff in England did not bring down the rate of wages. Neither would it in this country. If we remove the obstruction, allowing prices to sink to their natural level, the question of wages may be trusted to take care of itself."

Replying to the majority's statement, in its report, that an "increased demand for farm products" is a cause of advancing prices, the minority cites the wheat crop as having increased from less than 7 bushels per capita in 1900, to more than 8 in 1909; corn from 27 to almost 30 bushels per capita; and potatoes from almost 2 to more than 4 bushels. Notwithstanding the increase in the price of farm products, the farmer, they say, "has realized a small net return on his labor and investment by reason of the increased cost of the articles necessary for him to purchase to carry on his business."

"It is scarcely necessary," they add, "to mention the iniquitous woolen schedule—where the tariff rates are so high that the necessities of our people as to practically preclude any foreign competition with the American manufacturer, except on high-priced goods purchased by the wealthier consumer, who can, to some extent, disregard price."

Taking up the subject of trusts, combinations and monopolies, they declare that "there are few trusts that could survive a revenue tariff. They flourish only under the shadow of high protective walls. Standing behind those walls that shut off foreign competition and destroying domestic competition by consolidations and absorptions, they are limited only to selling at a fraction less than the foreign price plus the protective duty. That they reduce cost of production seems certain, but it is in rare cases that the public or the laborers employed by them participate in the enlarged profit. So enormous have been their profits that we find organizations springing up all over the country; like the Elgin board

"WILD WEST" TO GREET ROOSEVELT

"Frontier Days" at Cheyenne a Feature of His Coming Tours

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

ON June 18 New York, with the territory tributary to and adjoining the metropolis and a scattering representation of the remainder of the country, had its opportunity of greeting Teddy. Now comes the turn of the west and the south in the order given. The states west of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio could not go to Oyster Bay to tell the colonel how highly they esteem him, so he is going to swing around the circle to receive their homage, we almost said, but we shall change it to greetings. There will be great doings in many places when the ex-president arrives, but the citizens of Cheyenne, Chicago, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Atlanta and the other cities are not going to make all of the noise. No, indeed. Not by any means. The colonel is going to express a few views himself on the conservation of the country's natural resources and other timely topics.

Cheyenne is the place in which the welkin dome is in the greatest peril of serious fracture. About the time Roosevelt rides into the lively Wyoming city there will be a "Frontier Days" celebration going on in full blast. The arrival of Roosevelt will send the enthusiasm way up to the top of the tube. Wyoming looks upon Roosevelt as a sort of straying neighbor anyway, although it is quite a spell since he left his ranch in North Dakota, a nearby state, to follow the paths of fame in the east. The "Old" West Will Be on View. With the end in view of entertaining the colonel and incidentally many thousands of other visitors, the western states have been scouring for the best remaining specimens of horse and man, with their accoutrements, to illustrate the life that has passed away in many places and is rapidly departing from the others. The spread of the modern improvements in life and the changes in the utilization of the soil have forced the cattleman more and more into changed ways of living. He continues to exist, of course, else he and the rest of us would have to abstain from beef, but his famous ranches are being cut up and the old time picturesqueness is being eliminated. Sheepman and farmer are crowding him hard, especially since the government forbade the fencing in of its land. The steady flow of the irrigation idea over the west and the introduction of the so-called "dry" farming, and other improved methods of cultivation of the soil have substituted corn and alfalfa for the long and short grass on which the great herds formerly subsisted. The result has been a gain in net wealth for the west, but a loss in picturesqueness. For instance, the committee in charge of the Cheyenne celebration, which is an annual affair, finds it increasingly difficult to obtain the bucking bronchos to figure in the "bustling" contests. Except in a few localities near Cheyenne the famous wiry broncho, with his hard mouth, his restless, nervous energy and his irresistible propensity to buck and rear and throw his would-be rider, seems to be nearly extinct. For this year's celebration, the greatest planned in the fourteen years of "Frontier Days" existence, the whole west and the Hawaiian Islands have been searched for the best riders, broncho busters and steer ropers in the world. The cowboys will risk their lives in contests with horses which have run wild over the plains. Some of these beasts have never known the feel of the halter and will resent in heroic fashion the efforts to subdue them. The first prize in the broncho busting contests will be a saddle worth $500, offered by the Union Pacific railroad. The Cheyenne folks profess a great contempt for the so-called "wild west" shows. They declare that their celebration is the only "real thing" of the sort offered to the American public. Indians at the Big Show. To easterners one of the most interesting features of the celebration will be the gathering of the Indians. They will be there with their squaws, their papooses and their tepees and will take part in the stage holdups, riding contests, war dances, wild horse races, cow pony races, potato races, etc., that will help to make up the show. A forecast of the celebration reads: "Wyoming is already making great plans for 'Frontier Days' celebration. To this every ranch and camp in the wide and happy state employs its strong men, its crack riders, its gam-

est ponies, its 'restless' cattle—for the big show this is the last word the west of yesterday speaks to the people and world of today. "When the curtain goes up on this show men and women from Missouri give a hand wave to others from Montana and California, from Nebraska and Kansas, Colorado and Utah. A regular whoop it up western hand wave it is, that gets one as near the brotherhood of man idea as one is likely to be for many a day in these 'me for the individual life' times. "With Roosevelt as an added attraction of course the celebration will draw visitors to Cheyenne from all over the country, as well as the ranchmen and their families. The railroads have made great preparations to handle the crowds. 'Frontier Days' will be on for four days, from Aug. 24 to Aug. 27 inclusive. The last two will be 'Roosevelt days.' Great Doings Are Predicted. Just listen to a newspaper man's predictions of the doings that will enliven the visit of the former president and ranchman to the Wyoming capital. Isn't he delightfully enthusiastic? 'Doings! There'll be doings every moment of the six days, doings that'll efface all memory of jungle wars, of temple bells, of languid tropics and the blare of musketry from the mind of Roosevelt—and then more doings. For Roosevelt will be as the heat to fire, as the light to the flame, as the sting to the winds that come romping off the hills to give him greeting. The great rough rider is the ideal of every western ranch rider, every man who loves the bronchos. And these same rough, hearty spirits of the west are the Roosevelt ideals of manhood. What a glad, noisy, grand reunion it will be when they get together in Cheyenne and Denver! In common with the rest of the west, Cheyenne deplors the passing of the 'old west,' with its picturesqueness and romance. That does not prevent Cheyenne, however, from taking advantage of modern conditions in adding attractions to its 'Frontier Days' celebration. While the chauffeur will not share equally with the cowboy and the broncho buster and the pony express rider in the honors of the great blow out, he will have a place just before the formal opening of the show. On Aug. 23 there will be at Cheyenne fast automobile races on one of the fastest tracks in the world. Two Roosevelt Tours. While Mr. Roosevelt has expressed his joy over his ability to accept Cheyenne's invitation for a two days' visit during the frontier celebration, it will be after all, only one incident of a long and busy trip. He will leave Oyster Bay in time to get to Cheyenne Aug. 26. From Cheyenne he goes to Denver, then, in the order given, to Osawatimie, Kan. (where he will speak on John Brown), Omaha, Sioux Falls, Fargo, St. Paul, Milwaukee, Freeport, Ill.; Chicago and Pittsburgh. After a three weeks' rest Mr. Roosevelt will set off on another tour, this time of the south. His first important stop will be made at Atlanta, Ga., on Oct. 5, a day set aside for the honoring of the memory of Joel Chandler Harris, the famous author, who was a personal friend of the former president. Mr. Roosevelt is an ardent admirer of the Georgian's work and will take occasion to extol him on "Uncle Remus day." St. Louis, Hot Springs, Ark., and Peoria, Ill., are among the other stops on Colonel Roosevelt's second itinerary. At each of his stopping places Mr. Roosevelt will make a speech. He will not eschew politics, but will deliver his opinions, in his own vigorous fashion, on the issues of the day.

Kansas Honors For "Brown of Osawatimie"

Perish with him the folly that seeks through evil good!
Long live the generous purpose unstained with human blood!
Not the raid of midnight terror, but the thought which underlies;
Not the borderer's pride of daring, but the Christian's sacrifice.
From "Brown of Osawatimie," by John Greenleaf Whittier.

WHEN the throngs assembled at Osawatimie, Kan., in the closing days of the current month to listen to an address on "Old John Brown of Osawatimie" by Theodore Roosevelt they will hear him express his opinion on a topic of the controversial sort in which he takes most delight. The occasion will be the turning over to the state of Kansas for a public park of the famous battleground whereon Brown and his comrades fought fifty-four years ago. Osawatimie has set itself with gladness of heart and pride of spirit to the task of entertaining Colonel Roosevelt and thousands of other guests. Kansans in general and Osawatimians in particular are immensely proud of the fact that their invitation to Roosevelt was one of the first—if not the very first—which the colonel accepted after his arrival in Europe from his African hunt. So Osawatimie will have the double joy of remembering the dead man to whom it owes the widespread knowledge of its own name and of honoring the living man. The task of relating something of the deeds of John Brown is not one to be approached with lightness of heart, even by Roosevelt. Although half a century, plus almost another year, has passed since he expired on the scaffold, his offense of seizing United States property at Harper's Ferry and thus declaring war with a small band of followers on thirty millions of people, historians are still divided in their judgment of him and his acts. "The man of the time called him hero, madman and almost everything between. It remained for an intelligent and highly trained historian, not of southern blood, a full generation after the fact when unmoved by the passions of the civil war period, to class him as a common criminal," says one of the most recent of Brown's biographers. He adds: "That judgment of John Brown is perhaps further from the truth than any opinion entertained of him fifty years ago by intelligent and educated men of whatever political faith. Brown was an anarchist toward a single group of unjust human laws because he felt so acutely their conflict with what he deemed divine law. This attitude toward statutes and constitutional compromises led him into acts, vain if you will and those of a monomaniac, but not those of a common criminal." The battle of Osawatimie, to be commemorated by the Roosevelt address and the erection of a new state park, was one of the most striking incidents in the western career of John Brown before he turned his attention, with fatal results, to the eastern states. As the inscription on the battlefield monument, his sons, pitted against a force of 400 Missourians who opposed the field, but Brown withdrew in victory. The biographers of Brown unite in deprecating his early life. His roving disposition and frequent change of occupation lend color to the charges of shiftlessness and improvidence. His obsession by the anti-slavery idea is variously termed fanaticism and righteous indignation. Whatever the view that may be taken of it, there is no doubt that he devoted to it wholeheartedly himself and his large family. "History can hardly parallel so large a family's unanimity of self sacrifice for a social ideal, in whose behalf they stinted themselves ungrudgingly," says a recent writer. It was, of course, Brown's strong personality and the vigor with which he pursued the abolitionist ideal that led to the devotion to his cause of his wife and his twelve sons. John Brown was born in Torrington, Conn., of good Puritan stock May 9, 1800. His grandfather was a captain in the Revolution. His father was known as an opponent of slavery. After following various occupations, marrying and begetting a large family John Brown, in 1848, bought a farm at North Elba, N. Y., where he is buried. He wandered over New York, Ohio, Connecticut and other states, everywhere participating actively in the anti-slavery cause. The settling of five of his sons in Kansas and their identification with the free soil cause drew him to that state. His career in Kansas gave him national prominence, and his visionary scheme of establishing in the Maryland or Virginia mountains a refuge for escaped slaves led to the battle at Harper's Ferry and the final tragedy at Charleston, Va. (now West Virginia), Dec. 2, 1859. ARNOLD M'ADAMS.

Hetty Green's Son Called to Her Assistance

NEW YORK'S gain is Texas' loss. That's the way Texas looks at the removal of Edward Howland Robinson Green from Terrell, Tex., to the nation's metropolis. How New York looks at it is not yet recorded. There are more millionaires and railroad presidents in New York city than there are in Texas, and the addition of one did not make much of a splash in the New York puddle—that is, speaking figuratively. Literally considered, if Edward two other names Green fell into either of New York's two rivers he'd make considerable of a splash. He is more than six feet tall and weighs in the neighborhood of 300 pounds. It isn't in size merely that the only son of Hetty Green is a big man. He has gone to New York to take on his broad shoulders some of the financial burdens of his aging mother, the wealthy Mrs. Hetty Green, but the men who know him say that he is mentally as well as physically qualified to assume the responsibility. Texas has had him seventeen years, and now Mrs. Green thinks that it is her turn. Her astute brain is beginning to feel the strain of decades of the very shrewdest sort of financial manipulation. In seeking a staff whereon to rest in her declining years she naturally turned to her only son. She is seventy-five years old. Mrs. Green's fortune was estimated recently at $10,000,000. Many persons believe it is much more than that. Reverting to our first statement, about the acquisition of Edward H. R. Green by New York being considered a loss by Texas: Ever since the time, seventeen years ago, when Hetty Green sent her boy Eddie to Texas to look after her interests in the big state he has made it a point to cultivate intimate relationships with the Texans. Throughout the state he is known as Ed Green. He does not resent the familiar appellation—far from it. In Texas "half fellow well met" is synonymous with Ed Green. That is, in social and political relationships. When you get on the practical side of the line that separates the social Ed Green from the business man, railroad president, ranch owner, real estate promoter, etc., you meet a totally different man. He shucks off the appellation Ed Green then and becomes Edward H. R. Green, president of the Texas Midland railroad, son of the famous woman financier and himself a financier with the ability to give points in the game to all but the very leaders of the profession. In this Mr. Green is only showing the workings of the laws of heredity. For four or five generations the Greens on his father's side and the Robinsons on his mother's—especially the latter—have been moneyed folks, with the inclination and the ability not only to hold on to their money, but to make it increase exceedingly. Hetty Green herself in the fine flower of being a family tree, but her son is only a little, if any, inferior to her in the money getting and money keeping line. He is a bachelor, forty-two years old. There is good American blood in Hetty Green, her son and her only daughter, Sylvia, married a few years ago to Matthew A. Wilks. In an interview Hetty Green once repudiated with indignation some of the newspaper stories attributing lowly origin to her. "The Robinsons are as good as any family in America," she said, "and the Greens are equally good. Go to the little cemetery on the hill back of the old town of Plymouth, the old-steam yacht owned on its gulf coast. His little railroad has the very latest and most expensive forms of equipment and with a wireless telegraph system in the devising of which its president took a leading part. Mr. Green is keenly interested in various forms of sport, despite the lameness with which he has been afflicted since his boyhood. Among the forms which the liking takes is that of devotion to baseball and the capture of the tarpon, the giant fish of the east white men's cemetery in America, and you will find there among the graves some of the stones of my ancestors. You will find them among the oldest stones too." Getting back to modern times in this tale of the Greens, let us say that while Hetty Green's son resembles her in financial ability, shrewdness and "closeness" so far as business is concerned, he does not resemble her in what might be termed more personal characteristics. In Chicago and in New York, where he lived before his twenty-fifth year, when he removed to Texas, he had the reputation of being a free spender for anything he really wanted. He owned the first automo-

free soil ideas of the settlers from eastern states. Eulogists and censors of Brown unite in praise of his physical hardihood on this and other occasions. The action at Osawatimie is sometimes compared with the historic battle at Thermopylae between Leonidas and his 800 Spartans and the Persians. There is this difference: the body of Leonidas was left on the

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—The ground in the state house yard is filled with the "pup" tents of the first regiment, Ohio National guard, who arrived from Cincinnati early today. There has been very little rioting since the announcement that troops would be again in Columbus.

The thirty three mutinous policemen who refused to go on the cars when ordered by Mayor Marshall were formally discharged today.

MEMBERS OF G. A. R.

Want the New State Named After Lincoln

NEWTON, Aug. 16.—A movement to have the name of Abraham Lincoln commemorated by giving the name of Lincoln to the latest state to be admitted to the Union has been started by members of the G. A. R. post of this city. The local post is trying to have the movement endorsed by the Grand Army as a body. At the last regular meeting of the post the following resolutions were adopted:

"Whereas, a new star is about to be added to our flag by the admission to the Union of another state, therefore,

"Resolved, that Charles Ward post, No. 62, of Newton, department of Massachusetts, G. A. R., suggests that the new state be admitted under the name of Lincoln, in honor of Abraham Lincoln."

"Resolved, that we suggest to the commander of the department of Massachusetts that he take the matter up with the various posts of this department for their endorsement and that proper steps be taken to bring it to the attention of the competent authorities at an early date, in the name of the Grand Army of the Republic."

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—The Iron Mountain fast mail which left here at 2.30 o'clock this morning was derailed at Annapolis, Mo., 112 miles south of here, while going at a high speed. The conductor's leg was broken and five mail clerks were bruised. The train carried no passengers.

CADETS IN CAMP

Young Soldiers Cheered as They Boarded the Cars

No happier regiment of soldiers ever left Lowell than were the O. M. I. Cadets when they boarded special cars at 1.15 this afternoon, bound for Milligan's grove between Tewksbury and Wilmington, to enter on their annual tour of camp duty. The cadets with full ranks left their army in the immaculate Conception school and marched to the cars amid the cheers of their parents and people of the parish. The boys reached the grounds at 1.45 and immediately were assigned to their quarters. Accompanying them were Rev. Dennis A. Sullivan, O. M. I. chaplain, Lieut. Bernard McArdle and Police Officer Matthew McCann, who is athletic instructor of the boys. The tents are pitched in a pine grove and are ideally located. When all had been assigned to quarters they were called to the drill field by Lieut. McArdle and dress parade was in order.

The boys made a grand showing and Lieut. McArdle was greatly pleased. Tomorrow will be the big day of the camp, and in the afternoon and evening it is expected that the grounds will be crowded with visitors. There will be a special parade and review in the late afternoon and a band concert in the evening in honor of Chief Marshal Humphrey O'Sullivan of the A. O. H. parade, who has been a great friend of the cadets. The boys take this means of showing their appreciation of what Mr. O'Sullivan has done for them, and they also want to let him get some idea of the showing they intend to make in the big parade next week. Mr. O'Sullivan will address the boys, and the occasion will be a great gala affair. It is probable that in addition to the band concert, the young soldiers will give an impromptu concert for the entertainment of their friends.

THE ROQUE TOURNAMENT
NORWICH, Conn., Aug. 16.—The roque tournament of the National association was begun today on the courts which for many years have been the place for the championship contests. The drawings for the three divisions have been made and sixteen of the best players are in third division. The national champion is Harold Bosworth of New London, a schoolboy. His chief opponent will be C. C. King of Chicago.

In each division a player meets with every other player in that division and winners go to the players with the most victories.

The opening games resulted as follows:

First division—H. T. Webb, Philadelphia, beat W. L. Robinson, Mansfield, Mass.; C. C. King, Chicago, beat Jacobus, Springfield, Mass.; F. H. Foss, Norwich, beat Charles Jacobus, Springfield, Mass.

Second division—J. E. Webb, Philadelphia, beat J. L. Dudley, Washington; J. D. Miner, Providence, beat J. C. Faver, Bangor, Me.; E. W. Robinson, Mansfield, Mass., beat Faver.

Third division—L. Stockwell, Norwich, beat P. Shingleton.

ESPERANTO CONGRESS
WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Special committees on the work of the international Esperanto congress held meetings here this morning. Special meetings are being arranged for civil and mechanical engineers, lawyers, physicians and railroad men.

JAMES T. BOYLE

Made Stubborn Fight Against Arrest

James T. Boyle started a roughhouse exhibition in the saloon of the Belvidere hotel in Prescott street yesterday afternoon and later had a "run in" with the police. He gave the police a battle before he was subdued and landed at the police station. He was badly hampered before he ceased to fight.

In police court this morning he was charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on John J. Brennan, a clerk at the hotel. Through his counsel, Joseph F. Loughran, he entered a plea of not guilty and a continuance till Thursday was asked for and granted by the court. He was held under $500 bonds on the assault charge and $100 for drunkenness, his personal recognizance being taken for the latter bond.

According to the police, Boyle entered the hotel bar and got into an argument with Mr. Brennan with the result that he struck Mr. Brennan over the head. He then ran out and made his way through Middle street. At about the same time Joseph E. Considine, one of the recently appointed supernumerary patrolmen, in citizen's clothes, was passing through Middle street and noting the condition of Boyle's face questioned him as to where he had been. He said that he had been assaulted by a man and was running away from him. This story did not go with the officer, however, and he asked Boyle to accompany him to where the alleged assailant was.

Considine and Boyle walked side by side through Middle street until they came to the alleyway near the Talbot Chemical Co.'s works. When Boyle struck the officer and started through the alley. Considine started after him and soon succeeded in catching up to him and after considerable difficulty succeeded in subduing him.

A pair of handcuffs were snapped on Boyle's wrists and he was escorted to the police station. On the way Inspector John Walsh was met and he assisted in arresting the man. Boyle did not like the idea of the inspector interfering and raising his mangled hands brought his two hands and the cuffs down on Inspector Walsh's head, smashing the latter's hat. The inspector retaliated by landing Boyle an open hander on the side of the face which quelled the disturber until he reached the police station.

Boyle is well known to the police and has raised considerable trouble for them. A few years ago when he was wanted by the police word was telephoned to this city that he was on a Lawrence car bound for Lowell. Several officers were stationed in the square to capture Boyle, but he saw them first and jumping over the railing of the car just before it reached Merrimack square ran through one of the side streets toward the canal, plunged into the canal, swam across and pulling himself out of the water entered the yard of the Massachusetts mills and after leading the police a merry chase managed to escape over a high picket fence.

A few months after that while passing through Merrimack street several floors above him and a wave chase. He led them through a maze of streets and alleys and finally finding himself cornered entered a house and hid in the cellar. When the police located him he put up a hot battle and it took four men to subdue him.

VET.'S WIDOW

May Lose Her Right to Pension

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—The pension authorities of this state will be called upon in a few days to decide whether the widow of a man who did not like the name bestowed upon him by his parents and had it changed to another name is entitled to a pension due the wife of a veteran of the Civil war.

Lucille Boyd, who died in Worcester yesterday, is the name of the man who changed his name. When still in his teens Boyd had his first name changed to "Till" and always went by that name.

When he enlisted in the Civil war, however, Boyd enlisted under his right name, Lucille. Upon the close of the four years of fighting the man married, taking out the certificate under the name of "Till Boyd."

Yesterday Mrs. Boyd expressed considerable fear that she would not be able to secure the pension to which she is entitled to, owing to her dead husband enlisting and marrying under two different names.

The widow also stated that she has ample proofs to show that Lucille and Till Boyd were one and the same person.

Boyd died at his home, 30 Beacon street, Worcester, Sunday afternoon, at the age of 62.

The man was a wireworker by trade, being employed in the factory of the Building Finish company on Hermon street, that city.

He was born in Hopkinton, and was the son of Thomas Boyd. Besides a wife, one son, Louis E., and a brother, Theophilus F. of Elyon, survive him.

Drowned From Spanish Steamer After a Collision

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 16.—The Spanish steamer Martos foundered this morning off Tarifa on the African coast opposite Gibraltar after a collision with the German steamer Elsa.

Thirty-nine were drowned, of whom 32 were passengers. The survivors were landed here.

A dense fog prevailed at the time of the collision.

Nine of the victims on the Martos were first cabin passengers. The other twenty-three passengers who perished were in the steerage. The bow of the Elsa was stove in by the collision and her forepeak filled quickly with water. The steamer, however, managed to keep afloat.

Alleged Method of Falsifying Them is Explained

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 16.—An explanation of the alleged method used by Richard Ingersoll, the 77 year old bank treasurer, to conceal the York county savings bank loss on western securities a quarter of a century ago by making the affairs of the bank appear more prosperous than they really were has been given. This bank closed its doors because of irregularities in the accounts which will cause a shortage, the extent of which will not be known until the passbooks have been examined. The changing of the books was said to have been done in this way: "If for the week there were $5000 in deposits and $3000 of withdrawals and $500 interest on loans, the interest account was swelled to $1500, by adding another $1000 on the books, while the withdrawals were increased by $1000, thus making the books of the bank balance. The depositors were in this way given full credit upon the cash books for their deposits but their books did not show the withdrawals which only appeared on the bank's books."

Strong in His Denunciation of the "Insurgent"

DANVILLE, Ill., Aug. 16.—Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the house, in an interview last night denounced insurgents, said that he would be a candidate for the speakership of the next houses and declares that reports of a contemplated reorganization of the republican party originated with insurgents and democrats.

Referring to the despatches from Beverly, Mr. Cannon said: "I don't believe Mr. Taft contemplates any such action. The president is not the kind of man to yield to every passing whim of a minority. The story that Senators Aldrich and Hale and myself were to be thrown out of the party will be found, when traced to its source, to have originated with some of the insurgents, democratic allies whose wishes are father to the thought."

"I expected to be re-elected to congress by an overwhelming majority and then I will be a candidate for speaker, but always subject to the will of the people. If I am beaten in the caucus, which I believe is remote, I will willingly take my place in the ranks."

Answering the question "Will you be a candidate for re-election as speaker of the next house?" Mr. Cannon said: "I have been asked that question frequently, especially by our democratic friends and their practical allies, the followers of La Follette and Cincinnatus. I have answered it but so far the answer as I gave it has never been published by our friends, the enemy."

"I am speaker of the house, elected by a republican majority four times. I have been in harmony with and have to the best of my ability co-operated with the republican majority in the house."

BIG STRIKE IN SALEM

Over 1000 Shoe Workers to Leave the Factories Today

SALEM, Aug. 16.—A general strike of union employes in the Salem shoe factories was begun today and it was expected by union officials that before tonight more than 1000 shoe factory workers would have quit their benches. The strike came as the result of a meeting of the United Shoe-workers of America last night, at which it was voted almost unanimously to declare a general strike of the union men if a conference this morning failed to bring about a settlement of the troubles that have existed for some time between the union and L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. The chief issue is the demand of the union that several union employes who are alleged to have been looked out by the L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. be reinstated.

The conference this forenoon between the representatives of the union and the officials of the L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. failed to reach an agreement and at 10.15 the general quitting of union men began. First the cutters employed in the factory of the Jonathan Brown & Sons Co. left their work and marched down Canal street in a body. On their way down the street they passed the factories of the Woodberry Shoe Co., P. A. Fields & Co. and the L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. and at each factory the ranks of the strikers were strengthened. The unions participating in the strike include the lasters, the Mackay stitchers, the stockfitters, the treasers and the ironers. The cutters, although not affiliated with the United Shoe-workers of America, have voted to join the strike. It is generally believed that the four factories of the Cass & Daly Co., the largest shoe manufacturing plant in the city will not be affected inasmuch as the Cass & Daly firm recently adopted a union stamp. The union leaders say that the strike will be carried across to the adjoining city of Beverly. The union officials claim that several of the Beverly shoe manufacturers whom they do not name, have joined with the Salem manufacturers in the fight against the union.

Officials Plan New Campaign to Extinguish Them

KULISPELL, Mont., Aug. 16.—With the best organized and largest force of forest fire fighters that has been mustered to fight the fires in the glacier national park, the Flathead national forest and the Flathead national reservations' officials in charge of those portions of the national domain will begin a new and thorough campaign against the flames today.

The new forces comprise three companies of the 25th infantry for the park and the Flathead forest which arrived here yesterday from Spokane and possibly two for the reservation, which two were due at a station on the reservation last evening.

In addition to the soldiers, the fighters in the park number nearly 100 men. The general situation is but little improved, although a light rain last night helped the firefighters.

Fires are still burning on islands in Flathead lake.

Is Looking For Murder Suspect

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 16.—A Greek police officer from Lowell, Mass., arrived today to take up the search in this state for Nicholas Capasalakos, or Capasalis, the Greek who is wanted for the alleged murder of his aunt at Somersworth, N. It was learned that the murderer left this city between 5 and 6 p.m. Sunday, going to Portland or Lewiston or to both those cities.

WILLIAM H. LOONEY

LOWELL BOY RESCUED A MAN FROM DROWNING

William H. Looney, one of Lowell's well known musicians, now playing at the National picture house in New Bedford, proved himself a hero a few days ago by saving a young man from drowning. Jack Lawrence of New Bedford is the man who owes his life to the heroic act of Mr. Looney. While diving from a pier Mr. Lawrence struck his head against some object and was put out of commission. Mr. Looney swam to his rescue as Mr. Lawrence was going down for the third time and grabbed him and it was with great difficulty that he brought him safely to shore.

MUNSEY AUTO TOUR

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—Twenty-eight of the 31 autos entered in the Munsey historic tour of the New England and Middle Atlantic states left here on schedule time today. The pilot car left the Hotel Walton, the starting point of the 1550 mile tour, at 5 a. m. and at 7 o'clock the first of the entrants got away. The other cars followed at ten minute intervals. "Today's run is to West Point, N. Y., a distance of 160.2 miles, and the scheduled mile for one stop at Morristown, N. J. Owing to copious rains during the last two days heavy roads were encountered during the morning. Leaving West Point tomorrow morning the run will be to New London, Conn. The automobile will be in Boston Thursday night, Portland, Me., Friday night and Hingham, N. H., Saturday evening, where the big party will remain until Monday morning.

A BRIDGE JUMPER

Taken in Charge by the Police

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—As a result of a wager made with a companion with whom he had visited several Coney Island resorts Sunday, William Cruikshank, a decorator of White Plains, jumped from the Brooklyn bridge near the Brooklyn tower and escaped, little hurt, swimming almost to the foot of Dock street, where the boatmen from a schooner lassoed him and dragged him aboard.
With a companion, Melville Snow, Cruikshank started across the bridge from Manhattan on a trolley car. As they passed the Brooklyn pier, both men jumped from the car.
Cruikshank hurried toward the railing, throwing off his clothes as he ran. He paused but an instant, then plunged toward the river, 110 feet below.
He went spinning over and over, narrowly missing the end of the pier, and struck the water squarely on his chest. When he reappeared he struck out for the Brooklyn shore, refusing aid from two tugs, but was finally roped.
At the Brooklyn hospital it was found that his back was strained and he had sustained possible internal injuries, but his hurts were said to be not serious.
Cruikshank was arrested, and Snow also was held when he appeared carrying the diver's clothes, and spoke of a $500 bet which had induced Cruikshank to make the leap.

BRANDISHED A GUN

Girl Cleaned Out a Restaurant in Cambridge

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Brandishing a loaded revolver of heavy calibre, with which she threatened to shoot on sight some man, whose name the police have not been able to learn, 18 year old Helen Skehan of 101 Plympton street, Cambridge, yesterday terrorized a portion of that city.

Seldom has there been a scene of greater excitement in the University City than there was yesterday when the young woman appeared in a Central square drug store, where she demanded something to quiet her nerves. Her eyes were gleaming brightly, as she made the request of the drug clerk, but before the young man had a chance to comply the girl drew from the folds of her dress a revolver of large size and commanded him to hasten.

As she entered the store the clerk remembers that she was talking in an excited manner, apparently to herself, about some man she wished to meet. But as the gun flashed into sight, the soda dispenser promptly ducked beneath the soda fountain, and from there crawled to the rear of the store.
Still muttering to herself, the girl, with her masses of coal black hair disheveled about her shoulders, rushed from the store and down Massachusetts avenue. At the time the avenue was crowded with pedestrians, many of them women and children.
All the time the girl, whose mysterious quest with the revolver has puzzled the entire police force of Cambridge, grew wilder and more excited in all her actions. With the muzzle of the gun pointed in all directions, she drove people to cover on every side, the thoroughly frightened pedestrians taking refuge behind anything and everything that offered cover.

She then went into a lunch room at Brookline street, concealing the weapon in her dress.
The lunch room was filled at the time with patrons, but appetites were forgotten instantly when the girl drew the gun and demanded that she be told where a certain man was located. The proprietor said that he did not know where the man was. Then the girl made a sweeping motion with her revolver and there was a general scramble in all directions for cover, one man knocking the cash register to the floor as he jumped over the counter.
As Miss Skehan rushed down the avenue Officer Andrew Conlin of station 2 caught a glimpse of the flying figure and started in pursuit.
He arrived in time for the scene in the restaurant, and placed the girl under arrest.

The eccentric actions of the girl, coupled with her glaring eyes, led the police matron to believe that she was either intoxicated or suffering from the effects of a powerful drug.
Later Miss Skehan was arraigned in the Cambridge district court on the charge of carrying a loaded revolver. She said she was 15 years old.
Her arraignment came before the juvenile session of the district court, the hearing being continued until Saturday morning.
In the meantime she was placed in the charge of Probation Officer Frank A. Hagar.
Last night the girl still continued to huddle at intervals about some man whose name could not be learned. Who she has in mind nobody seems to be able to find out.

CHINA'S PROGRESS

Envoy From That Country Tells What is Being Done

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Dr. Lin Pu Sui, special investigator for the Chinese government in this country, has been the guest of his countrymen in this city during the past two weeks, and has been the recipient of many attentions at their hands.
Scorning the excellent bill of fare set up for his personal at the hotel where he has been staying since Aug. 8, the noted son of the flowery kingdom has turned to the fare of his own country, eating at all times among his fellow countrymen, partaking of the usual viands and delicacies that gladden the hearts of the Chinese.
Dr. Sui is a great admirer of America, and a great admirer, particularly of the country's progressiveness. He says that to his mind there is no other country like it on the globe. In the way of democracy, liberality in public affairs, religious tolerance and in many other respects.

He says that during the past two years he has been making extensive researches in this country, on behalf of his government. He has been preparing reports on the finances and resources of the country and also upon the condition of the Chinese in American cities.
He leaves for Newport today, and on the eve of his departure, from Boston he consented to make a statement for publication.
"China in 1900 will be the United States of the world," said Dr. Lin Pu Sui yesterday. "It will take a commanding position in commerce, industry and education similar to that now held by the United States."
Speaking of the Chinese in Boston, he said: "They get fair treatment here. I find, from all Americans, except possibly the police, the delays and vexations connected with the disposal of the cases against the men who were supposed to have been murderers on Harrison avenue some four years ago embittered many Chinese against Boston."
"The Chinese go back to their native Canton, say they are not being treated fairly by the Americans, incite their countrymen to start an American boycott and there is trouble all around."

"The government is opposed to anti-American measures for just now China finds it to her great advantage to be on the right side of the United States. We who are born in families of the governing classes have little complaint to make against Americans. The discontent is chiefly among the lower classes."

"My grandfather was viceroy of the Province of Kwang Tung, in which is the great city, Canton, some 30 years ago, and while in office did much to check the opium traffic and the use of opium in the city."

"It was his wish, that our family should forever stand out strong against opium, and every opium-smoking Chinaman I meet I try to influence to desist."

"China has recently come to realize," he continued, "that the secret of success is knowledge. If you would know the world you must master all its details, just as in a successful business a general manager needs to have a thorough knowledge of his enterprise."

"It is no secret that the Chinese government sends out young men of education like myself into the world to acquire knowledge that will aid her in becoming a more important power in the world. You surely realize what a second United States we have across the Pacific, and as soon as we know how to act there will be plenty of activity."

"Our hope is in the young people of the nation. Every child that is born in China today has the same brain capacity as a child in America. There is material for a Theodore Roosevelt in China just as there was in America. All that is needed is the teaching to make the children of China rise to become masters in commerce, industry and literature."

"We are ambitious for our country. We want to see her advance. I am now 28 years old and before I die I want to see China's prosperity, as a result of education, greatly increased. Therefore I hope that China will be a second United States, surpassing this country even, before 1900, but I feel pretty certain that at the end of 50 years anyway, China will have found herself."

PRES. TAFT'S ENVOY

Did Not Win Col. Roosevelt Over to the Administration

OSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 16.—No tidings went forth from Sagamore Hill yesterday at the conclusion of the conference between Theodore Roosevelt and Lloyd C. Griscom, chairman of the New York Republican county committee.

The county chairman is known to have been the bearer of a message from President Taft, and it was generally supposed that the message was sent in the hope of obtaining Colonel Roosevelt's outspoken support for a move to obtain harmony within the republican party.

Despite Colonel Roosevelt's reticence, it is believed that he has mapped out a program which does not include, for the present, at least, a definite endorsement of the Taft administration. There is good ground for the belief that the visit of Mr. Griscom yesterday, on his return from Beverly, has not caused him to alter his opinion.

When Mr. Griscom went away, after a talk which lasted most of the day, the only thing he was willing to speak about was the New York state situation.
He said Taft and Roosevelt were in entire accord in that regard.
Colonel Roosevelt would not allow interviewers to get any closer to his home than the tennis court, in the bottom of the hill.

Mr. Griscom reached Sagamore Hill well before noon and stayed until it began to grow dark. Then he went to Cold Spring Harbor, on the edge of Colonel Roosevelt's estate, where his motor boat was waiting to take him back to New York.
The county chairman was not anxious to make it appear that he had come to Sagamore Hill as an emissary from the president. He not only said that the president did not send him, but he added that Mr. Taft did not know that yesterday's conference was to be held. Nor did Charles D. Norton, secretary of the president, know he was to visit Mr. Roosevelt, he declared. Some one mentioned the fact that Mr. Norton rode all the way from Boston to New York with Mr. Griscom, but the county chairman repeated the assertion that Mr. Norton knew nothing of his visit to Colonel Roosevelt.

"Why did you come to see Colonel Roosevelt?" he was asked.
"I've been wanting to see him for some time," was the reply.
"But didn't you see him in New York last Friday just before you went to Beverly?"
Mr. Griscom recalled that fact, but insisted that there was no significance in his two visits.
"How do the views of President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt coincide in reference to national politics?" was the next question.
The county chairman, paused for some time before he replied:
"I did not discuss national politics to any great length with President Taft." "Are they agreed as to the New York situation?"
"Yes, I have discussed candidates and platforms, and the whole New York state situation with both of them and their views coincide."

Mr. Griscom said that no names had been mentioned prominently for the gubernatorial nomination, although a good many had been considered. He said it was too early to settle on a man, and that it would be necessary to consult with leaders in various parts of the state before a choice could be made.

FIGHT IS CLOSE

For Republican Nomination for Governor in California

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—Voting California is devoting itself today to selecting its party candidate for state offices, who will oppose each other at the general election in November. It is the first direct primary held throughout the state and nominees for every state office, many county and municipal offices and for California's eight seats in congress will be chosen.

By far the greatest registration of the primaries ever accorded in the state has been reported and the great majority have declared themselves republicans. The figuring would be misleading as indicating the true strength of the parties, however, as the harmony in the democratic party has removed the need of voting strength and many democrats the registered as republicans in order to participate in the five cornered gubernatorial contest being fought out today. Theodore Bell, the only democratic candidate for governor, unquestionably will lead his party in the general election. The rest of the ticket, with the exception of the fourth congressional district, presents but one name for each office to the voters.

Interest in the republican fight for the gubernatorial nomination has been worked to a high pitch. Of the five men whose names appear on the ballots it is virtually conceded today that the race lies between Charles F. Curry, present secretary of state, and Hiram Johnson, who leads the "insurgent" element of the party. The candidate of the "regulars," Alden Anderson, state superintendent of banks, has made a strong fight, but with Curry, Phillips, Stanton, speaker of the assembly, and Nathaniel Ellery, state engineer, making strong personal campaigns, besides Johnson's fight on national issues, the odds are against him. Of the eight congressional districts the struggle between William Kent and Duncan McKinley in the second is the most interesting. Kent is a millionaire of "insurgent" tendencies and has made his campaign on conservation and similar issues. McKinley is the incumbent. The incumbents also are out for nomination in the other seven districts.

An advisory vote for United States senator to succeed F. P. Flint is being taken. Three republicans were in the "Feeding Seals at Catalonia Island" is an interesting nature picture and others complete a very pleasing bill. The musical program furnished by James and Lillian Baies is unequalled.

PRES. TAFT'S ENVOY

Did Not Win Col. Roosevelt Over to the Administration

OSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 16.—No tidings went forth from Sagamore Hill yesterday at the conclusion of the conference between Theodore Roosevelt and Lloyd C. Griscom, chairman of the New York Republican county committee.

The county chairman is known to have been the bearer of a message from President Taft, and it was generally supposed that the message was sent in the hope of obtaining Colonel Roosevelt's outspoken support for a move to obtain harmony within the republican party.

Despite Colonel Roosevelt's reticence, it is believed that he has mapped out a program which does not include, for the present, at least, a definite endorsement of the Taft administration. There is good ground for the belief that the visit of Mr. Griscom yesterday, on his return from Beverly, has not caused him to alter his opinion.

When Mr. Griscom went away, after a talk which lasted most of the day, the only thing he was willing to speak about was the New York state situation.
He said Taft and Roosevelt were in entire accord in that regard.
Colonel Roosevelt would not allow interviewers to get any closer to his home than the tennis court, in the bottom of the hill.

Mr. Griscom reached Sagamore Hill well before noon and stayed until it began to grow dark. Then he went to Cold Spring Harbor, on the edge of Colonel Roosevelt's estate, where his motor boat was waiting to take him back to New York.
The county chairman was not anxious to make it appear that he had come to Sagamore Hill as an emissary from the president. He not only said that the president did not send him, but he added that Mr. Taft did not know that yesterday's conference was to be held. Nor did Charles D. Norton, secretary of the president, know he was to visit Mr.

LETTER CARRIER Will Take Part in Sham Battle

at Canobie

His Children and Himself

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—A complaint was sent to the Gerry society several days ago that a letter carrier, Robert H. Mack, was living in the hallway of 506 Tenth avenue with his two children, George, 6 years old, and James, 4. The women who made the complaint, Mrs. Jennie Smith of 512 Tenth avenue and Mrs. James Dennett of 506 Tenth avenue, protested that the children were not receiving the proper care.

The matter was turned over to the police and when Mack was arrested last night it was found that he apparently had made preparations to shoot himself, his two sons and a saloon keeper, whom he accused of running away with his wife, Minnetta.

Mack, who is attached to the Long-acre Square station, was dispossessed from his rooms at 506 Tenth avenue last Friday for not paying his rent. He begged the janitress, Mrs. Dennett, to allow him to occupy the empty rooms, but she refused. Since that time, according to Mrs. Dennett, the man and his two boys have been living from hand to mouth and sleeping wherever they could find shelter. When Policeman Thon found them last night they were in the hallway of their former home.

The first thing taken from the man's pockets at the station house was a revolver with all the chambers loaded. There was also a letter showing that Mack intended murder and suicide.

Mack said he had put his household effects in storage, but the police found paytickets which indicate that they are in pawn. Mack is on 19 days leave, he said, and has $20 salary coming to him.

The letter, which Mack had written on postoffice paper in a Tenth avenue restaurant, says a saloon keeper whom he names "is to blame for all my trouble," and goes on: "I intend to put away my two children and to put myself in a hospital. I will put away that son of a bitch also if I get a chance to do so."

The letter directs the postoffice to pay Mack's salary to James L. Allesbury of Corona, L. I., with the stipulation that none of it shall be paid to Mack's wife. It also says that all his other effects shall go to Allesbury.

In a postscript Mack says: "It seems better to me that the two children should depart from this world of care and sorrows rather than live through life with the stigma of shame and degradation attached to them. I love them and for that reason only I wish them to go with me. I am not insane and I know perfectly well every foolstep I take in my actions."

The children said that their father had always treated them well. They did not want to leave him when they were taken to the Gerry society. Mack is held on charges of vagrancy and carrying a concealed weapon.

A very enthusiastic meeting was held after mass at the Canobie Lake theatre, Sunday, for the lawn party in aid of the immaculate conception church at Salem Depot, to be held next Saturday afternoon and evening, at the ball grounds in the park.

The various committees reported a very favorable week and by Saturday everything will be in readiness for the big event.

After the meeting the committee on the sham battle together with Lieut. Soafroff, Co. I, Lawrence, and Lieut. Doyle, Co. G of Lowell, proceeded to the ball grounds and there laid plans for the sham battle. A fort which is to take in the whole northwest corner of the grounds, will be erected for the defending force and the invaders will enter over the fence, at a point only known to themselves. Upon taking their position of attack they will advance under fire of the company in possession of the fort. Should the invaders force the defenders from their stronghold, they will take possession of the fortification and await a like attack from the company just driven out, which after scaling the fence behind the fort, will re-enter the field and strive to retake the stronghold. Should the invading army hold the invaders at bay, the prize will be theirs. Should the defenders retake the fort, however, the contest will be decided a draw.

Prominent militia men will referee the contest and award the winning company the beautiful cup, donated by Peter Graham, the Methuen blacksmith.

Both companies will arrive at the lake about 3.30 o'clock, where they will pitch their tents.

At 5 o'clock the competition drill will take place. This feature will give the onlooker an idea of what is expected of militia men and should prove spectacular as well as interesting.

After the drill the boys will return to their respective mess tents and partake of refreshments, prepared for them by the young ladies on the committee.

At 7 o'clock the battle begins and then a performance starts which not even Coney Island is capable of reproducing.

Superintendent Woodman of the Southern New Hampshire railroad has arranged for extra cars to accommodate the large crowd expected to attend the lawn party.

him. He was good to me when I was ill and helpless. And I love him."

FOR A.O.H. WEEK
Committee to Confer
With Board of Trade

Upon receipt of the communication of the board of trade notifying the Central council of the A. O. H. of the appointment of a special committee to act with it in connection with the program of Hibernian week, the central body met in special session and appointed a sub-committee, to confer with the board of trade committee tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock at the board of trade rooms. The A. O. H. committee consists of Humphrey O'Sullivan, Daniel E. Hogan, Michael O'Mullin, Patrick Connolly, John C. McQuirk, James O'Sullivan, Hugh B. McQuirk, John P. Sheehan, John Barrett, Robert J. Crowley and John W. McEvoy.

The board of trade committee is as follows:

Chairman, Harvey B. Greene, president of the board; secretary, John H. Murphy; Dr. J. E. Lamoureux, chairman of the school board; Walter Guyette, John A. Hunneveel, manager of the Lowell Electric Light Co.; Patrick O'Hearn, John C. Burke, Frederick A. Fisher, Daniel Carroll, Elisha J. Neale, Harry Dunlap, Henry L. Rourke and Frank P. Putnam.

It is expected that this committee's work will be principally looking after and entertaining the distinguished visitors who are slated to come to this city.

Judging from the manner in which the decorators are scurrying around town, there will be a general display of bunting throughout the city. The first display to appear was on Hibernian hall in Merrimack square, which went up today.

The Wolf Tone Guards will meet tonight to receive final orders for the great parade.

DIED IN ASYLUM

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Miss Mary Hammel, whose eventful life extended back eighty-one years, was buried yesterday in the family plot at Elmhurst, L. I. Miss Hammel, granddaughter of Philip Freneau, who once opposed Washington for the presidency, and who was called by Washington "The Barking Dog of the Revolution," spent a life brimming over with trouble. Losing her family by death, she finally lost her fortune and would have been penniless but for friends.

Several years ago Miss Hammel and sister were swindled out of their estate. Soon after Miss Hammel was found starving in an old house in Flushing. Friends aided her, and finally her property was restored. Two years ago her mind became unbalanced after an automobile accident, and she was placed in the Central Islip asylum, where she died.

SPAULDING'S SHOE SHOP

"Infant" Industry Working 52
Weeks Per YearWill Give Its Help a Big Outing on August 27—Sends McKay
Shoes to Europe and the Philippines

The first annual outing of the employees of the L. I. Spaulding shoe shop will take place on Aug. 27th, when the entire plant will close down for the entire day and the company will entertain its employees at Nabasset grove.

Other big shoe manufacturing cities the shoe shop outings are annual events of more than ordinary importance and it is pleasing to see the Lowell shoe shops following the examples of the other cities. The Federal company started the annual shoe shop outings in Lowell and the Spaulding company has taken up the practice.

The manufacturing of shoes in Lowell is somewhat of an infant industry, but is a busy and fast developing industry, and according to Secretary Murphy of the board of trade more than one shoe concern is looking at Lowell as a good place in which to establish a plant.

The L. I. Spaulding plant came here from Woburn, N. H., some eight years ago, starting in with a modest plant. Now its business takes up a considerable portion of two buildings and it averages 350 employees, who work the full 52 weeks per year.

The Spaulding company is engaged in the manufacture of McKay shoes, men's and women's slippers and men's "nullifiers." Last, like the writer, there may be some who don't know what a "nullifier" is, we glean the information from Mr. Daniel Dunn, the expert shoe manufacturer, who has charge of all the shoemaking of the Spaulding plant, that a "nullifier" is a man's house shoe, made with a gore.

The product of this plant tramps the entire world, for they ship not only to all parts of America but to South America, Europe, Porto Rico and the Philippines, so that Lowell-made shoes beat the pavements of many climes and undoubtedly do their share of climbing.

The making, packing and finishing departments of the Spaulding company occupy three large floors in the main-moat building at the corner of Rock and Willis streets, also occupied by the Whitall Mfg. Co. The sewing and stitching departments occupy the top floor of the Glover & Bean shop in the C. I. Hood building. So prosperous has the company been under the efficient management of Mr. Dunn that more room will soon be needed and the company may yet be seen with all its departments in one large plant.

Mr. David Emery is the superintendent of the plant while Mr. Dunn is the practical shoe-maker. Mr. Dunn was for many years connected with the big concern of Luddy and Currier of Lynn and what he doesn't know about the business isn't worth knowing.

Speaking briefly of the shoe industry in Lowell, Mr. Dunn said: "Of course the shoe industry in Lowell is practically a new industry, but growing, and therefore it is new to the working classes of Lowell. We have to break in many of our help as do the others, whereas if located in cities that have shoe shops for years we would have a surfeit of experienced applicants for work. There is one thing I must say for Lowell help. They are a fine class of help. We have no difficulty in getting good help. But then one can always get good help when his plant gives them 52 weeks in the year as we do. "We employ both men and women, the latter being all together in the sewing and stitching department in the Hood building. We expect to make our coming outing a grand success."

DUPES OF WOMAN

Who for Five Years Posed
as a Man

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Several hundred men and women in New York city first gasped with astonishment and then laughed, yesterday, when they read the amazing story of "Atlas Al Martinez," or Elena B. Smith, who for five years had posed as a man, and in man's clothing had gone through all sorts of masculine experiences, from business to "rough houses," and had never been suspected. These were the persons with whom "Atlas Al Martinez" worked and played, and at whom she now quietly laughing, demurely and femininely did, at the Hotel Brevoort.

In business establishments where the supposed young "Spaulding" had been employed the routine of the morning was everywhere broken up by reminiscence, excited gossip and laughter. The stenographers, telephone operators and other women employees thought it was not so surprising that they had not discovered the secret of Martinez, because they had not been closely associated with him.

Consequently they bantered men workers who had gone to cafes, to the races, to ball games and even to boxing matches with "Al" and had not dreamed they were going about with a woman. Moreover, they had given "him" their confidence about love affairs, matrimonial difficulties, debts, and so on, and had used language to "him" that would have been considered most shocking to a woman.

"You may assure all my young men friends, however," said Mrs. Smith yesterday, "that I'll never tell any one where I've been with them or what they said to me. Even if I am a girl again I'll keep to the male code of honor about such things."

At the first business place where "Al Martinez" worked after taking up that role in Boston and coming here—the tobacco manufactory of Jacob Stahl, Jr., now at First avenue and Ninety-eight street—"Al" is still well remembered. Mr. Stahl was not there yesterday, but a forewoman of the factory (who asked that her name be withheld) said:

"I used to have trouble keeping my girls from flirting with Martinez, he was so good-looking and well dressed. One girl wanted to marry him and was almost heartbroken when he left."

The big women house of S. Stahl & Co. at Fifth avenue and Eighteenth street, was a buzz over the strange story. Henry Bernhard, one of the partners, was the man who engaged Martinez there as a bookkeeper in the spring of 1906. He was inclined to be a trifle chagrined at first when asked about this.

But when he saw the smiling faces of the bookkeepers and heard the open giggles of the girls about the place Mr. Bernhard enjoyed a hearty laugh at his own expense.

At the cloth importing house of Greiff & Co., at Mercer and Spring streets, most of the laughs, apparently, were at the expense of W. James Faith, the manager, who not only advanced young Martinez many times but when he left gave him a letter testifying to how honest and capable a "young man" the bower was. Mr. Faith, however, did not appear yesterday.

"Don't ask me about Martinez," said Mr. Fay, the head bookkeeper. "Of course, he worked here. I've been hearing nothing but Martinez all day. No, I never knew he was a woman—never suspected. But ask Mr. Faith; he's the boss."

In a Spring street cafe nearby they remembered the slim young Spaulding, and the bartender enjoyed telling how Martinez used to put his feet on the rail with the rest of the Greiff employees. This was in the fall of 1908.

Nearly is a hand-book man, who lays odds on the horse races. "I knew Martinez well," he said. "On days when he couldn't get to the track he used to bet with my book, and he did pretty well."

Not one person could be found in any of the places that employed "Al Martinez," who ever suspected that the slim Spaulding was a woman. Many of Martinez's "pals" called up Mrs. Smith at her hotel yesterday to congratulate her on her cleverness.

For a long time Frank Strachan, a young real estate salesman who worked with Martinez for the Lauretton Land company, could not believe the story.

"Why, I feel as if I had lost an old chum," he told a friend. "Al and I were close friends as two men could be. I have even been up to his home and met his wife. I never dreamed he was anything but one of the boys. Well, I hope I meet him—or her—again."

Mrs. Smith enjoyed herself at a theatre last night, in fashionable feminine array, but she said after the show she would have been more comfortable sitting in the balcony or gallery as a young man. She will make plans in a few days for her future home and business, and, she says, will always hereafter be a woman.

UNION LEADERS

Say That Strikebreakers Are Joining the Union

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 16.—The striking laborers who have tied up work on the various mill and school jobs in this city declare that they will welcome any number of imported strikebreakers if they are of the same sort that came today. The union leaders, through Felice D'Allesandre as spokesman, say that they have succeeded in enrolling 42 men brought to New Bedford from Fall River and 25 imported from other cities. The uncertainty of the weather prevented to some extent a test of the strength of the strikers. Some of the contractors say that they could have put men on the work if they had cared to, but preferred to wait until Wednesday morning before making a start. While the striking workmen claim that labor is comparatively scarce, the contractors declare that they can fill the places of the strikers without difficulty and purpose to start in earnest before another day has passed.

AN ELABORATE AFFAIR

An Allegorical Review of Peterboro's History

PETERBORO, N. H., Aug. 16.—A class poem upon his graduation from Pagantry on an elaborate scale was seen in New Hampshire for the first time today when an allegorical review of Peterboro's history with appropriate lyrics and musical settings was presented in a natural outdoor theatre on the estate of the late Edward MacDowell, the famous musical composer. Beginning with the first settlement of the town and continuing down to the present day epochs in the town's history were shown, the characters participating being appropriately garbed in the costumes worn in the various periods represented.

Nearly 250 of the young people of the town took part in the production and at one time a chorus of 215 voices occupied the stage.

The object of the performance which is to be repeated on Thursday and Saturday of this week is to stimulate interest and to raise money for the establishment of an art colony on the MacDowell estate where during the last six or seven years of his life the composer wrote practically all of his music. Mrs. MacDowell, the composer's widow, was in charge of the costume and stage settings and Prof. George P. Baker of Harvard university had the supervision of the dramatic part of the production. The chorus was accompanied by an orchestra of 25 players, and Charles D. Clifton, a Harvard student and the leader of the Pythian sodality of Harvard, was the musical conductor. Most of the lyrics were from the pens of Herman Hagedorn, whose

NATIONAL CURRENCY ASSN.

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—A national currency association was formed today by 16 of the 17 national banks in the city for the purpose of passing on all securities, including commercial paper, offered as a basis for additional circulation. The Merchants and the Old Boston, two of the oldest banks in the city, did not come into the association.

COULD NOT RAISE $34,000

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 16.—With the consent of counsel, Vice Chancellor Walker today issued an order vacating an order made last week postponing the sale of the plant of the Stone Age Plaster Co. of Newark in the action of creditors to secure their claims by winding up the affairs of the company. Mrs. Elizabeth Quiley, Harry Wiley Corbett and other stockholders of the Magnesian Asbestos Co. of America were unable to raise $34,000 to hold the plant and to satisfy creditors.

MILK CONTRACTORS

Say That Schedule Adopted by Railroads is Excessive

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—The controversy over the transportation of milk turned up before the interstate commerce committee today when three local contractors claimed that the schedule recently adopted by the Boston & Maine, the Maine Central and the St. Johnsbury & Lake Champlain railroads are excessive.

The petitioners were the Boston Dairy company, D. Whiting & Sons and H. P. Hood & Son and their attorneys, who claimed that the new rates in Massachusetts were unreasonable and an increase of 170 per cent for distances under 40 miles from Boston, and from 60 to 100 per cent outside that limit.

The railroad attorney said that the Saunders act had forced the railroads into making a new rate. The railroads did set $100 a day more for the carrying of milk but $55 is consumed in icing and $5 in extra clerical work so that the railroads are making nothing under the revised conditions.

Some of the milk lawyers asked that the hearing be postponed until after the Saunders could be repealed, but Commissioner Prouty declined to allow it, saying that the controversy had been going on for years and that it was time to settle it.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS REPORTED

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 16.—Six new cases of infantile paralysis were reported today. This was the largest number of cases reported in one day since the epidemic first started. Four of the children live in this city, one in Cumberland and one in Riverpoint.

WOMAN WANTS HIM TO SHARE
Legacy She Got

HARTFORD, Aug. 16.—Bent with the infirmities of age and from a long period of physical suffering, Mrs. Albert G. Flinney, aged 70, left here last night for Plainfield in search of her husband, who believes that she died years ago from spinal meningitis. She feels that he is in need of her, and although it is possible he has since remarried, she has decided to find him.

Only in the brightness of her eyes was there anything to indicate that the aged woman, who leaned heavily on a cane, was about to set forth on a quest of love. Her once brown hair had become as snow since she and her husband had lived happily together. Her step has lost its vigor, her hand shakes, but her love has lost none of its strength, and she depends upon it to support her on the strange mission.

Mrs. Flinney was married thirty-nine years ago, and four years later was taken ill with spinal meningitis. For thirty-four years she was unable to walk or get out of bed. Two years ago, to the surprise of physicians, she became well and has regained some of her old strength.

At the time she became ill her husband was connected with the firm of Flinney & Vals, of Waterbury. He employed the best doctors to treat her, and she was sent to various hospitals. Mr. Flinney spent almost his entire estate, and when a business depression occurred he became bankrupt.

Mrs. Flinney was then thrown upon the charity of the city, and remained in a hospital as a public charge.

She frequently was visited by her husband, who was struggling along with difficulty. One day when he reached the hospital the attendants would not admit him to his wife's room, as they said she was dying. Heart-broken and almost penniless, Flinney left and did not return. He went away from Hartford supposing his wife had died.

Recently Mrs. Flinney received a legacy from an unexpected source, and was again made independent. She at once began a search for her lost spouse, and has found a clue which takes her to Plainfield. She is under the impression her husband is employed there in insurance work, and depends upon instinct to ferret him out.

All insurance offices in Hartford have been visited by her, and she has also been to New York. They were requested to be on watch for Flinney, and when they heard the story of the sweet-faced woman, all promised they would assist her. Every hotel keeper in Hartford has agreed to help her, and hundreds of men and women are now on eyes and ears to her. Besides the personal search, she is advertising in insurance periodicals for Flinney.

"I simply want to share my legacy with him," she said. "I don't care if he has remarried. All I want to do is help

6 O'CLOCK PICKED HIS POCKETS Man Robbed While Asleep on the Common

Thief Arrested by Aid of a Man Who Witnessed the Theft—Man in Court for Stealing Check for $110

Abraham Hablaka was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with the larceny of $110 from the American Express company. He entered a plea of not guilty and by agreement the case was continued till Thursday, the defendant being held under $500 bonds.

According to the police a number of Syrians in Lawrence collected $110 to send to a fellow-countryman, Hassan L. Abdell, who is in hard circumstances in Venezuela. An American Express money order for the amount was secured and introduced to Hablaka to send to Abdell. It is alleged that Hablaka sent an envelope with a blank slip of paper to Venezuela and on March 17 of this year came to Lowell and presented the money order and forging the name of Abdell secured the $110.

Several weeks later when Abdell wrote to his friends in Lawrence that he had not received the money the matter was reported to the police and Sunday Hablaka was arrested in Fall River and brought to this city yesterday.

In court this morning Lawyer James F. Owens, who appeared for the government, stated that before the larceny case came to trial he would swear out complaints of forgery and uttering against the defendant.

Robbed While Asleep on Common
Charles J. Lunney, aged 45 years and claiming a residence in Gorham street this city, was arrested in South street near the South common shortly before nine o'clock by Patrolman Daniel Cogger after the latter had been informed by Michael McMahon of 56 Franklin street that he had seen Lunney "go through" the clothing of a drunken man who was lying on one of the seats in the corner of the common near the junction of Thorneike and Summer streets.

After Lunney had been brought back to the place where the drunken man was lying a telephone call was sent in for the patrol wagon and when that vehicle arrived Lunney and his alleged victim, who was in a comatose condition, were bundled into the wagon and taken to the police station. Lunney was booked for larceny from the person and the other man, who was unable to give his name, was booked for drunkenness.

At about 5:45 o'clock this morning there were quite a number of people on the common. Some were sleeping and the effects of the night before, or the "eye openers" in the morning while others resorted to the common for the purpose of securing fresh air.

Stretched out on one of the benches near the corner of Thorneike and Summer streets was a drunken man. Despite the fact that some boys had tried to arouse the man from his slumbers their efforts went for naught for the man was "dead to the world."

Sitting on a bench a short distance away was Michael McMahon of 56 Franklin street and from time to time he looked in the direction of the seat occupied by the intoxicated man. On one occasion when he glanced in that direction he noticed a person near the seat who was acting in a very suspicious manner. Keeping a close watch on the latter he saw the stranger place his hands in the pockets of the trousers of the drunken man and take a watch and chain and what looked like money. The man then walked off. Mr. McMahon immediately realized that there was something wrong and decided to follow the man until he ran across a police officer.

Following at a distance behind the man in order not to attract attention Mr. McMahon continued until he reached the corner of South and Summer streets where he met Patrolman Daniel Cogger. McMahon told his story to the officer and the latter detained the stranger who proved to be Lunney. Lunney denied that he had stolen anything from the man and quite reluctantly agreed to accompany the officer back to where the drunken man was lying on the seat.

On the way up Summer street Patrolman Cogger noticed Supt. Welch passing through Thorneike street and calling him over had McMahon relate his story to the superintendent.

The superintendent, Patrolman Cogger, McMahon and Lunney went over to where the man was lying on the seat but all attempts to revive the man proved without avail.

Turning to Lunney Supt. Welch asked: "Did you get any money from this man?"

"He gave me 50 cents to get a pint of booze," was Lunney's reply.

"Is that all?"

"Yes sir."

"How much money have you in your pocket?"

"About $2.50," Lunney then drew $1.00 in change from one of his pockets.

"Thanks for Ani-sen Baby's Medicine" writes a Lowell mother. "I like it very much and will cheerfully recommend it. Baby is doing well."

Mothers have been waiting for just such medicine, which they can save their children with perfect confidence, that it can only do good. It cures all baby's common ailments of stomach, liver and bowels, teething troubles, etc. Ani-sen is sold by all druggists; 25c.

"What have you got in your left hand pocket?"

He was rather reluctant about showing what was in the pocket, but the superintendent assisted him and succeeded in bringing $20 to light—one $10 bill and two $5 bills.

"Where did you get that money?" asked Supt. Welch.

"He gave it to me to mind for him," was the answer.

At this point Mr. McMahon informed the superintendent that he had seen Lunney take a watch and chain from the drunken man and sure enough there was the watch in the little pocket of Lunney's trousers while the chain was stuck inside the trousers.

"Were you minding this for the man also?"

"Yes."

"Do you know this man?" asked the superintendent pointing to the man on the seat.

"Yes," said Lunney.

"Where does he belong?"

"What?"

"I asked where he belongs?"

"Oh, he's a florist from Pringle's Crossing."

"What's his name?"

"His name is either Simmons or Simmonds, I forgot."

Lunney's story was rather odd trail to depend on and word was sent to the police station for the patrol wagon.

While they were waiting for the patrol Philip Delan of 15 Concord street and James Moran of 5 Goward's court off Appleton street, corroborated the story told by Mr. McMahon relative to Lunney's stealing the watch and chain and money.

The man who got robbed was in such a condition that the police were unable to get any information from him and at the time of going to press he did not show much signs of improvement. A close watch is being kept over the man and it may be necessary to send him to the farm in order that he may recuperate.

Superintendent Welch speaks in high terms of the clever work of Mr. McMahon and in conversation with the representatives of the press this morning stated that if there were more men like Mr. McMahon in this city that there would be few criminals at large.

Violated Sunday Law
Mohamed Omrah, who conducts a store at 61 East Merrimack street, appeared in court this morning to answer to a complaint charging him with violating the Lord's day. Oman sold a box of sandwiches, a patrolman seized his clothes on Sunday and although he pleaded ignorance this morning he was fined $5.

Assault and Battery
John Sober and John Sobak got into a tussle a few nights ago with the result that Sobak got a good punishment from Sober. Sober admitted his guilt and was released after paying a fine of $5.

Drunk on the Tracks
Thomas Murphy meandered into Thorneike street yesterday afternoon and feeling tired laid down by the side of the road. Chief Farmer of the Tewksbury farm hearing of the man's condition went to the place and after arousing him placed him aboard an electric car. The car had gone but a quarter of a mile when the conductor put Murphy off and the latter after saving the car went to sleep on the car tracks. Chief Farmer happened to be passing a few minutes later and finding Murphy in the roadway bundled him into a wagon and drove him to the police station. He was fined $5.

Drunken Offenders
John L. Bowers, charged with being drunk, was sentenced to four months in jail.

Daniel J. Curtin, William Laurensen and Michael Spillane were each fined $5, and one first offender was fined $2.

George Cummings and Thomas Slattery who were in police court for assault yesterday, say they were not arrested. They went to the police station, were booked and then bailed out.

Someone tied an iron rail across the main track on the Boston & Maine railroad near the Manchester street bridge between 11 and 11:30 a. m. A shifting engine and freight cars ran into it shortly before noon, but as the shifter was running slowly, no damage was done.

A few moments later the Manchester express came howling along, carrying its heavy load of passengers and baggage. This train arrived at the north station at 12:00 p. m. Had the huge engine struck the barrier, it would surely have been derailed and rolled over the steep embankment. Numerous lives would have been lost.

The Boston & Maine officials are greatly excited over the attempt to wreck the train and are using every means to find out the perpetrators of the act.

STRUCK BY AUTO

Prominent Worcester Man May Be Fatally Injured

WORCESTER, Aug. 16.—Ex-Representative Lucian B. Stone, former street commissioner and one of the best known residents of the city, was struck and fatally injured by an auto driven by Edward J. Fagan, 1048 Hanover street, Quincy, opposite his home at 1030 Main street last night, Stone's skull was fractured, causing hemorrhages, and Dr. George M. Albee, 1036 Main street, to whose home he was first taken, says the patient cannot live more than a few hours.

Mr. Stone was riding home by trolley early last evening and jumped off the car in front of his home. Witnesses tell the police that the trolley conductor shouted a warning to the aged man, who is 81 years old, telling him to look out for the approaching auto, but Mr. Stone is deaf and failed to hear the warning. The auto, according to the police, was proceeding at a moderate rate of speed and Fagan sounded his horn, but Mr. Stone jumped off so close to the auto that it was impossible to avoid hitting him and the front wheel passed over his body.

He was taken to the piazza of Dr. Albee's house and later removed to his own home next door. Late last night his condition was pronounced extremely critical. Fagan was placed under arrest on a charge of assault and battery and gave bonds for his appearance in court. With him in the auto were his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Fagan, and two sisters, Mary and Zita Fagan.

Mr. Stone, with his brother, ran the first public conveyance through the streets of Worcester from Lincoln square to Webster, opening a stage line in 1857. Three months later they continued the stage line to Spencer and continued to carry on the traffic business until 1891, when the trolley line from Worcester to Spencer was put through.

From 1888 to 1898 he served the city of Worcester as street commissioner. In 1901 he was elected an alderman, and in 1906 a representative, being re-elected the following year.

Mr. Stone is a member of Montauk lodge, A. F. and A. M., and is a life member of all the bodies up to the 32d degree. He is a member of Montauk lodge of Odd Fellows and is a charter member of the Massachusetts highway commissioners' association.

SCANDAL PROMISED

Lawyer McIntyre Threatens to Make Known Names

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The bitterest session of the police court hearings of the charges brought by Mrs. Mary Nevins Bull against John A. Qualey and Harvey W. Corbett took place yesterday before Magistrate Krotel in the criminal court building. John F. McIntyre, attorney for the two men accused by Mrs. Bull of getting $25,000 from her by false pretences, abandoned his former suavity and demanded technical proof of every link in the prosecution's chain. At one stage of the proceedings he shouted to Charles L. Craig, attorney for Mrs. Bull:

"If you keep dragging names in, I'll drag in some names. If there's going to be a scandal here, it's going to be a good big scandal. I have purposely kept certain names out of this case. I won't do it much longer. Now, you know what I mean. Be careful."

Mr. Craig smiled, but made no reply. Several new angles in the case which developed yesterday also served to keep the interest at fever heat. One of them was the appearance in the case of Mrs. Naomi Bolter, a private detective, who testified to transactions with Corbett. Mrs. Bolter was the object of a savage attack by Atty. McIntyre.

She testified that she went to see Corbett in the interests of ex-Judge Smith, lent of Worcester county, who had a judgment against Qualey and wanted Mrs. Bolter to serve him with papers in supplementary proceedings.

OHIO'S CAPITAL CITY IN THROES OF STRIKE TROUBLE MAY NEED MILITIA

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16.—Ohio's capital city is in a state of confusion as a result of the street car strike since the state militia has been withdrawn and Governor Harmon may recall the troopers any hour. Two regiments are under arms and can be rushed to the scene in record time. Mayor Marshall has ordered more than a score of policemen suspended, and officials of the car company assert that they will expend a million dollars rather than give in to the strikers. Shooting and throwing of deadly missiles are of daily occurrence, and many women and children have been seriously injured. Curs have been dynamited. Charges of political bias have been made against Governor Harmon, democrat, and Mayor Marshall, republican.

A first mortgage on the plant. I said my client had acquired her money through trickery, and I wasn't very particular about her investment, that what I was after was my commissions. "Mr. Corbett told me that he would give me a stock bonus. I said I wanted cash. He said that with that amount of money a cash commission could be very easily arranged."

Magistrate Krotel adjourned the hearing until Friday at 3 o'clock. The hearing before the grand jury will continue today.

Dance, Vesper boothouse, Wednesday evening.

POLICE SCORED

By Judge Mahoney of Lawrence

LAWRENCE, Aug. 16.—Jeremiah Keefe was sentenced to three months in the house of correction by Judge Mahoney yesterday for assault on Henry C. Magoon, a business man. The assault took place on Broadway, where repaving is being done.

Mr. Magoon had asked that obstructions be removed and when workmen failed to comply with his request he undertook to do the work himself Saturday, with the result that he was struck down and left unconscious. Sunday Keefe called at the police station and said he committed the assault.

Judge Mahoney remarked that the revelations showed a shockingly lax condition of affairs in the police department. "The assault was so brutal," said Judge Mahoney, "that every available man on the force should have been put to work and the defendant arrested within an hour."

PICTURE SHOWS

HAVERHILL COUNCIL PLACES CENSOR ON THEM

HAVERHILL, Aug. 16.—The municipal council held a conference yesterday with the managers of the local theatres and moving-picture shows, after which it was decided to put under the censorship of the city marshal all moving pictures shown in this city.

The ministers' association and the federation of men's clubs urged the appointment of a board of censors, but the council decided the police should undertake the duty.

The marshal will instruct patrolmen to watch the theatres and report any objectionable features exhibited. The municipal council also changed the fees for licenses, charging theatres $60 per year and the moving-picture houses $25.

THE ALDERMEN

MADE NO ATTEMPT TO ELECT MAYOR

LAWRENCE, Aug. 16.—The board of aldermen held a short session last night, but no effort was made to bring about a joint convention for the election of a mayor in succession William P. White, who resigned recently, after being given his three-year sentence in the local jail. Acting Mayor Jordan presided.

Further developments are expected later in the week in the matter of securing a writ of mandamus asked for a week ago by the aldermen to compel Acting Mayor Jordan to call a joint convention.

Of the Rhode Island Assembly Convened Today

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 16.—The general assembly of the state convened today in a special adjourned session for the purpose of acting upon the report of the redistricting commission, enacting a corporation tax law and considering other legislative matters of importance. It is a rare occurrence for the assembly to meet at this season of the year and it was called in order that the next election might be along the lines laid out by the redistricting commission.

The session is expected to be a brief one, about two weeks, but the number of important matters which will come up for consideration promises to make it notable. In addition to the redistricting report it was announced that a special message would be submitted by the governor and that the body would also have to pass on the bill for the revision of the tax laws which includes a corporation tax bill and a bill for the creation of a state tax commissioner. Other legislation which may come before the assembly includes amendments to the egg lobster law which caused the withdrawal of several of the inland fisheries commissioners, appointment of new commissioners, appointment of a state harbor improvement committee to take charge of the expenditure of the $500,000 bond issue and a resolution for the relocating and repairing of the boundary stones between Rhode Island and Connecticut. The boundary marks between this state and Massachusetts have been relocated and put in good condition during the past year.

MAYOR GAYNOR IMPROVING

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Mayor Gaynor steadily continues along the path of recovery and when he awoke he seemed to be stronger and better than any time since he was shot a week ago today as he was about to sail for Europe. Dangers of an infection are almost past, although everything is in readiness should circumstances render an operation necessary. Mayor Gaynor is being kept very quiet and few visitors are permitted to see him. The wounded executive feels the heat, but otherwise seems not disturbed by his unfortunate situation.

Should no complications develop it is believed that Mayor Gaynor can be taken to the camp of a friend in the Adirondacks in about two weeks. The mayor's physicians stated at 6 o'clock that he had slept all during the night and was doing nicely this morning.

A NOVEL AERIAL RACE

AMIENS, France, Aug. 16.—The first aerial race between the birds of nature and man's production took place in the course of the great cross-country competition and was easily won by man. A flock of 47 carrier pigeons was released at Dousai yesterday at the same instant that Leblanc in his Farman biplane started from the mark on his fifty mile flight to Amiens.

When Leblanc reached Amiens the flock was not yet in sight, the first pigeon arriving six minutes and twenty seconds after Leblanc. Before the last of the flock had come in Legagneux who had started at the same time as Leblanc but consumed nine minutes more on the trip arrived and beat the last pigeon by twelve minutes.

AN EARTHQUAKE SHOCK

MOUTIERS, France, Aug. 16.—A heavy earthquake shock was felt here this morning. It lasted 27 seconds. Moutiers is located in southeastern France, a short distance from Mont Blanc, Mount Cenis and other giants of the Alps.

WERE SAVED ONCE

Two Sailors Then Went Out in Small Boat Again

GLOUCESTER, August 16.—The schooner Pauline, Capt. Nels Lawson, arrived here yesterday with two of the crew of the schooner Marcella, Thomas Hayes and Monte Colson. They shipped about five weeks ago, and when a week out, while hauling their trawls on the western banks, became separated from their vessel in a fog.

Their compass became unreliable, and they roved for a day and night in the fog until they fell with the schooner Eglantine, on board which they stayed several days.

When the weather cleared and some vessels were described at anchor on the horizon, the men set out again to find their craft. Soon afterward a gale accompanied by a fog sprang up, and the two men again found themselves adrift. For 24 hours they were at the mercy of the wind and sea, but fortune was again with them, and they fell in with the schooner Pauline.

On getting over the rail the first person to assist Hayes to the vessel was his son, who was a member of the crew. Capt. Lawson took them on, and they finished the voyage with him.

The schooner Margaret, Capt. William Grady, which arrived yesterday from a halibut voyage to the Labrador waters, reports that on Aug. 1, while 20 miles east of Buena Vista, on the northern coast of Newfoundland, he picked up a dory containing William Dodge and Samuel Kippen of the schooner Fannie Smith of Fortune Bay, N. F., who had been astray in their dory five days and nights without food or water. When found the men were only half-conscious and could not have stood the strain much longer. Their tongues were slit and swollen. Capt. Grady nursed the men back to strength and three days afterward landed them at Bay Bulls, N. F.

Two men of the schooner Ramona of this port were rescued from a similar predicament. While engaged in attending their trawls on the Labrador coast, June 29, fog set in and they lost sight of their vessel.

At that latitude it is piercing cold at night in summer, and the men suffered much. For two days rain fell and they were drenched to the skin. They were forced to keep awake all the time, bailing to keep their dory afloat.

At the end of the fourth day they landed at Double Island, off the Labrador coast. They found only a few deserted shacks, but some Eskimos, who touched there in a boat, advised them to go south to Hopedale, where there is a station of Moravian missionaries. The Eskimos acted as guides. At Hopedale they stayed 22 days. The men were taken to Halifax last week, and thence to their homes in Nova Scotia.

ARM FRACTURED

Man Fell Down Flight of Stairs

Samuel Gorman, aged about 60 years, while passing through the hallway on the second floor of his house at 17 Ellis street, early this morning, made a mis-step and fell down the flight of stairs, sustaining a broken left arm. The ambulance was summoned and the injured man was taken to St. John's hospital.

MARRIAGE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Delorme celebrated the fifth anniversary of their marriage Saturday night at the home of Miss M. Costello in Cabot street. The happy couple received many of their friends during the evening and a literary and musical program was carried out. Dancing was enjoyed and refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Delorme were the recipients of many beautiful presents.

Dance, Vesper boothouse, Wednesday evening.

Have Been Taken to Omo Prison in Honduras

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 16.—A special from Spanish Honduras, under date of Aug. 10, says:

Advices from Ceiba, Honduras, state: Several prisoners were brought in here from Armeria where a large number of Bonilla supporters gathered last week to await General Lee Chiriquias. One of them brought in today was Adolfo Meralda, a lawyer of considerable prominence, who was once

Judge of Trullio but whose sympathies with the Bonilla movement were very strong. He was made to walk the entire distance of thirty miles with his arms tied behind his back, fording rivers, climbing steep inclines, going through places where a man with both arms free has sometimes difficulty in passing. Fifty or more prisoners in the carts were taken to Omo prison this morning. Prisoners immured there seldom leave it alive.

GENEROUS OFFER

Is Made by a Lee Millionaire.

LEE, Aug. 16.—Roderick B. Andrews, many times a millionaire, showed himself a philanthropist yesterday when he announced that for every dollar saved and placed in the bank by Lee boys he would add a similar amount to their account.

Mr. Andrews wants the boys to save their pennies instead of spending them on cheap picture shows and ice cream cones.

He authorizes the following offer: "If any boy of Lee, of good character, will earn $1 and deposit it in the Lee Savings bank, with the purpose of starting an account, I will put $1 with it. All accounts thus started must remain in the bank until the depositors are of age."

Made Fortune in Stocks.

Mr. Andrews will deposit a sum of money this week as a guarantee of good faith.

In the panic of 1907 he made a for-

ture on stocks, buying them right and left when they were at the lowest point, holding them till they reached the top level and unloading them. His net stock was New York Central.

Only last spring, Mr. Andrews announced he was willing to bet $10,000 that Mayor Gaynor of New York city would be the next president of the United States and he is of the same opinion today. He believes Mayor Gaynor has made a record in New York city, and, with the sympathy aroused by the attempt to assassinate him the other day, he will be the most popular democrat in the land when the national convention is held.

The Lee philanthropist is a self-made man and was once a poor boy in Baltimore. Dame Fortune smiled upon him and he entered business in Baltimore with successful results, until today he is ranked as many times a millionaire. He spends money lavishly upon the poor of the community.

SEARCH FOR MURDERER

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Posses of armed citizens are skirting the swamps near North Bergen, N. J., today searching for Bertrund Pond, who is wanted for the killing of Mrs. Mary Umschick in the presence of her six year old son. Pond killed the woman because she rejected his attentions.

THE BURKE FUND

HAS INCREASED TO THE SUM OF $7,000,000.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—It is more than eight years since John Masterson Burke, a wealthy but little known real estate, living at 18 West Forty-seventh street, announced a donation of $4,000,000 to found and endow a home for convalescents in or near Manhattan. The real estate and securities in which the money was invested enhanced in value and Mr. Burke during his lifetime made two other gifts. When he died on Dec. 2 last, at the age of 93 years, the Winifred Masterson Burke Foundation, as the endowment has been called, in memory of the founder's mother, was worth $5,000,000.

Mr. Burke left the greater part of his estate to the foundation. Relatives contested the will, but Surrogate Thomas decided last week that it was valid. Personal property worth $2,000,000, roughly speaking, thereby has been added to the foundation. The trustees have $7,000,000 with which to carry out Mr. Burke's purpose.

Nothing ever has been done toward building the home. The site has not even been selected. And there is little likelihood of any definite movement toward carrying out Mr. Burke's wishes being made in the immediate future.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

The attraction at the Lakeview theatre for the next two days is entitled "A Social Outlaw," a comedy drama in four acts, and the performance last night was attended by a good audience which showed its appreciation of the show. The leading part was taken by Mr. James Thatcher, and he took it in his usual strong manner, and was well supported by the rest of the company. Miss Florine Farr as "France" carried the part very well.

The play besides containing many strong dramatic incidents is full of humor, and furnishes no end of laughter.

"St. Elmo" the play which was presented here two weeks ago is to be given again the last three nights of this week, and should prove a drawing card. Upon its last performance here "St. Elmo" drew the largest houses of any show this season. Next week comes the strongest bill of the season when the Wagners and Kemper company will present their special production of "Pals in Follies." This is a genuine high priced company, and Lakeview performances are to be the initial presentations of the coming season.

BILLERICA

The selectmen of the town of Billerica gave a hearing last night on the petition of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company for the location of poles in the following thoroughfares: Billerica avenue between end of present Lowell Electric Light Corporation's line and driveway leading to town farm, nine poles; driveway between Billerica avenue and town farm, one pole; Delorey avenue between Chelmsford road and residence of P. P. Delorey; Billerica avenue between residence of D. J. Dewire and end of Lowell Electric Light Corporation's present line, 14 poles, one pair wire attachments each.

There were no remonstrants and the petitions were granted and signed by the selectmen.

A GOOD RULE TO FOLLOW

No doubt President Taft would be "deglighted" if Mr. Ballinger should resign from the cabinet after the disclosures of the Pinchot hearing, but Ballinger may not resign, and Mr. Taft is too good-natured to apply the official boot where it is much needed. The president's weakness seems to be his desire to please everyone. This is a dangerous failing in a public man, for he who attempts to please everyone oftentimes succeeds in pleasing no one. If you have any important decisions to make, the best rule is to please yourself first, then if the rest of the world is satisfied, why well and good, and if no one else is satisfied you always have the consolation that one good man is satisfied at any rate.

NEED OF A WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

When a mill operative is mangled in a machine and sent to a hospital for treatment, what happens relative to his claim for damages?

The insurance companies that have by contract agreed to hold the corporation safe against all claims for damages send their doctors to examine the man with a view to minimize his injuries and their agents to look up every bit of evidence to prove that the accident was due to the victim's own carelessness.

They can go further and influence witnesses in favor of the injured man not to testify. This can be done through the employing company which can discharge any employee who appears as a witness against it in a case of damages, for the insurance company usually remains in the background while the corporation is made the defendant in the suit for damages.

All this is done while the mangled operative is in the hospital, it may be, hovering between life and death with no thought of possible litigation after his recovery or after his death if that be the outcome.

Assuming that he recovers but is disabled for life through no fault of his own, what redress does the employers' liability act furnish? None at all without a long legal battle in which he, a poor man, penniless and inexperienced in such matters, has to fight a large and wealthy corporation backed by insurance companies whose aim is to deny the justice of his claims and to defeat him if possible in the courts.

If he wins a verdict it is paid only after appeals to the supreme court or repeated trials that eat up the greater part if not all of the amount. Sometimes the verdict is not sufficient to meet the legal expenses and in the majority of cases there is a verdict for the defendant even when the claim for damages is one that should be sustained. But the plaintiff in such a case has not the experience, the legal resources or the other advantages possessed by the defense and hence, although his claim may be good, the chances of success are against him.

What is the remedy against this injustice to the injured operative? It is a law known as the workmen's compensation act, such as has been adopted in twenty-two other countries and which gives entire satisfaction to all the parties concerned.

The agitation for a workmen's compensation act in this state dates back to 1903 when Governor Bates appointed a commission to consider the relations between employer and employee. That commission with other very excellent recommendations, reported in favor of a workmen's compensation act and submitted a draft of a bill for enactment by the legislature. That bill we are glad to say, was drawn by a Lowell man, William N. Osgood, and it has been before every legislature since that year in practically the same form as then reported.

At first, the interested insurance companies, the public service corporations and even the labor organizations regarded it as a menace. These interests packed the hearings in opposition to the measure and the voices raised in its favor were drowned in the storm of opposition. As the question was discussed, however, and as the injustice to the injured operative was exposed, public opinion became aroused and sentiment in regard to the question underwent a radical change.

This change was emphasized by the endorsement of ex-President Roosevelt, prominent labor leaders and others of national repute and by the declaration of Speaker Walker of the Massachusetts legislature after the hearing last year that this was the most important subject which had been before the legislature during the last session.

Even the insurance companies and the public service corporations are beginning to see the change in the public mind on this question and to prepare for the inevitable. (The Boston Elevated Railway Co. is said to have sent attorneys to investigate the workings of the law in England and Germany, where it has been in operation for many years. The other countries in which the law is in force are: Austria, Belgium, British Columbia, Cape of Good Hope, Denmark, Finland, France, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Luxemburg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Queensland, Russia, South Australia, Spain, Sweden and Western Australia.

What are some of the arguments in favor of such a law? The first and most important is that a combination of liability insurance companies and employing corporations has practically nullified the protective benefits that the injured workman should derive from the employers' liability law.

During the past dozen years the employers' liability insurance companies in the United States collected about $100,000,000 of which 70 per cent was spent in expenses leaving but 30 per cent to meet damage claims. Of this amount the proportion that actually found its way into the pockets of the injured was probably less than one-half, or 15 per cent of the whole.

What are the results under the workmen's compensation act? Only 10 per cent of the money paid out is consumed in expenses and 90 per cent goes to the injured workmen.

The workmen's compensation act provides a fixed sum as compensation for the loss of an eye, a hand, an arm and so on whether through the negligence of the injured or somebody else. The money is to be paid over without any litigation except where there is reason to believe that the claim is fraudulent. Not only is this immeasurably better for the injured workman but for the state, for the court dockets are crowded with actions of tort which are to be contested at great length, thus involving great expense to the county. The aim of the compensation act is to give practically all the money paid out for damages or damage insurance to the injured workmen. The long and tedious litigation by which just claims have often been defeated will be eliminated and justice will be done where now the highest justice is wrought through a misapplication of the present law and the abuse of the courts of justice.

It is time the laboring people should wake up to their own interests on this matter. There will probably be hearings on this issue in different parts of the state, under the direction of the recess committee to which it was referred. Those hearings should be well attended and as the author of the bill is a Lowell man, our city should take a special interest in urging the enactment of the measure and thus securing fair treatment for the injured workmen instead of leaving them to fight a hopeless legal battle in which even a liberal verdict is eaten up in expenses.

SEEN AND HEARD

Mark Twain, as an example of unconscious humor, used to quote a Hartford woman who said one day in the late spring: "My husband is the dearest fellow. 'Jim,' I said to him this morning, 'are you very hard up now?' 'Certainly am hard up,' he replied, 'this high cost of living is terrible. I don't know what I'm going to do.' 'Then, Jim,' said I, 'I'll give you all thought of going to the country for July and August this year.' 'But the dear fellow's face changed and he said: 'Indeed, then you won't, darling. I thought you wanted to buy a hat with my money, and some such foolishness. No, no, my darling, Jim can always find the money to let his dear little wife go to the country.' Hurray!

One of the most remarkable creatures known to natural history is the bower-bird, which builds a miniature cabin made of small sticks and surrounds it with a perfectly kept ring of circles, composed of twigs and moss, studded with brilliantly colored flowers, fruits and insects. As the curious ornaments become faded they are constantly replaced by fresh ones, so that scientists are inclined to credit the bird with the possession of the artistic sense. In these decorated playgrounds the males meet and pay their court to the female, the bower being used purely for purposes of recreation and not as a nesting-place. These bowers are chiefly found in the Owen Stanley Range of British New Guinea.—Wide World Magazine.

A MUSICAL SURFEIT

At first it's "Comin' Thru the Rye," then "Costo Diva," smiles the ear. At "The Evening Star" I sigh, His "Prize Song" I sing out loud and clear. The "Ach, mein Stern" of Meyerbeer. Six times repeated makes me moan, It's getting so I really fear My neighbor's busy gramophone.

Three daily comes "Die Lorelei," Twice "Down Her Cheek a Pearly And fifty times a week "Good-By." To madness drives me very near; The "Flower Song" I once heard dear. But now my love for it has flown Into the sea to like to steer My neighbor's busy gramophone.

I hate "Brunnhilde's Battle Cry," The "Swiss Song" I never dread; When I get "Madam Butterfly," In wholesome doses it is clear There's reason for my feeling queer. And, oh, it does no good to jeer My neighbor's busy gramophone.

St. Peter bid me be of cheer, When I draw nigh unto the throne, Tell me I'll not be forced to hear My neighbor's busy gramophone! —Nathan M. Levy, in N. Y. Sun.

I walked with a highbrow of learning one day in the Temple of Fame, and after much winding and turning, said: "I am tired of this game. I've looked, but I've failed of discerning a picture of Poe in a frame, which I think is a rickety shame. Oh, tell me, though highbrow of learning, why his picture is not in a frame?" The highbrow, who coughed and he stuttered and wiped off some sweat from his can, "the fellow you mention," he muttered, "was doubtless a poetry fan, he sure was no slouch of a fan; he's barred from this temple, and shattered, for he was a dissolute man, and given to rushing the can; we have to be careful," he spluttered, "and place on the rounders a ban; we know where our heels are battered, and stick to a high moral plan." Then he hung on the wall an engraving of Julius T. Williger Sued, who's written some neat bits of raving that none in his senses would read; who's written some fierce bits of raving, that only the pipe-dreamers read. "His verse," said the highbrow, "on shaving, was moral and helpful indeed! And all through his life his behaving was chaste as his upholding sacred Walt Mason in Philadelphia Bulletin."

It is stated a man's hair grows gray five years earlier than a woman's. This must be of considerable comfort to the fellow whose sweetheart's locks are "like the raven" while his are a little on the gray.

SECRETARY SHIPP

TALKS OF THE COMING CONSERVATION CONGRESS

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 16.—"I know of no public question that could bring so many representative men together in a convention as that of conservation," said Thomas R. Shipp, secretary, in speaking of the coming congress to be held in St. Paul, September 5, 6, 7, 8.

A glance at the list of speakers is sufficient to show that the country's best men are behind this movement. I have no doubt the second congress is going to set a pace that will be hard to follow in future. The list of speakers to which Secretary Shipp referred contains such names as William H. Taft, president of the United States; Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States; Gifford Pinchot, Senator from Vermont; Doliver and Nelson, and such representative men as James J. Hill, Wallace D. Simmons and James R. Garfield.

There has been a lot of talk about politics in connection with the congress. That there will be in St. Paul, at that time members of the United States senate, members of the house, governors of many states and mayors of many cities, is sufficient cause to say that there will be some political paw paws on the side, but it is the intention of the officers of the congress to keep politics out of the proceedings as far as possible.

"Inauguration" is pretty well represented on the program with Pinchot, Garfield and Senators Beveridge, Doliver and Nelson. This subject has been made concerning President Taft's connection with the program. It was said that the president insisted upon certain changes being made before he would agree to speak.

When Governor Eberhart returned to St. Paul, he headed the committee which visited the president at Beverly and tendered the invitation, he said the president did not even ask to see the program and made no suggestions whatever concerning it.

The program will not be given out for a few days but it is known that Senator Doliver will talk on "Cattle, and Leather." Such a subject naturally gives the senator a chance to say something on the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, but it is said on good authority that he will not take the opportunity of doing so. The big fight made by Senator Doliver on the tariff bill was chiefly in connection with the hide and leather schedules. However, it is believed the senator will insert enough ginger into his speech to make it interesting.

"The Natural Resources Belong to the People," is the subject of a paper discussed by James R. Garfield, former secretary of the interior. Mr. Garfield is prepared, according to reports received in St. Paul, to handle this subject in a way to make it interesting. Francis J. Heney, who fought the land frauds in the west is going to talk about "Safeguarding the Public Domain." It is doubtful if a person more competent to handle such a subject could be found.

The subject given to James J. Hill, chairman of the Great Northern board, is "Soils, Crops, Food and Clothing." Mr. Hill has given much thought to the fertilization of soils and he has been helping the farmer in this respect for years.

Thomas L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, the greatest labor union in the United States, is going to talk on the subject, "Are We Mining Intelligently?" It is not known what the subject of Mr.

Pinchot's address will be, but he is said to be on what subjects they will talk. Other speakers besides the president and former president are: Governor Eberhart, Minnesota; Governor Stubb, Kansas; Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporations, senator Joseph M. Dixon, Montana; Arthur Radcliffe Dugmore, author, artist, writer on nature subjects and an expert on birdlife; Walter H. Hoge, editor, The World's Work; Governor Herbert S. Hadley, Missouri; Alfred L. Baker, president the Chicago Chamber of Commerce; Henry Wallace, expert on farming and country life; Des Moines Iowa; Mark M. Chapman, curator American Museum of Natural History; Senator Moses E. Clapp, Minnesota; Prof. Henry S. Graves, United States forester; John Barrett, director Bureau of American Republics; Dr. W. J. McGee, bureau of soils, Department of Agriculture; Dr. Francis E. Mayey, president University of South Dakota; Capt. J. B. White, chairman of the executive committee, National Conservation Congress; Dr. George F. Swain, Harvard university; George C. Pardee, former governor of California; Newton C. Blanchard, Louisiana; Wallace D. Simmons, Simmons Hardware company, St. Louis; Judge Ben B. Lindsey, Denver, Col.; F. F. Westbrook, Minneapolis; and Miss Mabel Boardman, president of the Red Cross society.

Tramp Steamer Has a Valuable Cargo

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Laden with the most valuable cargo brought to Boston for months, the British tramp steamer Atholl, of Loch, Capt. S. L. Saxby, came in yesterday from the central ports. She docked at pier 48, Mystic wharf. There were curios aplenty on board the steamer. For ten minutes before the Atholl docked two rival boatmen, who were in rowboats at the steamer's bow, engaged in a wordy battle as to who should get the job of running the lines. The noise they created could be heard the whole way along a Chinese-mocking bird which was hatched in a cage on the forward deck. The bird is of a very rare species and is valued at about $100.

In six heavily strapped boxes carried on the bridge deck were half a dozen monster pythons, measuring from 15 to 20 feet in length. The pythons were purchased at Singapore by the officers. They are well behaved reptiles and remained snugly in their cages during the long passage. A bucket full of water doused over each python every morning was all they received in the way of sustenance, but before they were taken on board they each had a feast of several rabbits, enough to last them for two months.

At Suex the Atholl took on 12 tons of Egyptian antiquities for the Metropolitan museum, New York. They were 52 cases of these antiquities, and the collection includes some of the most valuable excavations from the buried temples and tombs in Egypt.

The Atholl came from Yokohama, Kobe, Moli, Shanghai, Hongkong, Singapore and Peking, picking up cargo at each port. She stopped at Suez, Port Said and Algiers. The Atlantic the weather was favorable with the exception of a head current nearly all the way.

The steamer brought in 5400 tons of cargo, including 12,930 ingots and pieces of copper, loaded at Yokohama; quantities of tea skins, wool, spices, curries, pickles, jetonings, tin, gambler, straw matting, human hair, bamboo, tiger and leopard skins, bristles, camphor, bean oil, toys, vegetable wax, rare porcelain, etc. The estimated value of the ship's cargo is $1,500,000. The Atholl carries a crew of 38 Chinamen and they will be watched day and night to prevent any of them deserting while the vessel is in port.

PRESIDENT TAFT

SENDS A LETTER TO GOVERNOR EBERHART

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 16.—President Taft's interest in the second national conservation congress to be held in St. Paul, Sept. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, is shown in a letter to Gov. Eberhart of Minnesota.

The letter from the president, which follows, is used as the basis of letters to the governors who have given excuses for not attending the congress, urging them to reconsider the matter and come to St. Paul:

"Beverly, Mass., Aug. 6.

"Hon. A. O. Eberhart, Governor of Minnesota, St. Paul.

"Dear Governor: I acknowledge your letter of the 2nd, written from Boston, in which you request me to issue an invitation to the governors of all the states to visit the conservation congress. I feel that I ought not to issue such an invitation since that matter is entirely in the hands of Mr. Baker, Mr. White and yourself, and should remain there; but I am glad to say to you that it is my sincere hope that the governors of the various states, by their attendance at the congress, will express the interest and show they all feel in securing a full and valuable discussion of this great problem, which so much interests every American.

"William H. Taft." It is believed in St. Paul that this letter from the president will be the means of bringing more governors to the congress than otherwise would be the case. It is recognized here that the time is not really the best for some of the governors. The campaign in some of the states and several of the governors are candidates for re-election. However, the president's letter is expected to show just where he stands on the conservation question and since he has agreed to come himself and urges the governors to do the same, there no doubt will be a larger attendance of state executives than has been expected.

Monday, Sept. 5, is to be President's and Governors' day at the congress and former President Roosevelt has expressed the wish that it will be the big day. The address of the president and the meeting of the governors are the only things on the program for that day. The governors will talk on any phase of the conservation question that suits them and the states they represent and much of value is expected to come from these speeches.

TARIFF AND TRUSTS

Are Blamed for the High Cost of Living

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The tariff of trade, the wholesale grocers, lumber dealers—associations that have contributed largely to the advance in prices and the frauds perpetrated by manufacturers of certain goods in reducing the weight of contents of packages from 20 to 50 per cent, and maintaining the same prices."

"The methods of the meat, trust," they declare, "seem to be admirably adapted to taking from the consumer and the producer the largest amount that the traffic will bear. Their destruction of local competitors cannot be improved upon." As what they call a "sample of the working of our combined," they say that "while everywhere else in the world the price of harvesting machinery has been appreciably reduced since 1900, in the United States it has been materially increased. The increase," they add, "started nearly contemporaneously with the Dingley tariff."

As to wages, they say that "the fear that wages would fall if the tariff were removed, and the fall in prices would not be a clear gain to the consumer, is not warranted by the experience of Great Britain. Great Britain is a free-trade nation, and it is the most prosperous nation in the world except our own. Shoals of emigrants from the tariff-ridden nations of France, Germany, Italy and Russia go to England to work. But Englishmen do not emigrate to those countries because the standard of living is lower. The general testimony is that the rate of wages for all mechanical trades is substantially higher in Great Britain than in those protectionist countries, while the prices of necessities are lower, leaving the Englishman a wider margin to live upon."

"It is about sixty years since Great Britain adopted free trade, and during that time, according to a table published in Whitaker's Almanac, wages have increased 8.7 per cent and prices only 3 per cent. It is, therefore, well seen that the abolition of the tariff in England did not bring down the rate of wages. Neither would it in this country. If we remove the obstruction, allowing prices to sink to their natural level, the question of wages may be trusted to take care of itself."

Replying to the majority's statement, in its report, that an "increased demand for farm products" is a cause of advancing prices, the minority cites the wheat crop as having increased from less than 3 bushels per capita in 1900, to more than 8 in 1909; corn from 27 to 30 bushels per capita; and potatoes from almost 3 to more than 4 bushels. Notwithstanding the increase in the price of farm products, the farmer, they say, "has realized a small net return on his labor and investment by reason of the increased cost of the articles necessary for him to purchase to carry on his business."

It is scarcely necessary," they add, "to mention the intentions of wool schedules—where the tariff rates are so high on those necessities of our people as to practically preclude any foreign competition with the American manufacturer, except on high-priced goods purchased by the wealthier consumer, who can, to some extent, disregard price. Taking up the subject of trusts, combinations and monopolies, they declare that "there are few trusts that could survive a revenue tariff. They flourish only under the shadow of high protective walls. Standing behind those walls that shut off foreign competition and destroying domestic competition by consolidations and absorptions, they are limited only to selling at a fraction less than the foreign price the protective duty. That they reduce cost of production seems certain, but it is in rare cases that the public or the laborer employed by them participate in the enlarged profit. So enormous have been their profits that we find organizations springing up all over the country like the Ekin board

"Frontier Days" at Cheyenne a Feature of His Coming Tours

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

ON June 18 New York, with the territory tributary to and adjoining the metropolis and a scattering representation of the remainder of the country, had its opportunity of greeting Teddy. Now comes the turn of the west and the south in the order given. The states west of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio could not go to Oyster Bay to tell the colonel how highly they esteem him, so he is going to swing around the circle to receive their homage, we almost said, but we shall change it to greetings. There will be great doings in many places when the ex-president arrives, but the citizens of Cheyenne, Chicago, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Atlanta and the other cities are not going to make all of the noise. No, indeed. Not by any means. The colonel is going to express a few views himself on the conservation of the country's natural resources and other timely topics.

Cheyenne is the place in which the wild home is in the greatest peril of serious fracture. About the time Roosevelt rides into the lively Wyoming city there will be a "Frontier Days" celebration going on in full blast. The arrival of Roosevelt will send the enthusiasm way up to the top of the tube. Wyoming looks upon Roosevelt as a sort of straying neighbor anyway, although it is quite a spell since he left his ranch in North Dakota, a nearby state, to follow the paths of fame in the east.

The "Old" West Will Be on View. With the end in view of entertaining the colonel and incidentally many thousands of other visitors, the western states have been scoured for the best remaining specimens of horse and man, with their accoutrements, to illustrate the life that has passed away in many places and is rapidly departing from the others. The spread of the modern improvements in life and the changes in the utilization of the soil have forced the cattleman more and more into changed ways of living. He continues to exist, of course, else he and the rest of us would have to abstain from beef, but his immense ranches are being cut up and the old time picturesqueness is being eliminated. Sheepman and farmer are crowding him hard, especially since the government forbade the fencing of its land. The steady flow of the irrigation idea over the west and the introduction of the so called "dry" farming and other improved methods of cultivation of the soil have substituted corn and alfalfa for the long and short grass on which the great herds formerly subsisted. The result has been a gain in net wealth for the west, but a loss in picturesqueness. For instance, the committee in charge of the Cheyenne celebration, which is an annual affair, finds it increasingly difficult to obtain the bucking bronchos to figure in the "busting" contests. Except in a few localities near Cheyenne the famous wiry broncho, with his hard mouth, his restless, nervous energy and his irresistible propensity to buck and rear and throw his would be rider, seems to be nearly extinct. For this year's celebration, the greatest planned in the fourteen years of "Frontier Days" existence, the whole west and the Hawaiian islands have been searched for the best riders, broncho busters and steer ropers in the world. The cowboys will risk their lives in contests with horses which have run wild over the plains. Some of these beasts have never known the feel of the halter and will resent in fierce fashion the efforts to subdue them. The first prize in the broncho busting contests will be a saddle worth $500, offered by the Union Pacific railroad. The Cheyenne folks profess a great contempt for the so called "wild west" shows. They declare that their celebration is the only "real thing" of the sort offered to the American public. To easterners one of the most interesting features of the celebration will be the gathering of the Indians. They will be there with their squaws, their papooses and their tepees and will take part in the stage holdups, riding contests, war dances, wild horse races, cow pony races, potato races, etc., that will help to make up the show. A forecast of the celebration reads: "Wyoming is already making great plans for 'Frontier Days' celebration. To this every ranch and camp in the wide and happy state empties its strong men, its crack riders, its gam-

est ponies, its testiest cattle—for the big show that is the last word the west of yesterday speaks to the people and world of today. "When the curtain goes up on this show men and women from Missouri give a hand wave to others from Montana and California, from Nebraska and Kansas, Colorado and Utah. A regular whoop it up western hand wave it is, that gets one as near the brotherhood of man idea as one is likely to be for many a day in these 'me for the individual life' times." With Roosevelt as an added attraction of course the celebration will draw visitors to Cheyenne from all over the country, as well as the ranchmen and their families. The railroads have made great preparations to handle the crowds. "Frontier Days" will be on for four days, from Aug. 24 to Aug. 27 inclusive. The last two will be "Roosevelt days."

Great Doings Are Predicted. Just listen to a newspaper man's predictions of the doings that will enliven the visit of the former president and ranchman to the Wyoming capital. Isn't he delightfully enthusiastic? "Doings! There'll be doings every moment of the six days, doings that'll efface all memory of jungle roars, of temple bells, of languid tropics and the blare of musketry from the mind of Roosevelt—and then more doings. For Roosevelt will be as the heat to fire, as the light to the flame, as the sting to the winds that come romping off the hills to give him greeting. The great rough rider is the ideal of every western ranch rider, every man who loves the bronchos. And these same rough, hearty spirits of the west are the Roosevelt ideals of manhood. What a glad, noisy, grand reunion it will be when they get together in Cheyenne and Denver!" In common with the rest of the west, Cheyenne deplors the passing of the "old west," with its picturesque and romance. That does not prevent Cheyenne, however, from taking advantage of modern conditions in adding attractions to its "Frontier Days" celebration. While the chauffeur will not share equally with the cowboy and the broncho buster and the pony express rider in the honors of the great

Perish with him the folly that seeks through evil good!
Long live the generous purpose unstained with human blood!
Not the raid of midnight terror, but the thought which underlies;
Not the borderer's pride of daring, but the Christian's sacrifice.
From "Brown of Osawatimie," by John Greenleaf Whittier.

WHEN the throngs assembled at Osawatimie, Kan., in the closing days of the current month to listen to an address on "Old John Brown of Osawatimie" by Theodore Roosevelt they will hear him express his opinion on a topic of the controversial sort in which he takes most delight. The occasion will be the turning over to the state of Kansas for a public park of the famous battlefield whereon Brown and his comrades fought fifty-four years ago. Osawatimie has set itself with gladness of heart and pride of spirit to the task of entertaining Colonel Roosevelt and thousands of other guests. Kansans in general and Osawatimians in particular are immensely proud of the fact that their invitation to Roosevelt was one of the first—if not the very first—which the colonel accepted after his arrival in Europe from his African hunt. So Osawatimie will have the double joy of remembering the dead man to whom it owes the widespread knowledge of its own name and of honoring the living man. The task of relating something of the deeds of John Brown is not one to be approached with lightness of heart, even by Roosevelt. Although half a century, plus almost another year, has passed since he expired on the scaffold his offense of seizing United States property at Harper's Ferry and thus declaring war with a small band of followers on thirty millions of people, historians are still divided in their judgment of him and his acts. "The men of the time called him hero, madman and almost everything between. It remained for an intelligent and highly trained historian, not of southern blood, a full generation after the fact, when unmoved by the passions of the civil war period, to class him as a common criminal," says one of the most recent of Brown's biographers. He adds: "That judgment of John Brown is perhaps further from the truth than any opinion entertained of him fifty years ago by intelligent and educated men of whatever political faith. Brown was an anarchist toward a single group of unjust human laws because he felt so acutely their conflict with what he deemed divine law. This attitude toward statutes and constitutional compromises led him into acts, vain if you will and those of a monomaniac, but not those of a common criminal." The battle of Osawatimie, to be commemorated by the Roosevelt address and the erection of a new state park, was one of the most striking incidents in the western career of John Brown before he turned his attention, with fatal results, to the eastern states. As the inscription on the battlefield monument his sons, pitted against a force of 400 Missourians who opposed the field, but Brown withdrew in victory. The biographers of Brown unite in deprecating his early life. His roving disposition and frequent change of occupation lead color to the charges of shiftlessness and improvidence. His obsession by the anti-slavery idea is variously termed fanaticism and righteous indignation. Whatever the view that may be taken of it, there is no doubt that he devoted to it wholeheartedly himself and his large family. "History can hardly parallel so large a family's unanimity of self sacrifice for a social ideal, in whose behalf they stunted themselves ungrudgingly," says a recent writer. It was, of course, Brown's strong personality and the vigor with which he pursued the abolitionist ideal that led to the devotion to his cause of his wife and his twelve sons. John Brown was born in Torrington, Conn., of good Puritan stock May 9, 1800. His grandfather was a captain in the Revolution. His father was known as an opponent of slavery. After following various occupations, marrying and begetting a large family John Brown, in 1848, bought a farm at North Elba, N. Y., where he is buried. He wandered over New York, Ohio, Connecticut and other states, everywhere participating actively in the anti-slavery cause. The settling of five of his sons in Kansas and their identification with the free soil cause drew him to that state. His career in Kansas gave him national prominence, and his visionary scheme of establishing in the Maryland or Virginia mountains a refuge for escaped slaves led to the battle at Harper's Ferry and the final tragedy at Charleston, Va. (now West Virginia), Dec. 2, 1859. ARNOLD M'ADAMS.

Hetty Green's Son Called to Her Assistance

NEW YORK'S gain is Texas' loss. That's the way Texas looks at the removal of Edward Robinson Green from Terrell, Tex., to the nation's metropolis. How New York looks at it is not yet recorded. There are more millionaires and railroad presidents in New York city than there are in Texas, and the addition of one did not make much of a splash in the New York puddle—that is, speaking figuratively. Literally considered, if Edward two other names Green fell into either of New York's two rivers he'd make considerable of a splash. He is more than six feet tall and weighs in the neighborhood of 300 pounds. It isn't in size merely that the only son of Hetty Green is a big man. He has gone to New York to take on his broad shoulders some of the financial burdens of his aging mother, the wealthy Mrs. Hetty Green, but the men who know him say that he is mentally as well as physically qualified to assume the responsibility. Texas has had him seventeen years, and now Mrs. Green thinks that it is her turn. Her astute brain is beginning to feel the strain of decades of the very shrewdest sort of financial manipulation. In seeking a staff whereon to rest in her declining years she naturally turned to her only son. She is seventy-five years old. Mrs. Green's fortune was estimated recently at $70,000,000. Many persons believe it is much more than that. Reverting to our first statement, about the acquisition of Edward H. R. Green by New York being considered a loss by Texas: Ever since the time, seventeen years ago, when Hetty Green sent her boy Eddie to Texas to look after her interests in the big state he has made it a point to cultivate intimate relationships with the Texans. Throughout the state he is known as Ed Green. He does not resent the familiar appellation—far from it. In Texas "bull fellow well met" is synonymous with Ed Green. That is, in social and political relationships. When you get on the practical side of the line that separates the social Ed Green from the business man, railroad president, ranch owner, real estate promoter, etc., you meet a totally different man. He shakes off the appellation Ed Green then and becomes Edward H. R. Green, president of the Texas Midland railroad, son of the famous woman financier and himself a financier with the ability to give points in the game to all but the very leaders of the profession. In this Mr. Green is only showing the workings of the laws of heredity. For four or five generations the Greens on his father's side and the Robinsons on his mother's—especially the latter—have been moneyed folks, with the inclination and the ability not only to hold on to their money, but to make it increase exceedingly. Hetty Green herself is the fine flower of this family tree, but her son is only a little, if any, inferior to her in the money getting and money keeping line. He is a bachelor, forty-two years old. There is good American blood in Hetty Green, her son and her only daughter, Sylvia, married a few years ago to Matthew A. Wilks. In an interview Hetty Green once repudiated with indignation some of the newspaper stories attributing lowly origin to her. "The Robinsons are as good as any family in America," she said, "and the Greens are equally good. Go to the little cemetery on the hill back of the old town of Plymouth, the old-ble introduced into Texas and the first steam yacht owned on its gulf coast. His little railroad has the very latest and most expensive forms of equipment and with a wireless telegraph system in the devising of which its president took a leading part. Mr. Green is keenly interested in various forms of sport, despite the lameness with which he has been afflicted since his boyhood. Among the forms which the liking takes is that of devotion to baseball and the capture of the tarpon, the giant fish of the east white men's cemetery in America, and you will find there among the graves some of the stones of my ancestors. You will find them among the oldest stones too." Getting back to modern times in this tale of the Greens, let us say that while Hetty Green's son resembles her in financial ability, cleverness and "cleanness" so far as business is concerned, he does not resemble her in what might be termed more personal characteristics. In Chicago and in New York, where he lived before his twenty-fifth year, when he removed to Texas, he had the reputation of being a free spender for anything he really wanted. He owned the first automo-

To Suppress Riots at Cincinnati-- Officers Discharged

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—The ground in the state house yard is filled with the "pup" tents of the first regiment, Ohio National guard, who arrived from Cincinnati early today. There has been very little rioting since the announcement that troops would be again in Columbus.

The thirty three mutinous policemen who refused to go on the cars when ordered by Mayor Marshall were formally discharged today.

MEMBERS OF G. A. R.

Want the New State Named After Lincoln

NEWTON, Aug. 16.—A movement to have the name of Abraham Lincoln commemorated by giving the name of Lincoln to the latest state to be admitted to the Union has been started by members of the G. A. R. post of this city. The local post is trying to have the movement endorsed by the Grand Army as a body. At the last regular meeting of the post the following resolutions were adopted:

"Whereas, a new star is about to be added to our flag by the admission to the Union of another state, therefore,

"Resolved, that Charles Ward post, No. 62, of Newton, department of Massachusetts, G. A. R., suggests that the new state be admitted under the name of Lincoln, in honor of Abraham Lincoln.

"Resolved, that we suggest to the commander of the department of Massachusetts that he take the matter up with the various posts of the department for their endorsement and that proper steps be taken to bring it to the attention of the competent authorities at an early date, in the name of the Grand Army of the Republic."

TRAIN WAS DERAILED

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—The Iron Mountain fast mail which left here at 2.30 o'clock this morning was derailed at Annapolis, Mo., 112 miles south of here, while going at a high speed. The conductor's leg was broken and five mail clerks were bruised. The train carried no passengers.

CADETS IN CAMP

Young Soldiers Cheered as They Boarded the Cars

No happier regiment of soldiers ever left Lowell than were the O. M. I. Cadets when they boarded special cars at 1.15 this afternoon, bound for Milligan's grove between Tewksbury and Wilmington, to enter on their annual tour of camp duty. The cadets with full ranks left their armory in the immaculate Conception school and marched to the cars amid the cheers of their parents and people of the parish. The boys reached the grounds at 1.45 and immediately were assigned to their quarters. Accompanying them were Rev. Denis A. Sullivan, O. M. I. chaplain, Lieut. Bernard McArdle and Police Officer Matthew McCann, who is athletic instructor of the boys. The tents are pitched in a pine grove and are ideally located. When all had been assigned to quarters they were called to the drill field by Lieut. McArdle and dress parade was in order.

The boys made a grand showing and Lieut. McArdle was greatly pleased. Tomorrow will be the big day of the camp, and in the afternoon and evening it is expected that the grounds will be crowded with visitors. There will be a special parade and review in the late afternoon and a band concert in the evening in honor of Chief Marshal Humphrey O'Sullivan of the A. O. H. cadets, who has been a great friend of the cadets. The boys take this means of showing their appreciation of what Mr. O'Sullivan has done for them, and they also want to let him get some idea of the showing they intend to make in the big parade next week. Mr. O'Sullivan will address the boys, and the occasion will be a great gala affair. It is probable that in addition to the band concert, the young soldiers will give an impromptu concert for the entertainment of their friends.

LIEUT.-COL. AMES FOUND GUILTY

MANILA, Aug. 16.—The findings in the case of Lieut. Colonel Robert F. Ames, who was court-martialed following the investigation of the suicide at his home of Lieut. Clarence M. Joppy, were published here today. He was acquitted on the charges of conduct unbecoming an officer but was found guilty of drunkenness and sentenced to the loss of twelve months.

THE ROQUE TOURNAMENT
NORWICH, Conn., Aug. 16.—The roque tournament of the National association was begun today on the courts which for many years have been the place for the championship contests. The drawings for the three divisions have been made and sixteen of the best players are in first division. The national champion is Harold Bosworth of New London, a schoolboy. His chief opponent will be C. C. King of Chicago.

In each division a player meets with every other player in that division and honors go to the players with the most victories.

The opening games resulted as follows:

First division—H. T. Webb, Philadelphia, beat W. L. Robinson, Mansfield, Mass.; C. C. King, Chicago, beat Jacobus, Springfield, Mass.; F. H. Foss, Norwich, beat Charles Jacobus, Springfield, Mass.

Second division—J. E. Webb, Philadelphia, beat J. L. Dudley, Washington; J. D. Miner, Providence, beat J. C. Ewer, Evansville, Ill.; E. W. Robinson, Mansfield, Mass., beat Ewer.

Third division—L. Stockwell, Norwich, beat P. Blumington.

ESPERANTO CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Special committees on the work of the international Esperanto congress held meetings here this morning. Special meetings are being arranged for civil and mechanical engineers, lawyers, physicians and railroad men.

JAMES T. BOYLE

Made Stubborn Fight Against Arrest

James T. Boyle started a roughhouse exhibition in the saloon of the Baldwin hotel in Prescott street yesterday afternoon and later had a "run in" with the police. He gave the police a battle before he was subdued and landed at the police station. He was badly hampered before he ceased to fight.

In police court this morning he was charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on John J. Brennan, a clerk at the hotel. Through his counsel, Joseph F. Loughran, he entered pleas of not guilty and a continuance till Thursday was asked for and granted by the court. He was held under $300 bonds on the assault charge and $100 for drunkenness, his personal recognizance being taken for the latter bond.

According to the police, Boyle entered the hotel bar and got into an argument with Mr. Brennan with the result that he struck Mr. Brennan over the head. He then ran out and made his way through Middle street. At about the same time Joseph L. Considine, one of the recently appointed superintendents of the police, in civilian clothes, was passing through Middle street and noting the condition of Boyle's face questioned him as to where he had been. He said that he had been assaulted by a man and was running away from him. This story did not go with the officer, however, and he asked Boyle to accompany him to where the alleged assault was.

Considine and Boyle walked side by side through Middle street until they came to the alleyway near the Talbot Chemical Co.'s works when Boyle struck the officer and started through the alley. Considine started after him and soon succeeded in catching up to him and after considerable difficulty succeeded in subduing him.

A pair of handcuffs were snapped on Boyle's wrists and he was escorted to the police station. On the way Inspector John Walsh was met and he assisted in arresting the man. Boyle did not like the idea of the inspector interfering and raising his unmanicured hands brought his two hands and the cuffs down on Inspector Walsh's head, smashing the latter's hat. The inspector retaliated by landing Boyle an open hander on the side of the face which qualified the disturber until he reached the police station.

Boyle is well known to the police and has raised considerable trouble for them. A few years ago when he was wanted by the police word was telephoned to this city that he was on a Lawrence car bound for Lowell. Several officers were stationed in the square to capture Boyle, but he saw them first and jumping over the railing of the car just before it reached Merrimack square ran through one of the side streets towards the canal, plunged into the canal, swam across and pulling himself out of the water entered the yard of the Massachusetts mills and after leading the police a merry chase managed to escape over a high picket fence.

A few months after that while passing through Merrimack street several officers saw him and gave chase. He led them through a maze of streets and alleys and finally finding himself cornered entered a house and hid in the cellar. When the police located him he put up a hot battle and it took four men to subdue him.

VET.'S WIDOW

May Lose Her Right to Pension

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—The pension authorities of this state will be called upon in a few days to decide whether the widow of a man who did not like the name bestowed upon him by his parents and had it changed to another name is entitled to a pension due the wife of a veteran of the Civil war.

Lucille Boyd, who died in Worcester yesterday, is the name of the man who changed his name. When still in his teens Boyd had his first name changed to "Tim" and always went by that name.

When he enlisted in the Civil war, however, Boyd enlisted under his right name, Lucille. Upon the close of the four years of fighting the man married, taking out the certificate under the name of "Tim Boyd."

Yesterday Mrs. Boyd expressed considerable fear that she would not be able to secure the pension to which she is entitled to, owing to her dead husband enlisting and marrying under two different names.

The widow also stated that she has ample proofs to show that Lucille and Tim Boyd were one and the same person.

Boyd died at his home, 50 Beacon street, Worcester, Sunday afternoon, at the age of 62.

The man was a wireworker by trade, being employed in the factory of the Building Fish company on Hermon street, that city.

He was born in Hopkinton, and was the son of Thomas Boyd. Besides a wife, one son, Louis E., and a brother, Theophilus E., of Upton, survive him.

Drowned From Spanish Steamer After a Collision

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 16.—The Spanish steamer Martos foundered this morning off Tariffa on the African coast opposite Gibraltar after a collision with the German steamer Elsa.

Thirty-nine were drowned, of whom 32 were passengers. The survivors were landed here.

A dense fog prevailed at the time of the collision.

Nine of the victims on the Martos were first cabin passengers. The other twenty-three passengers who perished were in the steerage. The bow of the Elsa was stove in by the collision and her forepeak filled quickly with water. The steamer, however, managed to keep afloat.

Alleged Method of Falsifying Them is Explained

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 16.—An explanation of the alleged method used by Richard Ingersoll, the 77 year old bank treasurer, to conceal the York county savings bank loss on western securities a quarter of a century ago by making the affairs of the bank appear more prosperous than they really were has been given. This bank closed its doors because of irregularities in the accounts which will cause a shortage, the extent of which will not be known until the passbooks have been examined. The changing of the books was said to have been done in this way: "If for the week there were $5000 in deposits and $3000 of withdrawals and $500 interest on loans, the interest account was swelled to $1500 by adding another $1000 on the books, while the withdrawals were increased by $1000, thus making the books of the bank balance. The depositors were in this way given full credit upon the cash books for their deposits but their books did not show any withdrawals which only appeared on the bank's books."

Strong in His Denunciation of the "Insurgent"

DANVILLE, Ill., Aug. 16.—Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the house, in an interview last night denounced insurgents, said that he would be a candidate for the speakership of the next house and declares that reports of a contemplated reorganization of the republican party originated with insurgents and democrats.

Referring to the despatches from Beverly, Mr. Cannon said: "I don't believe Mr. Taft contemplates any such action. The president is not the kind of man to yield to every passing whim of a minority. The story that Senators Aldrich and Hale and myself were to be thrown out of the house during the last seven years is subject to criticism and that the republican majority with which I have co-operated in the enactment of legislation is subject to just criticism."

"This I will not do. Because I believe the record of the party for the last seven years should be endorsed and not condemned."

Mr. Cannon then devoted his attention to the insurgents. "The senators and representatives who call themselves 'insurgents' and who voted against the enactment of the Payne bill voted to increase or maintain the duties on the industries and products of their own people, but were opposed to protection for other people in other sections."

BIG SIGN FELL
A large metal sign about 20 feet in length which was located over the windows on the second story of the Courier-Citizen building in Paige street, became loosened about 12.45 today and fell to the sidewalk with a crash which could be distinctly heard in Merrimack square.

Despite the fact that there were scores of people in the vicinity at the time fortunately they were not near the building when the sign fell.

BIG STRIKE IN SALEM

Over 1000 Shoe Workers to Leave the Factories Today

SALEM, Aug. 16.—A general strike of union employes in the Salem shoe factories was begun today and it was expected by union officials that before tonight more than 1000 shoe factory workers would have quit their benches. The strike came as the result of a meeting of the United Shoe-workers of America last night, at which it was voted almost unanimously to declare a general strike of the union men if a conference this morning failed to bring about a settlement of the troubles that have existed for some time between the union and L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. The chief issue is the demand of the union that several union employes who are alleged to have been locked out by the L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. be reinstated.

The conference this forenoon between the representatives of the union and the officials of the L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. failed to reach an agreement and at 10.15 the general quitting of union men began. First the cutters employed in the factory of the Jonathan Brown & Sons Co. left their work and marched down Canal street in a body. On their way down the street they passed the factories of the Woodberry Shoe Co., P. A. Fields & Co. and the L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. and at each factory the ranks of the strikers were strengthened. The unions participating in the strike include the lasters, the Mackay slicers, the stockfitters, the treers and the ironers. The cutters, although not affiliated with the United Shoe-workers of America, have voted to join the strike. It is generally believed that the four factories of the Cass & Daly Co., the largest shoe manufacturing plant in the city will not be affected inasmuch as the Cass & Daly firm recently adopted a union stamp. The union leaders say that the strike will be carried across to the adjoining city of Beverly. The union officials claim that several of the Beverly shoe manufacturers whom they do not name, have joined with the Salem manufacturers in the fight against the union.

LOWELL OFFICER MAN ARRESTED

Is Looking For Murder Suspect

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 16.—A Greek police officer from Lowell, Mass., arrived today to take up the search in this state for Nicholas Capasalakis, or Capsalis, the Greek who is wanted for the alleged murder of his aunt at Somersworth, N. H. He spent the forenoon with the police and in visiting the Greek colony and planned to visit Portland and Lewiston later in the day. It was learned that the murderer left this city between 5 and 6 p.m. Sunday, going to Portland or Lewiston or to both those cities.

LOWELL BOY RESCUED A MAN FROM DROWNING

William H. Looney, one of Lowell's well known musicians, now playing at the National picture house in New Bedford, proved himself a hero a few days ago by saving a young man from drowning. Jack Lawrence of New Bedford is the man who owes his life to the heroic act of Mr. Looney. While diving from a pier, Mr. Lawrence struck his head against some object and was put out of consciousness. Mr. Looney swam to his rescue as Mr. Lawrence was going down for the third time and grabbed him and it was with great difficulty that he brought him safely to shore.

MUNSEY AUTO TOUR

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—Twenty-eight of the 31 autos entered in the Munsey historic tour of the New England and Middle Atlantic states left here on schedule time today. The pilot car left the Hotel Walton, the starting point of the 1550 mile tour, at 5 a. m. and at 7 o'clock the first of the entrants got away. The other cars followed at one minute intervals. Today's run is to West Point, N. Y., a distance of 142 miles, and the scheduled stop at Morristown, N. J. Owing to copious rains during the last two days heavy roads were encountered during the morning. Leaving West Point tomorrow morning the run will be to New London, Conn. The automobile will be in Boston Thursday night, Portland, Me., Friday night and Bethlehem, N. H., Saturday evening, where the big party will remain until Monday morning.

LETTER CARRIER Whalers Whale Lowell at SPAULDING'S SHOE SHOP

Suspected of Intending to Kill His Children and Himself

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—A complaint was sent to the Gerry society several days ago that a letter carrier, Robert H. Mack, was living in the hallway of 506 Tenth avenue with his two children, George, 6 years old, and James, 4. The women who made the complaint, Mrs. Jennie Smith of 512 Tenth avenue and Mrs. James Dennett of 506 Tenth avenue, protested that the children were not receiving the proper care.

The matter was turned over to the police and when Mack was arrested last night it was found that he apparently had made preparations to shoot himself, his two sons and a saloon keeper, whom he accuses of running away with his wife, Minnetta.

Mack, who is attached to the Long-acre Square station, was dispossessed from his rooms at 510 Tenth avenue last Friday for not paying his rent. He begged the janitress, Mrs. Dennett, to allow him to occupy the empty rooms, but she refused. Since that time, according to Mrs. Dennett, the man and his two boys have been living from hand to mouth and sleeping wherever they could find shelter. When Policeman Thon found them last night they were in the hallway of their former home.

The first thing taken from the man's pockets at the station house was a revolver with all the chambers loaded. There was also a letter showing that Mack intended murder and suicide.

Mack said he had put his household effects in storage, but the police found pawn tickets which indicate that they are in pawn. Mack is on 15 days leave, he said, and has $20 salary coming to him.

The letter, which Mack had written on postoffice paper in a Tenth avenue restaurant, says a saloon keeper whom he names "is to blame for all my trouble," and goes on to say that he "intend to put away my two children and to put myself in a hospital. I will put away that cur — also if I get a chance to do so."

The letter directs the postoffice to pay Mack's salary to James L. Allessbury of Corona, L. I., with the stipulation that none of it shall be paid to Mack's wife. It also says that all his other effects shall go to Allessbury.

In a postscript Mack says: "I seem better to me that the two children should depart from this world of cares and sorrows rather than live through life with the stigma of shame and degradation attached to them. I love them and for that reason only I wish them to go with me. I am not insane and I know perfectly well every footstep I take in my actions."

The children said that their father had always treated them well. They did not want to leave him when they were taken to the Gerry society. Mack is held on charges of vagrancy and carrying a concealed weapon.

NEW BEDFORD	-	0	2	0	2	0	2	0	0	---

The fine game between Lowell and New Bedford yesterday afternoon attracted about 700 fans to Spalding park this afternoon to witness the second game between the Grays and Whalers. If the weather had not been so threatening no doubt there would have been a much larger attendance.

It was expected that McGuffie, the pitcher, who was recently added to New Bedford's pitching staff, would be on the mound for the visitors, but it is understood that he is being kept in reserve in order to pitch against Worcester, which is the runner-up to New Bedford in the league standing.

A telegram from New Bedford today brought forth the news that Manager Tom Dowd is resting more comfortably.

The local fans expected that Wolf-gang would be on the slab for Lowell, but Yount was put in to do the twirling.

Umpire Lanigan called the game at three o'clock, the batting order of the teams being as follows:

Lowell	New Bedford
Blakely cf	Walsh rf
Fitzpatrick 2b	McCrone 1b
Cooney ss	if Rising
Magee if	2b Cunningham
Tennery 1b	cf McCormick
Flaherty rf	ss Bauman
Boultes 3b	3b Wilson
Huston c	c Pratt
Yount p	p McIntire

First Inning

Neither side scored in the first inning. Walsh hit to Cooney and was out at first. McGuffie followed with a foul fly to Boultes. Rising drew base on balls and was nailed while trying to steal second.

In the latter half of the inning Blakely hit to Cunningham and was out at first. Fitzpatrick popped a fly which McGuffie gathered in. Cooney singled, the ball getting by Bauman. Magee closed the inning with a fly to Wilson.

Score—Lowell 0, New Bedford 0.

Second Inning

A little hard luck on Lowell's part in the second inning allowed the Whalers to score two runs. Cunningham opened with a single and McCormick sent the ball to the left field fence for two bases. Cunningham going to third, Bauman hit to Cooney, who held Cunningham on third and threw the runner out at first. Wilson sent a sacrifice fly to Magee and the latter threw home to get Cunningham, but the ball hit in front of the plate and bounding over Huston's head allowed Cunningham and McCormick to score. Pratt filed to Tennery.

In Lowell's half Tennery filed to Rising. Flaherty filed to Walsh and Boultes hit by third base, but failed to reach first, for Wilson made a pretty stop of the ball and threw the runner out.

Score—Lowell 0, New Bedford 4.

Seventh Inning

Walsh filed to Tennery and McCrone hit to Fitzpatrick and was out at first. Rising hit to Boultes, but Boultes in throwing to first threw the ball over to the right field fence and Rising went to third, but he stayed there for Cunningham hit to Boultes and was out at first.

Cooney filed to Rising and Magee filed to Bauman. Tennery drew a base on balls, it being the first base on balls that McIntire gave during the game. Flaherty hit to Wilson forcing Tennery at second.

Score—Lowell 0, New Bedford 6.

Sixth Inning

Two more for New Bedford in the sixth inning. McCormick singled and Bauman followed with a foul fly to Huston. Wilson singled to right field and Flaherty allowed the ball to go through him. Cunningham scoring and Wilson going to third. Pratt hit a Texas leaguer to short left centre field and Wilson scored. McIntire hit to Cooney, who threw to second, getting Pratt and Fitz sent the ball to first for a double play.

In the latter half of the inning Huston hit to McIntire and was out at first. Yount then surprised the fans by getting a single to centre field, the second hit made during the game. Blakely and Fitz went out on flies to McCormick.

Score—Lowell 0, New Bedford 6.

Eighth Inning

McCormick hit to Tennery and was out at first. Bauman hit to the right field fence and tried to make three bases. Flaherty threw to Boultes and Bauman was caught between second and third. He attempted to get back to second, but was tagged out. Wilson filed to Magee.

Riley went to bat for Boultes in the eighth and struck out. Huston filed to McCormick. Yount then electrified the fans by making his second hit during the game, he making two of the three hits made by Lowell. Blakely hit to Bauman, forcing Yount at second.

Score—Lowell 0, New Bedford 6.

Ninth Inning

In the ninth inning Pratt hit to Riley at third and was out at first. McIntire hit to Fitz and also died at first. Walsh hit to Tennery and was out at first. Yount covering the bag.

Fitzpatrick started the latter half of the ninth inning by knocking the ball over the left field fence for a home run. Cooney hit to McIntire and died at first. Magee filed to Cunningham. Tennery got a single by third base. Flaherty hit to the centre field fence for three bases, scoring Tennery. Riley hit to Bauman, who threw ball to first and Flaherty scored, while Riley went to third. Sullivan went to bat for Huston and struck out.

Score—Lowell 3, New Bedford 10.

Errors—Lowell 5, New Bedford 1.

It seems inevitable that unless there is excess of rain from now on, there will be a severe drought in the river on account of the small quantity of water left in the lake.

The conditions are attributed to the two preceding dry years, 1908 and '09, with only a normal amount of snow on the ground in the spring of the present year. An excessive amount of snow would have made up the deficiency for the preceding two years.

Philippines, so that Lowell-made shoes beat the pavements of many climes and undoubtedly do their share of climbing.

The making, packing and finishing departments of the Spaulding company occupy three large floors in the mammoth building at the corner of Rock and Willie streets, also occupied by the Whittall Mfg. Co. The sewing and stitching departments occupy the top floor of the Stover & Bean shop in the C. F. Hood building. So prosperous has the company been under the efficient management of Mr. Dunn that more room will soon be needed and the company may yet be seen with all its departments in one large plant.

Mr. David Emery is the superintendent of the plant while Mr. Dunn is the practical shoe-maker. Mr. Dunn is for many years connected with the big concern of Luddy and Currier of Lynn and what he doesn't know about the business isn't worth knowing.

Speaking briefly of the shoe industry in Lowell, Mr. Dunn said: "Of course the shoe industry in Lowell is practically a new industry, but growing, and therefore it is new to the working classes of Lowell. We have to break in many of our help as do the others, whereas if located in cities that have shoe shops for years we would have a surplus of experienced applicants for work. There is one thing I must say for Lowell help. They are a fine class of help. We have no difficulty in getting good help. But then one can always get good help when his plant gives them 52 weeks in the year as we do. 'We employ both men and women, the latter being all together in the sewing and stitching department in the Hood building. We expect to make our coming outing a grand success.'

AN ELABORATE AFFAIR

An Allegorical Review of Peterboro's History

PETERBORO, N. H., Aug. 16.—A pageantry on an elaborate scale was seen in New Hampshire for the first time today when an allegorical review of Peterboro's history with appropriate lyrics and musical settings was presented in a natural outdoor theatre on the estate of the late Edward MacDowell, the famous musical composer. Beginning with the first settlement of the town and continuing down to the present day epochs in the town's history were shown, the characters participating being appropriately garbed in the costumes worn in the various periods represented.

Nearly 250 of the young people of the town took part in the production and at one time a chorus of 215 voices occupied the stage.

The object of the performance which is to be repeated on Thursday and Saturday of this week is to stimulate interest and to raise money for the establishment of an art colony on the MacDowell estate where during the last six or seven years of his life the composer wrote practically all of his music. Mrs. MacDowell, the composer's widow, was in charge of the costuming and stage settings and Prof. George P. Baker of Harvard university had the supervision of the dramatic part of the production. The chorus was accompanied by an orchestra of 28 pieces, and Charles D. Clifton, a Harvard student and the leader of the Pyrran sodality of Harvard, was the musical conductor. Most of the lyrics were from the pens of Herman Hagedorn, whose class room upon his graduation from Harvard a year or two ago was a feature of the class day exercises.

The MacDowell Memorial association composed of a number of art and music numbers in various sections of the country is sponsor for the pageant. It is the purpose of the association to establish on the MacDowell estate at Peterboro a colony where students in painting, sculpture and music will find assistance and inspiration.

SEEKS HER HUSBAND

HARTFORD, Aug. 16.—Bent with the infirmities of age and from a long period of physical suffering, Mrs. Albert G. Finney, aged 70, left here last night for Plainfield in search of her husband, who believes that she died years ago from spinal meningitis. She feels that he is in need of her, and although it is possible he has since remarried, she has decided to find him.

Only in the brightness of her eyes was there anything to indicate that the aged woman, who leaned heavily on a cane, was about to set forth on a quest of love. Her once brown hair had become as snow since she and her husband had lived happily together. Her step has lost its vigor, her hand shakes, but her love has lost none of its strength, and she depends upon it to support her on the strange mission.

Mrs. Finney was married thirty-nine years ago, and four years later was taken ill with spinal meningitis. For thirty-four years she was unable to walk or get out of bed. Two years ago, to the surprise of physicians, she became well and has regained some of her old strength.

At the time she became ill her husband was connected with the firm of Finney & Vais, of Waterbury. He employed the best doctors to treat her, and she was sent to various hospitals. Mr. Finney spent almost his entire substance, and when a business depression occurred he became bankrupt. Mrs. Finney was then thrown upon the charity of the city, and remained in a hospital as a public charge.

She frequently was visited by her husband, who was struggling along with difficulty. One day when he reached the hospital the attendants would not admit him to his wife's room, as they said she was delirious. Heart-broken and almost penniless, Finney left and did not return. He went away from Hartford supposing his wife had died.

Recently Mrs. Finney received a legacy from an unexpected source, and was again made independent. She at once began a search for her lost spouse, and has found a clue which takes her to Plainfield. She is under the impression her husband is employed there in insurance work, and depends upon instinct to ferret him out.

All insurance offices in Hartford have been visited by her, and she has asked to be on watch for Finney, and when they heard the story of the sweet-faced woman, all promised they would assist her. Every hotel keeper in Hartford has agreed to help her, and hundreds of men and women are now as eyes and ears to her. Besides the personal search, she is advertising in insurance periodicals for Finney.

"I simply want to share my legacy with him," she said, "I don't care if he has remarried. All I want to do is help him. He was good to me when I was ill and helpless, and I love him."

Mrs. Finney lives at the South May Street, No. 885 North Main street, Waterbury, and when not searching for her husband, spends her time revisiting the scenes of her early married life.

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—The controversy over the transportation of milk turned up before the Interstate commerce committee today when three local contractors claimed that the schedule recently adopted by the Boston & Maine, the Maine Central and the St. Johnsbury & Lake Champlain railroads are excessive.

The petitioners were the Boston Dairy company, D. Whiting & Sons and H. P. Hood & Son and their attorneys, who claimed that the new rates in Massachusetts were unreasonable, and an increase of 170 per cent for distances under 40 miles from Boston, and from 60 to 100 per cent outside that limit.

The railroad attorney said that the Saunders act had forced the railroads into making a new rate. The railroads did not set $100 a day more for the carrying of milk but $95 is consumed in icing and $5 in extra clerical work so that the railroads are naming nothing under the revised conditions.

Some of the milk lawyers asked that the hearing be postponed until after the Saunders could be repealed, but Commissioner Prouty declined to allow it, saying that the controversy had been going on for years and that it was time to settle it.

Thief Arrested by Aid of a Man Who Witnessed the Theft—Man in Court for Stealing Check for $110

Abraham Hablaka was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with the larceny of $110 from the American Express company. He entered a plea of not guilty and by agreement the case was continued (11) Thursday, the defendant being held under $500 bonds.

According to the police a number of Syrians in Lawrence collected $110 to send to a fellow-countryman, Hassan L. Abdell, who is in hard circumstances in Venezuela. An American Express money order for the amount was secured and entrusted to Hablaka to send to Abdell. It is alleged that Hablaka sent an envelope with a blank slip of paper to Venezuela and on March 17 of this year came to Lowell and presented the money order and forging the name of Abdell secured the $110.

Several weeks later when Abdell wrote to his friends in Lawrence that he had not received the money the matter was reported to the police and Sunday Hablaka was arrested in Fall River and brought to this city yesterday.

In court this morning Lawyer James E. Ryan, who appeared for the government, stated that before the larceny case came to trial he would swear out complaints of forgery and uttering against the defendant.

Robbed While Asleep on Common

Charles J. Lunney, aged 45 years and claiming a residence in Gorham street this city, was arrested in South street near the South common shortly before nine o'clock by Patrolman Daniel Cogger after the latter had been informed by Michael McMahon of 86 Franklin street that he had seen Lunney "go through" the clothing of a vehicle arriving Lunney and his alleged victim, who was in a comatose condition, were bundled into the wagon and taken to the police station. Lunney was booked for larceny from the person and the other man, who was unable to give his name, was booked for drunkenness.

At about 8:45 o'clock this morning there were quite a number of people on the common. Some were sleeping off the effects of the night before or the "eye openers" in the morning while others resorted to the common for the purpose of securing fresh air.

Stratched out on one of the benches near the corner of Thordike and Summer streets was a drunken man. Despite the fact that some boys had tried to arouse the man from his slumbers their efforts went for naught for the man was "dead to the world."

Seated on a bench a short distance away was Michael McMahon of 86 Franklin street and from time to time he looked in the direction of the seat occupied by the intoxicated man. On one occasion when he glanced in that direction he noticed a person near the seat who was acting in a very suspicious manner. Keeping a close watch on the latter he saw the stranger place his hands in the pockets of the trousers of the drunken man and take a watch and chain and what looked to be money. The man then walked off. Mr. McMahon immediately realized that there was something wrong and decided to follow the man until he ran across a police officer.

Following at a distance behind the man in order not to attract attention Mr. McMahon continued until he reached the corner of South and Summer streets where he met Patrolman Daniel Cogger. McMahon told his story to the officer and the latter detained the stranger who proved to be Lunney. Lunney denied that he had stolen anything from the man and quite reluctantly agreed to accompany the officer back to where the drunken man was lying on the seat.

On the way up Summer street Patrolman Cogger noticed Supt. Welch passing through Thordike street, and calling him over had McMahon relate his story to the superintendent.

The superintendent, Patrolman Cogger, McMahon and Lunney went over to where the man was lying on the seat but all attempts to revive the man proved without avail.

Turning to Supt. Welch asked: "Did you get any money from this man?"

"He gave me 50 cents to get a pint of booze," was Lunney's reply. "Is that all?"

"Yes sir."

"How much money have you in your pocket?"

"About $2.50," Lunney then drew $1.90 in change from one of his pockets.

"Thanks for Ani-sen Baby's Medicine"

written a Lowell mother. "I like it very much and will cheerfully recommend it to my friends. It is a very good medicine, which they can give their children with perfect confidence; that it can only do good. It cures all baby's common ailments of stomach, liver and bowels, teething troubles, etc. Ani-sen is sold by all druggists; etc."

FUNERALS

COLBURN—The funeral of Annie M., wife of Charles W. Colburn took place at her home in Pellam, N. H., Saturday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Russell of Methuen, and a quartet composed of Mrs. Ethel Johnson, Mrs. Fannie Carlton, Messrs. Daniel Webster and Otis Gage sang "Face to Face" and "Abide With Me." Burial was at Pelham Centre. At the cemetery Mrs. Mary C. Berry made a beautiful prayer and spoke words of comfort, and the quiver of "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The bearers were J. Otis Titcomb, Forest E. ## MURDER SUSPECT

Police Think They Will Have Him in Custody Before Long

SOMERSWORTH, N. H., Aug. 15.—At a late hour last night the police had received no news of the arrest of Nicholas Capsalis, for whom Sheriff Smith of Dover and two of his deputies, Elmer Clark and Loren Casler, have been searching since Sunday.

Sheriff Smith returned last evening to Dover from Boston. He spent the day in Boston and Brockton, but had obtained no trace of the alleged murderer. Deputy Sheriff Clark, it is understood, will visit Lawrence after he concludes his search at Lowell. Deputy Casler is searching in Portland.

The fact that no trace of Capsalis' trunk was found at Biddeford yesterday led to further inquiries at the Boston and Maine station at Dover. The statement made by an assistant baggage-master there Sunday that the trunk was checked from the Boston station Sunday was declared last night to have been incorrect.

Asst. Herbert Hall of Dover, who did most of the checking Sunday, says he is quite sure that no trunk was then transferred from Somersworth to Biddeford. Without knowing the number of the check given Capsalis at Somersworth, it was impossible to tell in which direction the trunk had been sent. As the checking sheet is sent to Boston each day, a comparison thereof of the sheets made out here and at Dover between Thursday and Sunday night it is thought might furnish a clue. The Somersworth check numbers, however, are not always taken down, he said, because of lack of time, and it might not have been in this instance.

The furnishing of Capsalis' photograph to the police caused some excitement in the Greek colony, and the report came to the police yesterday that some Greeks have said that if they can get hold of the man who first gave away the picture, they will treat him as the woman was treated. The picture is a very accurate likeness of Capsalis and it is thought it will aid materially in his apprehension.

With three days' delay from the time the murder was committed until the sheriffs began their hunt, it is thought here that Capsalis will not be easily caught.

Nothing has been done by the local authorities in reference to offering a reward for the Greek's arrest. The citizens are anxious that he be captured and many think a reward ought to be offered. At present, however, there is no one in authority here to call the city council together to consider the matter. Mayor Dougherty is in the Adlonette with a patient and City Clerk Labonte is attending a secret order conference in Montreal as a delegate.

The police have now learned that Capsalis made any threats against the life of his aunt, Marissa Capsalis. The Greeks who told of the frequent quarrels between the pair over the woman's money and over her receiving attention from Nicholas Kallias, are thought to be about the only circumstances that led up to the murder than some of them have told.

The nephew's reported jealousy of Kallias' attentions to his aunt is regarded by the police as having been based on his objection to having his aunt, who was earning good wages and had considerable money, leave him to marry.

This desire to keep her with him is believed to have prompted him to endeavor to have Kallias sent back to Greece through the process of extradition to face an alleged crime. Though he, with the aid of a local lawyer, had Kallias arrested at Biddeford with that end in view, the attempt failed, because it was shown that Kallias had been in this country long enough to not be affected by the extradition laws.

LEWISTON, ME., SEARCHED—All of the residences in the Greek section of the city are undergoing a thorough search in the belief that Nicholas Capsalis, who is being sought in connection with the barrel murder at Somersworth, N. H., is in hiding here.

The man is known to have several friends in this city and it is said, has been traced here from Portland. Local Greeks who are aiding the police are said to have admitted that the man has been here but claim not to know whether he left town or not.

IN BIDDEFORD SUNDAY

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 15.—The police now believe that Nicholas Capsalis, the alleged murderer of his aunt, Marissa Capsalis last Wednesday, was in the city as late as Sunday afternoon at 6, when it is thought he went east. He has visited here many times, and is well known in the Greek colony.

Sunday night, when Deputy Sheriff Casler came here from Somersworth, he was after the Greek murderer, who he was after, immediate steps were taken to hunt for Capsalis. He has relatives living at 42 Foss street and 22 Elm street, and those houses were searched. The officers also searched 16, 17 and 20 Lacombe street, as well as other tenement houses occupied by the Greeks.

The police say that Nicholas Kallias, who kept company with the aunt, Capsalis, is at present engaged in business at Old Orchard.

If the alleged murderer's trunk was shipped here it is not here now; at least the officers were unable to locate it here.

Chief of Police Harmon says that about the middle of July Nicholas Capsalis called on his office and told him about a Greek living in this city who was wanted for murder in Greece. He claimed that this crime was committed nine years ago, and he gave a detailed and thrilling account of how the assassin laid in wait for his victim beside an old wood road, in a pine grove, and shot him down.

The slayer had fled to this country and had been located in Biddeford.

Mr. Harmon cannot remember the name of the Greek against whom the complaint was made. So plausible did the story told by Capsalis sound that the chief had the Greek detained pending an investigation.

He immediately communicated with the Greek consul in Boston and asked if such a crime as the Somersworth murder had been committed. The vice consul was unable to give any information, and the Biddeford Greek was released. He shortly after left Biddeford and the chief says he does not know his present whereabouts. He never told the man what he was detained for, and to his knowledge the suspect never knew that a complaint had been lodged against him by Capsalis.

It is believed by the local police that the alleged murderer will be captured in a few days. It is almost sure that he is somewhere in Maine.

The local Greeks are considerably excited over the tragedy, as they were well acquainted with the parties.

NOT IN PORTLAND—PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 15.—Deputy Sheriff Loren D. Casler of Somersworth, N. H., came here yesterday to try to find Nicholas Capsalis. Police Captain Thompson detailed Patrolman McDonough to go with him and they worked for hours.

He found persons who know Capsalis very well and talked with them, but did not succeed in locating his man.

RELATIVES IN BROCKTON—BROCKTON, Aug. 15.—The police have been asked to watch for Nicholas Capsalis, wanted for the alleged murder of his aunt at Somersworth, N. H. Capsalis has friends and relatives here, which leads the New Hampshire police to think that he might come here.

DEATHS—MADDEN—The many friends of Mrs. Margaret Madden, widow of the late Patrick Madden, formerly of Forge Village, will be pained to learn of her death, which occurred at her home at Fishkill on the Hudson, N. Y., where she moved after the death of her husband here a few years ago.

Mrs. Madden had been in poor health for many years, but her death occurred suddenly. The body was brought to Graniteville today for burial. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Henry Post and Miss Mary T. and Miss Nellie Madden; one son, John, and one granddaughter.

HARNDEN—Mrs. Mary Harnden, an old resident of Groton, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Harrington, with whom she made her home in that town.

Mrs. Harnden's age was 34 years, 4 months and 21 days. She was a native of Wilmington, but had lived in Groton over 50 years.

She had nine children, four of whom survive here: Mrs. Etta Savage of Chelmsford, Mrs. Lillian Clark and Mrs. Fannie Harrington of Groton, and Mrs. Irene Leighton of Concord, N. H., and one stepson, John Harnden of Iowa. She is also survived by three brothers, Samuel Harnden of Lowell, Otis of Haverhill, and Henry of Reading, and two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Mann of Los Angeles, Cal., and Mrs. Lizzie Jenkins of Wakefield.

SMITH—J. Andrew Smith, for many years a well known resident of Lowell, died yesterday in Lawrence, at the age of 66 years. Besides his wife, Bridget, he leaves two daughters, Jennie Land and Julia M., and three sons, John, Andrew and Joseph. The body was taken to the undertaking rooms of J. F. O'Donnell & Sons.

THAXELRA—Marta Thaxelra, aged 3 months, child of John and Rosa Thaxelra, died yesterday afternoon at the home of her parents, 400 Central street. The funeral took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the home of her parents. Burial was in the Catholic cemetery. Undertakers M. H. McDonough & Sons had charge.

HOGAN—Annie Hogan, aged 76 years, died today at St. John's hospital. The deceased was an old resident of this city. The remains were removed to the funeral parlors of Undertakers M. H. McDonough & Sons on Gorham street.

SONDER YACHT RACES

MARBLEHEAD, Aug. 15.—The weather conditions off Marblehead were so strenuous today that the Sonder yacht races, which had been postponed out of the harbor, in fact one or two of them said that if the northeast continued tomorrow they might ask for a postponement of the first race.

That the visitors should have declined to try their boats in a fifteen knot northeast and a tumble of a sea, caused considerable surprise here as it had been the impression that they were more used to such conditions than the usually smooth waters of Massachusetts bay. All the boats were hauled out today for their last rub-downs and will not take the water until a couple of hours until the start tomorrow.

TWO NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 15.—Two national conventions opened in Detroit today. The first of the conventions was that of the National Fraternal congress which held its first session this forenoon. The 25th annual meeting of the American Philatelic society was opened later in the day.

REV. DR. BRODIE DEAD

BOSTON, Aug. 15.—Rev. Dr. James Brodie, for many years prominent in the Congregational pulpit and for the last two years connected with the editorial department of the American board for foreign missions, died at a private hospital here today. Dr. Brodie was born in Hammond, N. Y., in 1854.

CENSUS BUREAU REPORT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The value of the manufactured product of Delaware, the first given out of the census bureau as the result of the investigations in connection with the recent census-taking is $52,781,041.

This is a gain of over 23 per cent. since 1904. There was a 29 per cent. gain in salaries and wages, of 17 per cent. in the number of establishments and of almost 20 per cent. in the capital employed. More than two thousand officials and clerks and more than 21,000 laborers are employed.

THE INDIAN LANDS

Claim That Government Was Justified in Delaying Sale

SULPHUR, Okla., Aug. 15.—Attempts to show that the government was justified in delaying the sale of $30,000,000 worth of Indian land in Oklahoma occupied the congressional committee in the investigation of the McMurray contracts today. Testimony was given that it would have been impossible for the government to sell out the land and distribute the money among the Indians as speedily as J. P. McMurray had promised to do or a ten per cent attorney's fees basis.

Rep. Carter of Oklahoma was recalled and was asked: "What is your opinion of Vice President Sherman in matters pertaining to Indian affairs?"

"He has always shown a deep interest in the Indians," Carter replied. "What was his attitude towards large fees?"

"He was opposed to them."

It has been asserted in previous testimony that Mr. Sherman had expressed emphatically his disapproval of the ten per cent fee.

Rep. C. H. Burke, chairman of the investigating committee, pointed out to the witness that much of the government's alleged delay in selling the land was due to the failure of the Indians to take their shares of allotted land.

Douglass Johnson, chief of what is known as the Chickasaw nation, testified he signed the McMurray contracts. He had urged others to sign but never had been induced to do so by McMurray.

MAYOR OPPOSES BULL FIGHT

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—A genuine bull fight announced by the Ridge Country club on Friday and Saturday has attracted the attention of the authorities in the village of Morgan Park where the fight is scheduled.

"No such spectacle shall be given or advertised in my jurisdiction," said Mayor Ney of Morgan Park.

Nevertheless the promoters insist that they will hold the fight in spite of the authorities.

Posters which Mayor Ney refused to allow displayed in Morgan Park have a brilliantly colored picture of a mounted knight. The reading matter is as follows:

"No need to go to Spain to see a bull fight. The Ridge Country club will have the real thing. An imported, ramping, ferocious Andalusian. You will hear him roaring on the grounds. No police interference."

"Beautiful women, Spanish costumes, toreros, matedores, espadas, rehasas, bijos, hermanas, frijoles."

CRUSADE AGAINST BETTING

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 15.—Harry Devereux, president of the Forest City Livestock & Fair Co., appeared in Police Justice Murphy's court today to answer to a charge of permitting pool selling at the grand circuit light harness meet at North Randall track last week. The hearing went over until Aug. 25.

Horsemen here alarmed by Gov. Harmon's crusade against betting on races are awaiting the result of the hearing with considerable anxiety. The fate of racing in this state hinges on the Devereux case.

MILLIONAIRES COL. ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's name was presented for the office of temporary chairman of the republican state committee at the meeting of the republican state committee today and his election for that honor was lost by a vote of 20 to 15. Vice President James Sherman was named as temporary chairman of the coming state convention by a unanimous vote following the defeat of the motion to make Colonel Roosevelt the temporary presiding officer of the convention. The state committee selected Saratoga and Sept. 27 as the place and time for the republican convention.

William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, nominated Vice President Sherman for the office of temporary chairman of the state convention, while in opposition to Mr. Sherman, Col. Theodore Roosevelt was nominated.

Roosevelt temporary chairman was then lost by a vote of 20 to 15 following which Vice President Sherman was unanimously chosen for the temporary presiding officer of the convention, Lloyd Griscom and State Committee-man Mack of New York not voting. The state committee then adjourned to meet Monday evening, Sept. 20, at Saratoga.

PERSONALS—Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ambrose of 176 Adams street are rejoicing over the arrival of a daughter at their home. Mr. Ambrose is the well known member of the protective company of the fire department.

BANK CLOSED—LONDON, Aug. 15.—The British Bank of Commerce, a small private concern, closed its doors today. No importance is attached to the failure of the bank which started business only in 1908.

$5,000,000 FOR STOCKHOLDERS—NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Directors of the Standard Oil company held their midsummer dividend meeting today and declared the regular six per cent dividend for the quarter which calls for a distribution to the Standard stockholders of $5,000,000.

WENT TO REVERE—Several hundred people left Merrimack square this morning at 8:15 o'clock on the semi-weekly excursion to Revere beach and Wonderland under the auspices of the Boston & Northern Street Railway company.

REPUBLICAN OUTING—NANTASKET, Aug. 15.—Gov. Draper, Lieut. Gov. Frothingham, Speaker Walker and Senator Lodge were the guests and principal speakers at the picnic of the republican clubs of Plymouth county at Nantasket beach today. In his address Gov. Draper devoted considerable time to a discussion of legislation acted during his administration.

Inspector Charles Ladamme of the criminal bureau of the local police department also reported for work this morning.

LOWELL MILITIA DUPES OF WOMAN

Will Take Part in Sham Battle Who for Five Years Posed as a Man at Canobie

A very enthusiastic meeting was held after mass at the Canobie Lake theatre, Sunday, for the lawn party in aid of the immaculate Conception church at Salem Depot, to be held next Saturday afternoon and evening, at the ball grounds in the park.

The various committees reported a very favorable week and by Saturday everything will be in readiness for the big event.

After the meeting the committee on the sham battle together with Lieut. Bonifant, Co. L. Lawrence, and Lieut. Doyle, Co. G. of Lowell, proceeded to the ball grounds and there laid plans for the sham battle. A fort which is to take in the whole northwest corner of the grounds, will be erected for the defending force and the invaders will enter over the fence, at a point only known to themselves. Upon taking their position of attack they will advance under fire of the company in possession of the fort. Should the invaders force the defenders from their stronghold, they will take possession of the fortification and await a like attack from the company just driven out, which after scaling the fence behind the fort, will re-enter the field and strive to retake the stronghold. Should the invading army hold the invaders at bay, the prize will be theirs. Should the defenders retake the fort, however, the contest will be decided a draw.

Prominent militia men will referee the contest and award the winning company the beautiful cup, donated by Peter Graham, the Methuen blacksmith.

Both companies will arrive at the lake about 3:30 o'clock, where they will pitch their tents.

At 5 o'clock the competition drill will take place. This feature will give the onlooker an idea of what is expected of militia men and should prove spectacular as well as interesting.

After the drill the boys will return to their respective mess tents and partake of refreshments, prepared for them by the young ladies on the committee.

At 7 o'clock the battle begins and then a performance starts which not even Coney Island is capable of reproducing.

Superintendent Woodman of the Southern New Hampshire railroad has arranged for extra cars to accommodate the large crowd expected to attend the lawn party.

SCANDAL PROMISED

Lawyer McIntyre Threatens to Make Known Names

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The blithest session of the police court hearings of the charges brought by Mrs. Mary Nevins Bull against John A. Qualey and Harvey W. Corbett took place yesterday before Magistrate Krotel in the criminal courts building. John F. McIntyre, attorney for the two men accused by Mrs. Bull of getting $35,000 from her by false pretences, abandoned his former suavity and demanded technical proof of every link in the prosecution's chain. At one stage of the proceedings he shouted to Charles L. Craig, attorney for Mrs. Bull:

"If you keep dragging names in, I'll drag in some names. If there's going to be a scandal here, it's going to be a good big scandal. I have purposely kept certain names out of this case. I won't do it much longer. Now, you know what I mean. Be careful."

Mr. Craig smiled, but made no reply. Several new angles in the case which developed yesterday also served to keep the interest at fever heat. One of them was the appearance in the case of Mrs. Naomi Bolter, a private detective, who testified to transactions with Corbett. Mrs. Bolter was the object of a savage attack by Atty. McIntyre.

She testified that she went to see Corbett in the interests of ex-Judge Smith, late of Westchester county, who had a judgment against Qualey and wanted Mrs. Bolter to serve him with papers in supplementary proceedings.

WOMAN FOR A.O.H. WEEK

Committee to Confer With Board of Trade

Upon receipt of the communication of the board of trade, notifying the Central council of the A. O. H. of the appointment of a special committee to act with it in connection with the program of Hibernian week, the central body met in special session and appointed a sub-committee to confer with the board of trade committee tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the board of trade rooms. The A. O. H. committee consists of Humphrey O'Sullivan, Daniel E. Hogan, Michael McMillin, Patrick Connolly, John C. O'Rourke, James O'Sullivan, Hugh B. McQuade, John P. Sheehan, John Barrett, Robert J. Crowley, and John W. McElroy.

The board of trade committee is as follows:

Chairman, Harvey B. Greene, president of the board; secretary, John H. Murphy; Dr. T. E. Lamoureux, chairman of the school board; Walter Guyette; John A. Hunnewell, manager of the Lowell Electric Light Co.; Patrick O'Hearn; John C. Burke; Frederick A. Fisher; Daniel Carroll; Elisha J. Noale; Harry Dunlap; Henry L. Rourke; and Frank P. Putnam.

It is expected that this committee's work will be principally looking after and entertaining the distinguished visitors who are slated to come to this city.

Judging from the manner in which the decorations are being carried around town, there will be a general display of display throughout the city. The display to appear was on Hibernian hall in Merrimack square, which went up today.

The Wolf Tone Guards will meet tonight to receive final orders for the great parade.

Of the Rhode Island Assembly Convened Today

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 16.—The general assembly of the state convened today in a special adjourned session for the purpose of acting upon the report of the redistricting commission, enacting a corporation tax law and considering other legislative matters of importance. It is a rare occurrence for the assembly to meet at this season of the year and it was called in order that the next election might be along the lines laid out by the redistricting commission.

The session is expected to be a brief one, about two weeks, but the number of important matters which will come up for consideration promises to make it notable. In addition to the redistricting report it was announced that a special message would be submitted by the governor and that the body would also have to pass on the bill for the revision of the tax laws which includes a corporation tax bill and a bill for the creation of a state tax commissioner. Other legislation which may come before the assembly includes amendments to the egg lobster law which caused the withdrawal of several of the inland fisheries commissioners, appointment of new commissioners, appointment of a state harbor improvement committee to take charge of the expenditure of the $500,000 bond issue and a resolution for the relocating and repairing of the boundary stones between Rhode Island and Connecticut. The boundary marks between this state and Massachusetts have been relocated and put in good condition during the past year.

MAYOR GAYNOR IMPROVING

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Mayor Gaynor steadily continues along the path of recovery and when he awoke he seemed to be stronger and better than any time since he was shot a week ago today as he was about to sail for Europe. Dangers of an infection are almost past, although everything is in readiness should circumstances render an operation necessary. Mayor Gaynor is being kept very quiet and few visitors are permitted to see him. The wounded executive feels the heat, but otherwise seems not disturbed by his unfortunate situation.

Should no complications develop it is believed that Mayor Gaynor can be taken to the camp of a friend in the Adirondacks in about two weeks. The mayor's physicians stated at 6 o'clock that he had slept all during the night and was doing nicely this morning.

Two Sailors Then Went Out in Small Boat Again

GLOUCESTER, August 16.—The schooner Pauline, Capt. Nels Lawson, arrived here yesterday with two of the crew of the schooner Marcella, Thomas Hayes and Monte Colson. They shipped about five weeks ago, and when a week out, while hauling their trawls on the western banks, became separated from their vessel in a fog.

Their compass became unreliable, and they rowed for a day and night in the fog until they fell with the schooner Eglantine, on board which they stayed several days.

When the weather cleared and some vessels were despatched to anchor on the horizon, the men set out again to find their craft. Soon afterward a gale accompanied by a fog sprang up, and the two men again found themselves adrift. For 24 hours they were at the mercy of the wind and sea, but fortune was again with them, and they fell in with the schooner Pauline.

On getting over the rail the first person to assist Hayes to the vessel was his son, who was a member of the crew. Capt. Lawson took them on, and they finished the voyage with him.

The schooner Margaret, Capt. William Grady, which arrived yesterday with a ballast voyage to the Labrador waters, reports that on Aug. 1, while 20 miles east of Buenos Vista, on the northern coast of Newfoundland, he

POLICE SCORED

By Judge Mahoney of Lawrence

LAWRENCE, Aug. 15.—Jeremiah Keefe was sentenced to three months in the house of correction by Judge Mahoney yesterday for assault on Henry C. Magoon, a business man. The assault took place on Broadway, where repaving is being done.

Mr. Magoon had asked that obstructions be removed and when workmen failed to comply with his request he undertook to do the work himself Saturday, with the result that he was struck down and left unconscious. Sunday Keefe called at the police station and said he committed the assault.

Judge Mahoney remarked that the revelations showed a shockingly lax condition of affairs in the police department. "The assault was so brutal," said Judge Mahoney, "that every available man on the force should have been put to work and the defendant arrested within an hour."

HAVERHILL COUNCIL PLACES CENSOR ON THEM

HAVERHILL, Aug. 16.—The municipal council held a conference yesterday with the managers of the local theatres and moving-picture shows, after which it was decided to put under the censorship of the city marshal all moving pictures shown in this city.

The ministers' association and the federation of men's clubs urged the appointment of a board of censors, but the council decided the police should undertake the duty.

The marshal will instruct patrolmen to watch the theatres and report any objectionable features exhibited. The municipal council also changed the fees for licenses, charging theatres $50 per year and the moving-picture houses $25.

THE ALDERMEN

MADE NO ATTEMPT TO ELECT MAYOR

LAWRENCE, Aug. 16.—The board of aldermen held a short session last night, but no effort was made to bring about a joint convention for the election of a mayor to succeed William P. White, who resigned recently, after beginning his three-year sentence in the local jail. Acting Mayor Jordan presided.

Further developments are expected later in the week in the matter of securing a writ of mandamus asked for a week ago by the aldermen to compel Acting Mayor Jordan to call a joint convention.

A NOVEL AERIAL RACE

AMIENS, France, Aug. 16.—The first aerial race between the birds of nature and man's production took place in the course of the great cross country competition and was easily won by man. A flock of 47 carrier pigeons was released at Dousai yesterday at the same instant that Leblanc in his Farman biplane started from the mark on his fifty mile flight to Amiens.

When Leblanc reached Amiens the flock was not yet in sight, the first pigeon arriving six minutes and twenty seconds after Leblanc. Before the last of the flock had come in Legagneux who had started at the same time as Leblanc but consumed nine minutes more on the trip arrived and beat the last pigeon by twelve minutes.

Man Fell Down Flight of Stairs

Samuel Gorman, aged about 60 years, while passing through the hallway on the second floor of his house at 17 Ellis street, early this morning, made a mis-step and fell down the flight of stairs, sustaining a broken left arm. The ambulance was summoned and the injured man was taken to St. John's hospital.

MARRIAGE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Delorme celebrated the fifth anniversary of their marriage Saturday night at the home of Miss M. Costello in Cabot street. The happy couple received many of their friends during the evening and a literary and musical program was carried out. Dancing was enjoyed and refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Delorme were the recipients of many beautiful presents.

Dance, Vesper beachhouse, Wednesday evening.

HIS THROAT CUT

Griffin Was Searching For Restelli, Alleged Murderer

QUINCY, Aug. 16.—Griffin found dead this morning, throat cut, was the text of a message received here today by Chief of Police Burrell of Quincy and bearing the signature of Chief McEachern of North Sydney, C. Griffin, who is believed to belong in Lynn, conducted on his own account a search for Luigi Restelli, the Italian stone worker who killed two persons and wounded three others in this city nearly three weeks ago. Chief Burrell does not know whether the message intended to convey the idea of suicide or murder and is awaiting further advice. Griffin had sent several telegrams to Mayor Shea and Chief Burrell detailing various incidents of his pursuit of the person whom he suspected of being Restelli. He was also dissatisfied with the apparent inaction of the North Sydney police displayed in failing to apprehend the person whom he suspected of being the fugitive murderer. Finally, upon Griffin's representations, an Italian was detained by the North Sydney police. This man, however, did not answer the description of the fugitive and upon his proving that he came from Richmond, Ind. He was discharged from custody. Chief Burrell received another telegram this morning which was signed by a Boston man and stated "Restelli would reach Utica, N. Y. on a train arriving in that city at 10.10 today. Although the chief did not place any faith in the announcement nevertheless he arranged with the Utica police to have the train men and the passengers subjected to a close scrutiny.

DIAMOND NOTES

The Whalers again today. We crowded just a few inches near the first division yesterday.

Rain poured down in Merrimack Square as Lowell was finishing the sixth inning, but the juice didn't reach Spaulding park until the first of the ninth.

The umpire like that other devil, is entitled to his due and the fan with the fog-horn voice who kept yelling: "Lanigan, you're a rummy; Lanigan you're a drunk!" should have been ducked in the water barrel. Lanigan is a teetotaler. The sun or buttermilk, or even baldwin apples might have made his face red, but not the other stuff.

Oh, you George with the cut-drip. How the Southwark ballist did fall for them. Three of them turned in "concession" in the eighth, including Mr. McCrone whose bonnet at present is entertaining a major league bee, who made the only kick in the game.

McCrone should wear the O'Sullivan heel so that his foot will stick to the bag. But with all his faults there's no first baseman in the league that can get to a ground ball like Mac.

Cunningham played his usual artistic game at second. There was no gold brick concealed in the sale of Cunningham to the big league.

On the occasion of his previous appearance here Rising used language in addressing the three base bleachers which entitled him to a licking. But the fans were charitable and forgiving and when he made a great catch that robbed Cooney of a three-bagger the crowd gave him a good round of applause.

A telegram was received Sunday night by Pitcher McKie and Cutchler Boyle from Secretary Farrell of the national commission notifying them to report to New Bedford at once. Here's the situation in a nutshell. McKie and Boyle belonged to Birmingham, Ala., and were loaned to Kankakee, Ill. Kank went up the line and Tom Fleming, erstwhile manager of the Haverhill, secured them from the Kankakee management which had no right to dispose of them. As soon as Fleming got the pair to Haverhill, he negotiated with the Boston Nationals for the sale of McKie and Boyle and the deal is put through. Meanwhile Tom Dowd buys the pair from Birmingham. Then came the question as to where the Alabama Bobby and the Duffin Kid belonged. The big Moguls say New Bedford and that goes. Once more, also, poor Haverhill.

Lowell showed two fast double plays in yesterday's game though what possessed Ulrich to hunt with three on bases and only one out is a mystery. If the squeeze play was intended then McCormick who was on third was the goat for he failed to get a start.

That squeeze play by McGee and Finney was a dismal failure but thanks to Gary Wilson's bad throw, the end in view was reached.

LODGE'S AGENTS

Have Been Turned Down By Candidates

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge is meeting with considerable difficulty in securing pledges of support from republican candidates for the legislature throughout the state.

Despite the fact that he has been able to line up leaders like Speaker Joseph Walker, Representative "Bob" Washburn of Worcester, and Norman White of Brockton, who have shown themselves on many occasions to be independent of the machine, he is having his troubles with less conspicuous members who are seeking re-election. It was stated yesterday that the agents of the senior senator through the state have been able to secure few pledges for him and that most of the candidates for the house refuse to go on record. In the majority of cases, they decline to say whether they will vote for Senator Lodge, Congressman Butler Ames or somebody else.

Congressman Ames plans to make a sharp, short fight. According to the statement made by one of his political lieutenants, after looking the field over he came to the conclusion that it would cost at least $500,000 to put anti-Lodge candidates in the field in every representative and senatorial district in the state.

Despite the fact that Congressman Ames is many times a millionaire, he feels that on the financial end of a campaign he would have to play second with Senator Lodge.

A BLOODHOUND

Is Engaged in a Man Hunt

WHITE PLAINS, Aug. 16.—With the aid of a bloodhound a posse of Yorktown residents and the New York City watershed police yesterday captured an Italian, who is held there for examination on the charge of having assaulted Lillian Purdy, the 19 year old daughter of Elias O. Purdy, a well to do farmer, who recently sold his property to the state for the new Mohawk insane asylum.

On Saturday afternoon a man, believed to be an Italian, called at the Purdy homestead and when Miss Purdy went to the door he asked to see her father. She replied that he was not at home and the stranger went away. Later, when the girl went to the peach orchard, she was set upon and assaulted. When her father came home he found her lying on the ground bound and gagged.

The watershed police were notified and they put a bloodhound owned by Floyd White on the trail. With the aid of the dog an Italian was afterward found in the woods. His face was badly scratched. He was locked up on suspicion and as soon as the girl recovers sufficiently the prisoner will be brought before her for identification.

STOCK MARKET

WAS STRONG AT THE CLOSE TODAY

Related Advances Were Made in the Final Hour—Speculation Was Diversified and Stronger.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Opening prices in the stock market were slightly irregular, but the changes either way were unimportant, aside from the advance of a point in Anaconda and Colorado and Southern and a loss of as much in Canadian Pacific, U. P., Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Northern Pacific and St. Paul were among the representative stocks, which were slightly lower.

Confident buying of several specialties had a tonic effect on the whole list and there was a brisk rally in the western railroad stocks. After the list generally had sold a large fraction above yesterday's final price, the demand lessened and there was a later reaction of about a half in the standard stocks. American Beet Sugar fell back a point from its opening price on profit taking, but the pfd. moved up 2 1/2.

Other gains reached were 1 1/2 in Colorado and Central, 1 1/2 in Reading and American Ice. Missouri Pacific yielded a point, but afterwards made up its loss.

When buying orders for the active railroad stocks were distributed, the professionals took the long side of the market and began to buy for stocks.

Trading became broader and more active with the demand keen for some of the leaders.

Bull operators encountered no opposition in bidding up prices and on light dealings the list mounted again to about the high level of the first hour or above. An inquiry for U. S. Steel, Amal. Copper and American Smelting was a contributing feature to the market's strength. There was little interest manifested in the railroad list outside of Reading and U. P. The reawakened interest in various specialties which usually do not figure prominently in the market while attributed to pool operations has created a broader and more active market in stocks of this class for speculative ventures. Bonds were irregular.

A further outburst of strength placed practically every stock of consequence in a point or more above where it left off yesterday. The metal group made a particularly good showing and there was also heavy and continued buying of Reading, U. P. and other well known railroad stocks. Reading got up 2 1/2, Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting 2 1/2, U. P. and U. S. Steel, Atchafalpa, Chesapeake & Ohio and Bethlehem Steel 1 1/2, and the pfd. 3 1/2.

The market closed strong. Some belated advances were made in the final hour. Northern Pacific, Erie and various other stocks came to the front. Speculation in general was more diversified and stronger than for a long time and reflected a marked increase in outside interests in the market.

The Money Market

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Money on call easy, 1 1/4 to 1 3/4 per cent. Running rate 1 1/2; last loan, 1 3/4; closing bid, 1 1/4; offered at 1 1/4.

Time loans, dull; 60 days, 3 per cent. and 90 days, 3 1/2 per cent.; six months, 4 1/2 per cent.

Prime mercantile paper, 5 1/2 to 6 per cent. Sterling exchange firm, at 48.70 to 48.80 for 60 day bills and at 48.85 for demand. Commercial bills, 48 1/2 to 49. Bar silver 53 1/2. Mexican dollars 41. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds steady.

GENERAL LOCKOUT

Of 10,000 Bricklayers is Threatened in New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The first serious clash in many years between the bricklayers' unions in this city and the Mason Builders' association, with which these unions have had periodical contracts since 1885, was reported yesterday. Unless the local unions of the bricklayers today call off all strikes on the contracts in this city of Nesbitt & Co. members of the association, a general lockout of 10,000 bricklayers is expected.

Several conferences have taken place between the officers of the Mason Builders' association and the bricklayers' unions, but these strikes which arose out of trouble between the bricklayers and this firm in Newark, but the unions were obstinate. Then the association issued an ultimatum to the bricklayers' unions giving them until today to return the strikers, failing in which the present trade agreement between the association and the bricklayers will be declared at an end and the members of the association will be at liberty to employ any men they choose, which means a general lockout.

About two years ago the officers of the Bricklayers and Masons International union decided to take in a national union of plasterers and the organization became known as the Bricklayers and Plasterers International union. There is another union of plasterers which is allied in Newark with the other building trades, and when any plasterers from this union were employed the bricklayers struck. On the other hand if the plasterers allied with the bricklayers were put to work the other trades struck. Matters were in this situation when Nesbitt & Co. began work on some contracts in Newark.

The firm found it impossible to avoid strikes, and when the bricklayers struck because it employed plasterers in the union which was not allied with them, the men employed union and non-union men as they could get them. The international officers of the bricklayers then declared the firm to be unfair and strikes of the bricklayers were ordered on all its contracts in this city. At the conferences between the union and the representatives of the firm the latter would not go against the decision of the international officers of the union. If the bricklayers obey the ultimatum and return the strikers to work the firm will be suspended by the international union. On the other hand if the ultimatum is disregarded they will forfeit practically all they have gained in twenty-five years. Under the agreements with the Mason Builders' association, the wages of the bricklayers have been raised by de-

Have Been Taken to Omo Prison in Honduras

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 16.—A special judge of Trullie but whose sympathies from Spanish Honduras, under date of Aug. 10 says: "Advices" from Ceiba, Honduras, state: Several prisoners were brought in here from Armenia where a large number of Bonilla supporters gathered in last week to await General Lee Christ. mas. # GENEROUS OFFER

Is Made by a Lee Millionaire

LEE, Aug. 16.—Roderick B. Andrews, many times a millionaire, showed himself a philanthropist yesterday when he announced that for every dollar saved and placed in the bank by Lee boys he would add a similar amount to their account.

Mr. Andrews wants the boys to save their pennies instead of spending them on cheap picture shows and ice cream cones.

He authorizes the following offer: "If any boy of Lee, of good character, will earn $1 and deposit it in the Lee Savings bank, with the purpose of starting an account, I will put $1 with it. All accounts thus started must remain in the bank until the depositors are of age."

Made Fortune in Stocks

Mr. Andrews will deposit a sum of money this week as a guarantee of good faith.

In the panic of 1907 he made a for-

ture on stocks, buying them right and left when they were at the lowest point, holding them till they reached the top level and "unloading them." His pet stock was New York Central.

Only last spring Mr. Andrews announced he was willing to bet $10,000 that Mayor Gaynor of New York city would be the next president of the United States and he is of the same opinion today. He believes Mayor Gaynor has made a record in New York city, and, with the sympathy aroused by the attempt to assassinate him the other day, he will be the most popular democrat in the land when the national convention is held.

The Lee philanthropist is a self-made man and was once a poor boy in Baltimore. Dano Fortune smiled upon him and he entered business in Baltimore with successful results, until today he is ranked as many times a millionaire. He spends money lavishly upon the poor of the community.

SEARCH FOR MURDERER

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Posses of armed citizens are skirting the swamps near North Bergen, N. J., today searching for Bertrand Pond, who is wanted for the killing of Mrs. Mary Umschies in the presence of her six year old son. Pond killed the woman because she rejected his attentions.

THE BURKE FUND

HAS INCREASED TO THE SUM OF $7,000,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—It is more than eight years since John Masterson Burke, a wealthy but little known recluse, living at 18 West Forty-seventh street, announced a donation of $4,000,000 to found and endow a home for convalescents in or near Manhattan. The real estate and securities in which the money was invested enhanced in value and Mr. Burke during his lifetime made two other gifts. When he died on Dec. 2 last, at the age of 88 years, the Winifred Masterson Burke Foundation, as the endowment has been called, in memory of the founder's mother, was worth $5,000,000.

Mr. Burke left the greater part of his estate to the foundation. Relatives contested the will, but Surrogate Thomas decided last week that it was valid. Personal property worth $2,000,000, roughly speaking, thereby has been added to the foundation. The trustees have $7,000,000 with which to carry out Mr. Burke's purpose.

Nothing ever has been done toward building the home. The site has not even been selected. And there is little likelihood of any definite movement toward carrying out Mr. Burke's wishes being made in the immediate future.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

The attraction at the Lakeview theatre for the next two days is entitled "A Social Outlaw," a comedy drama in four acts, and the performance last night was attended by a good audience which showed its appreciation of the show. The leading part was taken by Mr. James Thatcher, and he took it in his usual strong manner, and was well supported by the rest of the company. Miss Florine Farr as "France" carried the part very well.

The play besides containing many strong dramatic incidents is full of humor, and furnishes no end of laughter.

"St. Elmo," the play which was presented here two weeks ago is to be given again the last three nights of this week, and should prove a drawing card. Upon its last performance here "St. Elmo" drew the largest house of any show this season. Next week comes the strongest bill of the season when the Wagenhals and Kemper company will present their special production of "Paid in Full." This is a genuine high priced company, and Lakeview performances are to be the initial presentations of the coming season.

BILLERICA

The selectmen of the town of Billerica gave a hearing last night on the petition of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company for the location of poles in the following thoroughfares: Billerica avenue between end of present Lowell Electric Light Corporation's line and driveway leading to town farm, nine poles; driveway between Billerica avenue and town farm; one pole; Delorey avenue between Chelmsford road and residence of F. F. Delorey; Billerica avenue between residence of D. J. Dewire and end of Lowell Electric Light Corporation's present line, 14 poles; one pair wire attachments each.

There were no remonstrants and the petitions were granted and signed by the selectmen.

A GOOD RULE TO FOLLOW

No doubt President Taft would be "delighted" if Mr. Ballinger should resign from the cabinet after the disclosures of the Pinchot hearing, but Ballinger may not resign, and Mr. Taft is too good-natured to apply the official boot where it is much needed. The president's weakness seems to be his desire to please everyone. This is a dangerous failing in a public man, for he who attempts to please everyone oftentimes succeeds in pleasing no one. If you have any important decisions to make, the best rule is to please yourself first, then if the rest of the world is satisfied, why well and good, and if no one else is satisfied you always have the consolation that one good man is satisfied at any rate.

NEED OF A WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

When a mill operative is mangled in a machine and sent to a hospital for treatment, what happens relative to his claim for damages?

The insurance companies that have by contract agreed to hold the corporation safe against all claims for damages send their doctors to examine the man with a view to minimize his injuries and their agents to look up every bit of evidence to prove that the accident was due to the victim's own carelessness.

They can go further and influence witnesses in favor of the injured man not to testify. This can be done through the employing company which can discharge any employee who appears as a witness against it in a case of damages, for the insurance company usually remains in the background while the corporation is made the defendant in the suit for damages.

All this is done while the mangled operative is in the hospital, it may be, hovering between life and death with no thought of possible litigation after his recovery or after his death if that be the outcome.

Assuming that he recovers but is disabled for life through no fault of his own, what redress does the employers' liability act furnish? None at all without a long legal battle in which he, a poor man, penniless and inexperienced in such matters, has to fight a large and wealthy corporation backed by insurance companies whose aim is to deny the justice of his claims and to defeat him if possible in the courts.

If he wins a verdict it is paid only after appeals to the supreme court or repeated trials that eat up the greater part if not all of the amount. Sometimes the verdict is not sufficient to meet the legal expenses and in the majority of cases there is a verdict for the defendant even when the claim for damages is one that should be sustained. But the plaintiff in such a case has not the experience, the legal resources or the other advantages possessed by the defense and hence, although his claim may be good, the chances of success are against him.

What is the remedy against this injustice to the injured operative?

It is a law known as the workmen's compensation act, such as has been adopted in twenty-two other countries and which gives entire satisfaction to all the parties concerned.

The agitation for a workmen's compensation act in this state dates back to 1903 when Governor Bates appointed a commission to consider the relations between employer and employee. That commission with other very excellent recommendations, reported in favor of a workmen's compensation act and submitted a draft of a bill for enactment by the legislature. That bill we are glad to say, was drawn by a Lowell man, William N. Osgood, and it has been before every legislature since that year in practically the same form as then reported.

At first, the interested insurance companies, the public service corporations and even the labor organizations regarded it as a menace. These interests packed the hearings in opposition to the measure and the voices raised in its favor were drowned in the storm of opposition. As the question was discussed, however, and as the injustice to the injured operative was exposed, public opinion became aroused and sentiment in regard to the question underwent a radical change.

This change was emphasized by the endorsement of ex-President Roosevelt, prominent labor leaders and others of national repute and by the declaration of Speaker Walker of the Massachusetts legislature after the hearing last year that this was the most important subject which had been before the legislature during the last session.

Even the insurance companies and the public service corporations are beginning to see the change in the public mind on this question and to prepare for the inevitable. The Boston Elevated Railway Co. is said to have sent attorneys to investigate the workings of the law in England and Germany, where it has been in operation for many years. The other countries in which the law is in force are: Austria, Belgium, British Columbia, Cape of Good Hope, Denmark, Finland, France, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Queensland, Russia, South Australia, Spain, Sweden and Western Australia.

What are some of the arguments in favor of such a law?

The first and most important is that a combination of liability insurance companies and employing corporations has practically nullified the protective benefits that the injured workman should derive from the employers' liability law.

During the past dozen years the employers' liability insurance companies in the United States collected about $100,000,000 of which 70 per cent was spent in expenses leaving but 30 per cent to meet damage claims. Of this amount the proportion that actually found its way into the pockets of the injured was probably less than one-half, or 15 per cent of the whole.

What are the results under the workmen's compensation act?

Only 16 per cent of the money paid out is consumed in expenses and 90 per cent goes to the injured workmen.

The workmen's compensation act provides a fixed sum as compensation for the loss of an eye, a hand, an arm and so on whether through the carelessness of the injured or somebody else. The money is to be paid over without any litigation except where there is reason to believe that the claim is fraudulent. Not only is this immeasurably better for the injured workman but for the state, for the court dockets are crowded with actions of tort which are to be contested at great length, thus involving great expense to the county. The aim of the compensation act is to give practically all the money paid out for damages or damage insurance to the injured workmen. The long and tedious litigation by which just claims have often been defeated will be eliminated and justice will be done where now the highest injustice is wrought through a misapplication of the present law and the abuse of the courts of justice.

It is time the laboring people should wake up to their own interests on this matter. There will probably be hearings on this issue in different parts of the state, under the direction of the recess committee to which it was referred. Those hearings should be well attended and as the author of the bill is a Lowell man, our city should take a special interest in urging the enactment of the measure and thus securing fair treatment for the injured workmen instead of leaving them to fight a hopeless legal battle in which even a liberal verdict is eaten up in expenses.

SEEN AND HEARD

Mark Twain, as an example of unconscious humor, used to quote a Hartford woman who said one day in the late spring:

"My husband is the dearest fellow. 'Jim,' I said to him this morning, 'are you very hard up now?'"

"I certainly am hard up," he replied, soberly. "This high cost of living is terrible. I don't know what I'm going to do."

"Then, Jim," said I, "I'll give up all thought of going to the country for July and August this year."

"But the dear fellow's face changed and he said:

"Indeed, then you won't, darling. I thought you wanted to buy a hat with an aigrette or some such foolishness. No, no, my darling—Jim said, always and the money to let his dear little wife go to the country." Hurrah! hurrah!

One of the most remarkable creatures known to natural history is the bowerbird, which builds a miniature cabin made of small sticks and surrounds it with a perfectly-kept ring of flowers, composed of twigs and moss, studded with brilliantly colored flowers, fruits and insects. As the curious ornaments become faded they are constantly replaced by fresh ones, so that scientists are inclined to credit the bird with the possession of the artistic sense. In these decorated playgrounds the males meet and pay their court to the female, the bower being used purely for purposes of recreation and not as a nesting-place. These birds are chiefly found in the Owen Stanley Range of British New Guinea.—Wide World Magazine.

A MUSICAL SURFEIT

At first it's "Comin' Thru the Rye," then "Cento Dime," smites the ear. At Wagner's "Evening Star" I sigh. His "Pride Song" puts me out of gear. The "Ach, mein Sohn" of Meyerbeer. Six times repeated makes me moan. It's getting so I really fear. My neighbor's busy gramophone.

Thrice daily comes "Die Lorelei." Twice down Her Check a Pearly Tear.

And fifty times a week "Good-By." To madness drives me very near. "The Flower Song" I once held dear. But now my love for it is down. Into the sea I'd like to steer. My neighbor's busy gramophone.

I hate "Brunnhilde's Battle Cry." The "Jewel Song" is getting drear. When I get "Madam Butterfly." In wholesome doses it is clear. There's no sorrow for my fellow queer. There is no sorrow like my own. And, oh, it does no good to jeer. My neighbor's busy gramophone.

St. Peter bid me be of cheer. When I draw nigh unto the throne. Tell me I'll not be forced to hear. My neighbor's busy gramophone! —Nathan M. Levy, in N. Y. Sun.

I've looked, but I've failed of discerning a picture of Poe in a frame, which I think is a rickety sham. Oh, tell me, thou highbrow of learning, why his picture is not in a frame?" The highbrow, he coughed and he stuttered and wiped off some sweat from his can; "the fellow you mention," he muttered, "was doubtless a poetry fan, he sure was no slouch of a few helms barred from this temple, and shattered, for he was a disolute man, and given to rushing the can; we have to be careful," he spluttered, "and place on the rounds a ban; we know where our biscuits are buttered, and stick to a high moral plan." Then he hung on the wall an engraving of Julius Terwilliger Saged, who's written some neat bits of raving that none in his senses would read; who's written some flimsy bits of raving, that only the pipe-dreamers read. "His verse," said the highbrow, "on shaving, was moral and helpful indeed! And all through his life his behaving was chaste as his uplifting screed!"—Walt Mason in Philadelphia Bulletin.

SECRETARY SHIPP

TALKS OF THE COMING CONSERVATION CONGRESS

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 16.—"I know of no public question that could bring so many representative men together in a convention as that of conservation," said Thomas R. Shipp, secretary, in speaking of the coming congress to be held in St. Paul, September 5, 6, 7, 8, 9.

"A glance at the list of speakers is sufficient to show that the country's best men are behind this movement and I have no doubt the second congress is going to set a pace that will be hard to follow in future."

The list of speakers to which Secretary Shipp referred includes such names as William H. Taft, president of the United States; Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States; Clifford Pinchot, Senators Beveridge, Dooliver and Nelson, and such representative men as James J. Hill, Wallace D. Simmons and James R. Garfield.

There has been a lot of talk about politics coming into the congress. That there will be in St. Paul at that time members of the United States senate, members of the house, governors of many states and mayors of many cities, is sufficient cause to say that there will be some political pow wows on the side, but it is the intention of the officers of the congress to keep politics out of the proceedings as far as possible.

"Insurance is pretty well represented on the program with Pinchot, Garfield and Senators Beveridge and Dooliver as speakers. This in itself is a refutation of the statements that have been made concerning President Taft's connection with the program. It was said that the president insisted upon certain changes being made before he would agree to speak."

When Governor Eberhart returned to St. Paul after heading the committee which visited the president at Beverly and tendered the invitation, he said the president did not even ask to see the program and made no suggestions whatever concerning it.

The program will not be given out for a few days but it is known that Senator Dooliver will talk on "Cattle, Food and Leather." Such a subject naturally gives the senator a chance to say something on the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, but it is said on good authority that he will not take the opportunity of doing so. The big fight made by Senator Dooliver on the tariff bill was chiefly in connection with the hide and leather schedules. However, it is believed the senator will insert enough ginger into his speech to make it interesting.

"The Natural Resources Belong to the People," is the subject to be discussed by James R. Garfield, former secretary of the interior. Mr. Garfield is prepared, according to reports received in St. Paul, to handle this subject in a way to make it interesting.

Francis J. Honey, who fought the land frauds in the west is going to talk about "Safekeeping the Public Domain." It is doubtful if a person more competent to handle such a subject could be found.

The subject given to James J. Hill, chairman of the Great Northern board, is "Soils, Crops, Food and Clothing." Mr. Hill long has given much thought to the fertilization of soils and he has been helping the farmer in this respect for years.

Thomas L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, the greatest labor union in the United States, is going to talk on the subject, "Are We Mining Intelligently?" It is not known what the subject of Mr.

Pinchot's address will be. Pinchot, Beveridge and Chandler have not said on what subjects they will talk. Other speakers besides the president and former president are:

Governor Eberhart, Minnesota; Governor Stubbs, Kansas; Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporations; Senator Joseph M. Dixon, Montana; Arthur Radcliffe Dugmore, author, artist, writer on nature subjects and an expert on bird life; Walter H. Page, editor, The World's Work; Governor Herbert S. Hadley, Missouri; Alfred L. Baker, president of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce; Henry Wallace, expert on farming and country life; Des Moines, Iowa; Frank M. Chapman, curator American Museum of Natural History; Senator Moses E. Clark, Minnesota; Prof. Henry S. Gantt, United States forester; John Barrett, director, Bureau of American Republics; Dr. W. J. McGee, bureau of soils, Department of Agriculture; Dr. Francis E. McVey, president, University of South Dakota; Capt. J. B. White, chairman of the executive committee, National Conservation Congress; George C. Pardee, Harvard university; George C. Pardee, former governor of California; Newton C. Blanchard, Louisiana; Wallace D. Simmons, Simmons Hardware company, St. Louis; Judge Ben B. Lindsey, Denver, Col.; F. F. Westbrook, Minneapolis; and Miss Mabel Boardman, president of the Red Cross society.

WORTH $1,500,000

a Valuable Cargo

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Laden with the most valuable cargo brought to Boston for months, the British tramp steamer Atholl of Leith, Capt. S. L. Saxby, came in yesterday from oriental ports. She docked at pier 45, Mystic wharf.

There were curious plenty on board the steamer. For ten minutes before the Atholl docked two rival boatmen, who were in rowboats at the steamer's bow, engaged in a wordy battle as to who should get the job of running the lines. Above the noise they created could be heard the sweet notes of a Chinese mocking bird which was hung in a cage to the forward deck. The bird is of a very rare species and is valued at about $100.

In six heavily strapped boxes carried on the bridge deck were half a dozen monster pythons, measuring from 15 to 25 feet in length. The pythons were purchased at Singapore by the officers. They are well behaved reptiles and remained snugly in their cases during the long passage. A bucket full of water doused over each python every morning was all they received in the way of sustenance, but before they were taken on board they each had a feast of several rabbits, enough to last them for two months.

At Suez the Atholl took on 12 tons of Egyptian antiquities for the Metropolitan museum, New York. They were 62 pieces of these antiquities, and the collection includes some of the most valuable excavations from the buried temples and tombs in Egypt.

The Atholl came from Yokohama, Kobe, Moji, Shanghai, Hongkong, Singapore and Penang, picking up cargo at each port. Then she stopped at Suez, Port Said and Algiers. In the Atlantic the weather was favorable with the exception of a head current nearly all the way.

The steamer bought in 8400 tons of cargo, including 12,393 ingots and pieces of copper, loaded at Yokohama; immense quantities of tea skins, wool, spices, curios, pepper, lototom, tin, gambler, straw matting, human hair, bamboos, tiger and leopard skins, bristles, camphor, bean oil, toys, vegetable wax, rare porcelain, etc. The estimated value of the ship's cargo is $1,500,000.

The Atholl's crew of 36 Chinamen and they will be watched day and night to prevent any of them deserting while the vessel is in port.

PRESIDENT TAFT

SENDS A LETTER TO GOVERNOR EBERHART

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 16.—President Taft's interest in the second national conservation congress to be held in St. Paul, Sept. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, is shown in a letter to Gov. Eberhart of Minnesota.

The letter from the president, which follows, is used as the basis of letters to the governors who have given excuses for not attending the congress, urging them to reconsider the matter and come to St. Paul.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 6.

Hon. A. O. Eberhart, Governor of Minnesota, St. Paul.

"Dear Governor: I acknowledge your letter of the 2nd, written from Boston, in which you request me to issue an invitation to the governors of all the states to visit the conservation congress. I feel that I ought not to issue such an invitation since that matter is entirely in the hands of Mr. Baker, Mr. White and myself, and should remain there; but I am glad to say to you that it is my sincere hope that the governors of the various states, by their attendance at the congress, will express the interest which I know they all feel in securing a full and valuable discussion of this great problem, which so much interests every American.

"William H. Taft."

It is believed in St. Paul that this letter from the president will be the means of bringing more governors to the congress than otherwise would be expected. It is recognized here that the time is not really the best for some of the governors. There are hot campaigns in some of the states and several of the governors are candidates for re-election. However, the president's letter is expected to show just where he stands on the conservation question and since he has agreed to come himself and urges the governors to do the same, there no doubt will be a larger attendance of state executives than has been expected.

Monday, Sept. 5, is to be President's and Governor's day at the congress and former President Roosevelt has expressed the wish that it will be the big day. The address of the president and the meeting of the governors are the only things on the program for that day. The governors will talk on a subject of the conservation congress that suits them and the states they represent and much of value is expected to come from these speeches.

TARIFF AND TRUSTS

Are Blamed for the High Cost of Living

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The tariff of trade, the wholesale grocers, lumber dealers—associations that have contributed largely to the advance in prices and the frauds perpetrated by manufacturers of certain goods in reducing the weight of contents of packages from 20 to 50 per cent. and maintaining the same prices.

"The methods of the meat trust," they declare, "seem to be admirably adapted to taking from the consumer and the producer the largest amount that the traffic will bear. Their destruction of local competitors cannot be improved upon." As what they call a "sample of the working of our combined," they say that "while everywhere else in the world the price of harvesting machinery has been appreciably reduced since 1900, in the United States it has been materially increased. The increase," they add, "started nearly contemporaneously with the Dingley tariff."

As to wages, they say that "the fear that wages would fall if the tariff were removed, and the fall in prices would not be a clear gain to the consumer, is not warranted by the experience of Great Britain. Great Britain is a free-trade nation, and it is the most prosperous nation in the world except our own. Shocks of emigrants from the tariff-ridden nations of France, Germany, Italy and Russia go to England to work. But Englishmen do not emigrate to those countries because the standard of living is lower. The general testimony is that the rate of wages for all mechanical trades is substantially higher in Great Britain than in those protectionist countries, while the prices of necessities are lower, leaving the Englishman a wider margin to live upon."

"It is about sixty years since Great Britain adopted free trade, and during that time, according to a table published in Whitaker's Almanac, wages have increased 31.7 per cent and prices only 3 per cent. It is, therefore, well seen that the abolition of the tariff in England did not bring down the rate of wages. Neither would it in this country. If we remove the obstruction, allowing prices to sink to their natural level, the question of wages may be trusted to take care of itself."

Replying to the majority's statement, in its report, that an "increased demand for farm products is a cause of advancing prices, the minority cites the wheat crop as having increased from less than 7 bushels per capita in 1900, to more than 8 in 1909; corn from 27 to 30 bushels per capita; and potatoes from almost 3 to more than 4 bushels. Notwithstanding the increase in the price of farm products, the farmer, they say, "has reaped a small net return on his labor and investment by reason of the increased cost of the articles necessary for him to purchase to carry on his business."

"It is scarcely necessary," they add, "to mention the iniquitous woolsen schedule—where the tariff rates are so high on those necessities of our people as to practically preclude any foreign competition with the American manufacturer, except on high-priced goods purchased by the wealthier consumer, who can, to some extent, disregard price."

Taking up the subject of trusts, combinations, and monopolies, they declare that "there are few trusts that could survive a revenue tariff. They flourish only under the shadow of high protective walls. Standing behind those walls that shut off foreign competition and destroying domestic competition by consolidations and absorptions, they are limited only in selling at a fraction less than the foreign price plus the protective duty. That they reduce cost of production seems certain, but it is in rare cases that the public or the laborers employed by them participate in the enlarged profit. So enormous have been their profits that we and our organizations springing up over the country, like the Dingley board

"Frontier Days" at Cheyenne a Feature of His Coming Tours

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

ON June 18 New York, with the territory tributary to and adjoining the metropolis and a scattering representation of the remainder of the country, had its opportunity of greeting Teddy. Now comes the turn of the west and the south in the order given. The states west of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio could not go to Oyster Bay to tell the colonel how highly they esteem him, so he is going to swing around the circle to receive their homage, we almost said, but we shall change it to greetings. There will be great doings in many places when the ex-president arrives, but the citizens of Cheyenne, Chicago, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Atlanta and the other cities are not going to make all of the noise. No, indeed. Not by any means. The colonel is going to express a few views himself on the conservation of the country's natural resources and other timely topics.

Cheyenne is the place in which the folk come in the greatest peril of serious fracture. About the time Roosevelt rides into the lively Wyoming city there will be a "Frontier

Days" celebration going on in full blast. The arrival of Roosevelt will send the enthusiasm way up to the top of the tube. Wyoming looks upon Roosevelt as a sort of straying neighbor, anyway, although it is quite a spell since he left his ranch in North Dakota, a nearby state, to follow the paths of fame in the east. The "Old" West Will Be on View. With the end in view of entertaining the colonel and incidentally many thousands of other visitors, the western states have been secured for the best remaining specimens of horse and man, with their accoutrements, to illustrate the life that has passed away in many places and is rapidly departing from the others. The spread of the modern improvements in life and the changes in the utilization of the soil have forced the cattleman more and more into changed ways of living. He continues to exist, of course, else he and the rest of us would have to abstain from beef, but his immense ranches are being cut up and the old time picturesqueness is being eliminated. Sheepman and farmer are crowding him hard, especially since the government forbade the fencing of its land. The steady flow of the irrigation idea over the west and the introduction of the so called "dry" farming and other improved methods of cultivation of the soil have supplanted corn and alfalfa for the long and short grass on which the great herds formerly subsisted. The result has been a gain in net wealth for the west, but a loss in picturesqueness. For instance, the committee in charge of the Cheyenne celebration, which is an annual affair, finds it increasingly difficult to obtain the bucking bronchos to figure in the "bucking" contests. Except in a few localities near Cheyenne the famous wiry broncho, with his hard mouth, his restless, nervous energy and his irresistible propensity to buck and rear and throw his would be rider, seems to be nearly extinct. For this year's celebration, the greatest planned in the fourteen years of "Frontier Days" existence, the whole west and the Hawaiian islands have been searched for the best riders, broncho busters and steer ropers in the world. The cowboys will risk their lives in contests with horses which have run wild over the plains. Some of these beasts have never known the feel of the halter and will resent in fierce fashion the efforts to subdue them. The first prize in the broncho busting contests will be a saddle worth $500, offered by the Union Pacific railroad.

The Cheyenne folks profess a great contempt for the so called "wild west" shows. They declare that their celebration is the only "real thing" of the sort offered to the American public. Indians at the Big Show.

To easterners one of the most interesting features of the celebration will be the gathering of the Indians. They will be there with their squaws, their papooses and their tepees and will take part in the stage hopdod, riding contests, war dances, wild horse races, cow pony races, potato races, etc., that will help to make up the show.

A forecast of the celebration reads: "Wyoming is already making great plans for 'Frontier Days' celebration. To this every ranch and camp in the wide and happy state empties its strong men, its crack riders, its gam-

est ponies, its testiest cattle—for the big show that is the last word the west of yesterday speaks to the people and world of today.

"When the curtain goes up on this show men and women from Missouri give a hand wave to others from Montana and California, from Nebraska and Kansas, Colorado and Utah. A regular whoop it up western hand wave it is, that gets one as near the brotherhood of man idea as one is likely to be for many a day in these 'me for the individual life' times."

With Roosevelt as an added attraction of course the celebration will draw visitors to Cheyenne from all over the country, as well as the ranchmen and their families. The railroads have made great preparations to handle the crowds. "Frontier Days" will be on for four days, from Aug. 24 to Aug. 27 inclusive. The last two will be "Roosevelt days."

Great Doings Are Predicted.

Just listen to a newspaper man's predictions of the doings that will enliven the visit of the former president and ranchman to the Wyoming capital. Isn't he delightfully enthusiastic? "Doings! There'll be doings every moment of the six days, doings that'll efface all memory of jungle roars, of temple bells, of languid tropics and the blare of musketry from the mind of Roosevelt—and then more doings. For Roosevelt will be as the heat to fire, as the light to the flame, as the sting to the winds that come romping off the hills to give him greeting. The great rough rider is the ideal of every western ranch rider, every man who loves the bronchos. And these same rough, hearty spirits of the west are the Roosevelt ideals of manhood. What a glad, noisy, grand reunion it will be when they get together in Cheyenne and Denver!"

In common with the rest of the west, Cheyenne deprecates the passing of the "old west," with its picturesqueness and romance. That does not prevent Cheyenne, however, from taking advantage of modern conditions in adding attractions to its "Frontier Days" celebration. While the chauffeur will not share equally with the cowboy and the broncho buster and the pony express rider in the honors of the great blow out, he will have a place just before the formal opening of the show. On Aug. 23 there will be at Cheyenne fast automobile races on one of the fastest tracks in the world.

Two Roosevelt Tours.

While Mr. Roosevelt has expressed his joy over his ability to accept Cheyenne's invitation for a two days' visit during the frontier celebration, it will be, after all, only one incident of a long and busy trip. He will leave Oyster Bay in time to get to Cheyenne Aug. 24. From Cheyenne he goes to Denver, then, in the order given, to Cheyenne, Kan. (where he will speak on John Brown), Omaha, Sioux Falls, Fargo, St. Paul, Milwaukee, Freeport, Ill.; Chicago and Pittsburgh.

After a three weeks' rest Mr. Roosevelt will set off on another tour, this time of the south. His first important stop will be made at Atlanta, Ga., on Oct. 8, a day set aside for the honoring of the memory of Joel Chandler Harris, the famous author, who was a personal friend of the former president. Mr. Roosevelt is an ardent admirer of the Georgian's work and will take occasion to extol him on "Uncle Remus day." St. Louis, Hot Springs, Ark., and Peoria, Ill., are among the other stops on Colonel Roosevelt's second tour.

At each of his stopping places Mr. Roosevelt will make a speech. He will not eschew politics, but will deliver his opinions, in his own vigorous fashion, on the issues of the day.

Kansas Honors For "Brown of Osawatimie"

Perish with him the folly that seeks through evil good!
Long live the generous purpose unstained with human blood!
Not the raid of midnight terror, but the thought which underlies;
Not the borderer's pride of daring, but the Christian's sacrifice.

WHEN the throngs assembled at Osawatimie, Kan., in the closing days of the current month to listen to an address on "old John Brown of Osawatimie" by Theodore Roosevelt they will hear him express his opinion on a topic of the controversial sort in which he takes most delight. The occasion will be the turning over to the state of Kansas for a public park of the famous battleground whereon Brown and his comrades fought fifty-four years ago. Osawatimie has set itself with gladness of heart and pride of spirit to the task of entertaining Colonel Roosevelt and thousands of other guests. Kansas in general and Osawatimie in particular are immensely proud of the fact that their invitation to Roosevelt was one of the first—if not the very first—which the colonel accepted after his arrival in Europe from his African hunt. So Osawatimie will have the double joy of remembering the dead man to whom it owes the widespread knowledge of its own name and of honoring the living man. The task of relating something of the deeds of John Brown is not one to be approached with lightness of heart, even by Roosevelt. Although half a century, plus almost another year, has passed since he expiated on the scaffold his offense of seizing United States property at Harper's Ferry and thus declaring war with a small band of followers on thirty millions of people, historians are still divided in their judgment of him and his acts. "The men of the time called him hero, madman and almost everything between. It remained for an intelligent and highly trained historian, not of southern blood, a full generation after the fact, when unmoved by the passions of the civil war period, to class him as a common criminal," says one of the most recent of Brown's biographers. He adds: "That judgment of John Brown is perhaps further from the truth than any opinion entertained of him fifty years ago by intelligent and educated men of whatever political faith. Brown was an anarchist toward a single group of unjust human laws because he felt so acutely their conflict with what he deemed divine law. This attitude toward statutes and constitutional compromises led him into acts, vain if you will and those of a monomaniac, but not those of a common criminal." The battle of Osawatimie, to be commemorated by the Roosevelt address and the erection of a new state park, was one of the most striking incidents in the western career of John Brown before he turned his attention, with fatal results, to the eastern states. As the inscription on the battlefield monument his sons, pitted against a force of 400 Missourians who opposed the field, but Brown withdrew in victory. The biographers of Brown unite in depicting his early life. His roving disposition and frequent change of occupation lead color to the charges of shiftlessness and improvidence. His obsession by the anti-slavery idea is variously termed fanaticism and righteous indignation. Whatever the view that may be taken of it, there is no doubt that he devoted to it wholeheartedly himself and his large family. "History can hardly parallel so large a family's unanimity of self sacrifice for a social ideal, in whose behalf they stinted themselves ungrudgingly," says a recent writer. It was, of course, Brown's strong personality and the vigor with which he pursued the abolitionist ideal that led to the devotion to his cause of his wife and his twelve sons. John Brown was born in Torrington, Conn., of good Puritan stock May 9, 1800. His grandfather was a captain in the Revolution. His father was known as an opponent of slavery. After following various occupations, marrying and begetting a large family John Brown, in 1848, bought a farm at North Elba, N. Y., where he is buried. He wandered over New York, Ohio, Connecticut and other states, everywhere participating actively in the anti-slavery cause. The settling of five of his sons in Kansas and their identification with the free soil cause drew him to that state. His career in Kansas gave him national prominence, and his visionary scheme of establishing in the Maryland or Virginia mountains a refuge for escaped slaves led to the battle at Harper's Ferry and the final tragedy at Charleston, Va. (now West Virginia), Dec. 2, 1859. ARNOLD M'ADAM.

free soil ideas of the settlers from eastern states. Eulogists and censors of Brown unite in praise of his physical hardihood on this and other occasions. The action at Osawatimie is sometimes compared with the historic battle at Thermopylae between Leonidas and his 300 Spartans and the Persians. There is this difference—the body of Leonidas was left on the

Hetty Green's Son Called to Her Assistance

NEW YORK'S gain is Texas' loss. That's the way Texas looks at the removal of Edward Howland Robinson Green from Terrell, Tex., to the nation's metropolis. How New York looks at it is not yet recorded. There are more millionaires and railroad presidents in New York city than there are in Texas, and the addition of one did not make much of a splash in the New York puddle—that is, speaking figuratively. Literally considered, if Edward and other names Green fell into either of New York's two rivers he'd make considerable of a splash. He is more than six feet tall and weighs in the neighborhood of 300 pounds.

It isn't in size merely that the only son of Hetty Green is a big man. He has gone to New York to take on his broad shoulders some of the financial burdens of his aging mother, the wealthy Mrs. Hetty Green, but the men who know him say that he is mentally as well as physically qualified to assume the responsibility. Texas has had him seventeen years, and now Mrs. Green thinks that it is her turn. Her astute brain is beginning to feel the strain of decades of the very shrewdest sort of financial manipulation. In seeking a staff whereon to rest in her declining years she naturally turned to her only son. She is seventy-five years old. Mrs. Green's fortune was estimated recently at $70,000,000. Many persons believe it is much more than that.

Reverting to our first statement, about the acquisition of Edward H. R. Green by New York being considered a loss by Texas: Ever since the time, seventeen years ago, when Hetty Green sent her boy Eddie to Texas to look after her interests in the big state he has made it a point to cultivate intimate relationships with the Texans. Throughout the state he is known as Ed Green. He does not resent the familiar appellation—far from it. In Texas "hadi fellow well met" is synonymous with Ed Green.

That is, in social and political relationships. When you get on the practical side of the line that separates the social Ed Green from the business man, railroad president, ranch owner, real estate promoter, etc., you meet a totally different man. He shucks off the appellation Ed Green then and becomes Edward H. R. Green, president of the Texas Midland railroad, son of the famous woman financier and himself a financier with the ability to give points in the game to all but the very leaders of the profession.

In this Mr. Green is only showing the workings of the laws of heredity. For four or five generations the Greens on his father's side and the Robinsons on his mother's—especially the latter—have been moneyed folks, with the inclination and the ability not only to hold on to their money, but to make it increase exceedingly. Hetty Green herself is the fine flower of this family tree, but her son is only a little, if any, inferior to her in the money getting and money keeping line. He is a bachelor, forty-two years old.

There is good American blood in Hetty Green, her son and her only daughter, Sylvia, married a few years ago to Matthew A. Wilks. In an interview Hetty Green once repudiated with indignation some of the newspaper stories attributing lowly origin to her. "The Robinsons are as good as any family in America," she said, "and the Greens are equally good. Go to the little cemetery on the hill back of the old town of Plymouth, the old-ville introduced into Texas and the first steam yacht owned on its gulf coast. His little railroad has the very latest and most expensive forms of equipment and with a wireless telegraph system in the devising of which its president took a leading part.

Mr. Green is keenly interested in various forms of sport, despite the lameness with which he has been afflicted since his boyhood. Among the forms which the liking takes is that of devotion to baseball and the capture of the tarpon, the giant fish of the east white men's cemetery in America, and you will find there among the graves some of the stones of my ancestors. You will find them among the oldest stones too."

Getting back to modern times in this tale of the Greens, let us say that, while Hetty Green's son resembles her in financial ability, shrewdness and "closeness" so far as business is concerned, he does not resemble her in what might be termed more personal characteristics. In Chicago and in New York, where he lived before his twenty-fifth year, when he removed to Texas, he had the reputation of being a free spender for anything he really wanted. He owned the first automo-

gulf coast. He is an adept at landing this monster. Much has been written about Mr. Green's political activities. For years he was one of the most prominent figures in the Republican politics of Texas and once received the compliment of a nomination for governor. It was loudly proclaimed that Hetty Green would spend a big share of her millions for the sake of seeing her son elected. But Hetty Green is a shrewd woman—a very shrewd woman—too clever to believe that the expenditure of any amount of money would insure the election of a Republican to the gubernatorial chair at Austin. ## Young Soldiers Cheered as They Boarded the Cars

No happier regiment of soldiers ever left Lowell than were the O. M. I. Cadets when they boarded special cars at 1.15 this afternoon, bound for Milligan's grove between Tewksbury and Wilmington, to enter on their annual tour of camp duty. The cadets with full ranks left their armory in the immaculate Conception school and marched to the cars amid the cheers of their parents and people of the parish. The boys reached the grounds at 1.45 and immediately were assigned to their quarters. Accompanying them were Rev. Dennis A. Sullivan, O. M. I. chaplain, Lieut. Bernard McArdle and Police Officer Matthew McCann, who is athletic instructor of the boys. The tents are pitched in a pine grove and are ideally located. When all had been assigned to quarters they were called to the drill field by Lieut. McArdle and dress parade was in order.

JAMES T. BOYLE Made Stubborn Fight Against Arrest

James T. Boyle started a roughhouse exhibition in the saloon of the Belvidere hotel in Prescott street yesterday afternoon and later had a "run" with the police. He gave the police a battle before he was subdued and landed at the police station. He was badly hampered before he ceased to fight.

In police court this morning he was charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on John J. Brennan, a clerk at the hotel. Through his counsel, Joseph F. Loughran, he entered a plea of not guilty and a continuance till Thursday was asked for and granted by the court. He was held under $300 bonds on the assault charge and $100 for drunkenness, his personal recognizance being taken for the latter bond.

According to the police, Boyle entered the hotel bar and got into an argument with Mr. Brennan over the head. He then ran out and made his way through Middle street. At about the same time Joseph L. Considine, one of the recently appointed superintendents of the police, in citizen's clothes, was passing through Middle street and noting the condition of Boyle's head, he questioned him as to where he had been. He said that he had been assaulted by a man and was running away from him. This story did not go with the officer, however, and he asked Boyle to accompany him to where the alleged assailant was.

Considine and Boyle walked side by side through Middle street until they came to the alleyway near the Talbot Chemical Co.'s works. When Boyle struck the officer and started through the alley. Considine started after his man and soon succeeded in catching up to him and after considerable difficulty succeeded in subduing him.

A pair of handcuffs were snapped on Boyle's wrists and he was escorted to the police station. On the way Inspector John Walsh was met and he assisted in arresting the man. Boyle did not like the idea of the inspector interfering and raising his manacled hands brought his two hands and the cuffs down on Inspector Walsh's head, smashing the latter's hat. The inspector retaliated by landing Boyle an open hander on the side of the face which quieted the disturber until he reached the police station.

Boyle is well known to the police and has raised considerable trouble for them. A few years ago when he was wanted by the police word was telephoned to this city that he was on a Lawrence car bound for Lowell. Several officers were stationed in the square to capture Boyle, but he saw them first and jumping over the railing of the car just before it reached Merrimack square ran through one of the side streets towards the canal, plunged into the canal, swam across and pulling himself out of the water entered the yard of the Massachusetts mills and after leading the police a merry chase managed to escape over a high picket fence.

A few months after that while passing through Merrimack street several officers saw him and gave chase. He led them through a maze of streets and alleys and finally finding himself cornered entered a house and hid in the cellar. When the police located him he put up a hot battle and it took four men to subdue him.

VET.'S WIDOW May Lose Her Right to Pension

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—The pension authorities of this state will be called upon in a few days to decide whether the widow of a man who did not like the name bestowed upon him by his parents and had it changed to another name is entitled to a pension due the wife of a veteran of the Civil war.

Lucille Boyd, who died in Worcester yesterday, is the name of the man who changed his name. When still in his teens Boyd had his first name changed to "Till" and always went by that name.

When he enlisted in the Civil war, however, Boyd enlisted under his right name, Lucille. Upon the close of the four years of fighting the man married, and the name of the wife was changed to "Till" and always went by that name.

Yesterday Mrs. Boyd expressed considerable fear that she would not be able to secure the pension to which she is entitled, owing to her dead husband enlisting and marrying under two different names.

The widow also stated that she has ample proofs to show that Lucille and Till Boyd were one and the same person.

Boyd died at his home, 50 Beacon street, Worcester, Sunday afternoon, at the age of 62.

The man was a wireworker by trade, being employed in the factory of the Building Plush company on Hermon street, that city.

He was born in Hopkinton, and was the son of Thomas Boyd. Besides a wife, one son, Louis E., and a brother, Thomas Boyd, he had a sister, Mrs. W. Robinson, Mansfield, Mass., and a brother, William Boyd, a member of the Grand Army of the Republic.

SPEAKER CANNON

Strong in His Denunciation of the "Insurgent"

DANVILLE, Ill., Aug. 16.—Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the house, in an interview last night denounced insurgents, said that he would be a candidate for the speakership of the next house and declares that reports of a contemplated reorganization of the republican party originated with insurgents and democrats.

Referring to the despatches from Beverly, Mr. Cannon said:

"I don't believe Mr. Taft contemplates any such action. The president is not the kind of man to yield to every passing whim of a minority. The story that Senators Aldrich and Hale and myself were to be thrown out of the party will be found, when traced to its source, to have originated with some of the insurgents, democratic allies whose wishes are father to the thought."

"I expected to be re-elected to congress by an overwhelming majority and then I will be a candidate for speaker, but always subject to the will of the people. If I am beaten in the caucus, which I believe is remote, I will willingly take my place in the ranks."

Answering the question "Will you be a candidate for re-election as speaker of the next house?" Mr. Cannon said:

"I have been asked that question frequently, especially by our democratic friends and their practical allies, the followers of La Follette and Cummings. I have answered it but so far the answer as I gave it has never been published by my friends, the enemy."

"I am speaker of the house, elected by a republican majority four times. I have been in harmony with and have to the best of my ability co-operated with the republican majority in the house."

legislation that has been enacted in the last seven years during the administrations of Roosevelt and Taft.

"I know of no reason personally or politically that would prevent my being speaker again if a majority of the house of representatives should so desire. Under the conditions pending a campaign I could not upon the demand of the enemy pledge in the event of my re-election to congress that I will not be a candidate for speaker without acknowledging that the record of the house during the last seven years is subject to criticism and that the republican majority with which I have co-operated in the enactment of legislation is subject to just criticism."

"This I will not do. Because I believe the record of the party for the last seven years should be endorsed and not condemned."

Mr. Cannon then devoted his attention to the insurgents.

"The senators and representatives who call themselves 'insurgents' and who voted against the enactment of the Payne bill voted to increase or maintain the duties on the industries and products of their own states and sections. It is declared, 'They were protectionists for their own people, but were opposed to protection for other people in other sections.'"

Over 1000 Shoe Workers to Leave the Factories Today

SALEM, Aug. 16.—A general strike of union employees in the Salem shoe factories was begun today and it was expected by union officials that before tonight more than 1000 shoe factory workers would have quit their benches. The strike came as the result of a meeting of the United Shoe-workers of America last night, at which it was voted almost unanimously to declare a general strike of the union men if a conference this morning failed to bring about a settlement of the troubles that have existed for some time between the union and L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. The chief issue is the demand of the union that several union employees who are alleged to have been locked out by the L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. be reinstated.

The conference this forenoon between the representatives of the union and the officials of the L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. failed to reach an agreement and at 10.15 the general quitting of union men began. First the cutters employed in the factory of the Jonathan Brown & Sons Co. left their work and marched down Canal street in a body. On their way down the street they passed the factories of the Woodberry Shoe Co., P. A. Fields & Co. and the L. G. Straw & Dunham Co. and at each factory the ranks of the strikers were strengthened. The unions participating in the strike include the lasters, the Mackay stitchers, the stockstitchers, the treers and the ironers. The cutters, although not affiliated with the United Shoe-workers of America, have voted to join the strike. It is generally believed that the four factories of the Cass & Daly Co., the largest shoe manufacturing plant in the city will not be affected inasmuch as the Cass & Daly firm recently adopted a union stamp. The union leaders say that the strike will be carried across to the adjoining city of Beverly. The union officials claim that several of the Beverly shoe manufacturers whom they do not name, have joined with the Salem manufacturers in the fight against the union.

No trouble of any kind developed during the forenoon, the strikers behaving in a most orderly manner.

Officials Plan New Campaign to Extinguish Them

KULISPELL, Mont., Aug. 16.—With the best organized and largest force of forest fire fighters that has been mustered to fight the fires in the glacier national park, the Flathead national forest and the Flathead national reservations' officials in charge of those portions of the national domain will begin a new and thorough campaign against the flames today.

The new forces comprise three companies of the 26th Infantry for the park and the Flathead forest which arrived here yesterday from Spokane and possibly two for the reservation, which two were due at a station on the reservation last evening.

In addition to the soldiers, the firefighters in the park number nearly 100 men. The general situation is but little improved, although a light rain last night helped the firefighters.

LOWELL OFFICER MAN ARRESTED

Is Looking For Murder Suspect He Wanted to See the President

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 16.—A Greek police officer from Lowell, Mass., arrived today to take up the search in this state for Nicholas Capalakos, or Capalis, the Greek who is wanted for the alleged murder of his aunt at Somersworth, N. H. He spent the forenoon with the police and in visiting the Greek colony and planned to visit Portland and Lewiston later in the day. It was learned that the murderer left this city between 5 and 6 p.m. Sunday, going to Portland or Lewiston or to both those cities.

WILLIAM H. LOONEY

LOWELL BOY RESCUED A MAN FROM DROWNING

William H. Looney, one of Lowell's well known musicians, now playing at the National picture house in New Bedford, proved himself a hero a few days ago by saving a young man from drowning. Jack Lawrence of New Bedford is the man who owes his life to the heroic act of Mr. Looney. While diving from a pier, Mr. Lawrence struck his head against some object and was put out of commission. Mr. Looney swam to his rescue as Mr. Lawrence was going down for the third time and grabbed him and it was with great difficulty that he brought him safely to shore.

MUNSEY AUTO TOUR

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—Twenty-eight of the 31 autos entered in the Munsey historic tour of the New England and Middle Atlantic states left here on schedule time today. The pilot car left the Hotel Walton, the starting point of the 1650 mile tour, at 5 a.m. and at 7 o'clock the first of the entrants got away. The other cars followed at one minute intervals. Today's run is to West Point, N. Y., a distance of 160.2 miles, and the schedule calls for one stop at Morristown, N. J. Owing to copious rains during the last two days heavy roads were encountered during the morning. Leaving West Point tomorrow morning the run will be to New London, Conn. The automobile will be in Boston Thursday night, Portland, Me., Friday night and Bethlehem, N. H., Saturday evening, where the big party will remain until Monday morning.

RIOT IN STREETS

Heads Cut and Faces Bruised in East Boston

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Riotous scenes were enacted in East Boston last evening, several persons being injured by blackjacks and baseball bats, in a fight between two "gangs" one of which was seeking revenge because of an incident that occurred the previous evening.

The police finally broke up the fight, but not until eight young men were taken into custody. A number of these had their faces and heads cut and received several bruises on various parts of their bodies. Many others whom they were unable to locate afterward were cut and bruised, the police believe.

A dozen or more young men, ranging in ages from 17 to 22, all living in the North End district, crossed the ferry to East Boston about 8 last evening. The crowd started immediately to "clean up" the young men and boys who frequent Border, Maverick, Summer and Liverpool streets. The battle lasted for 15 minutes.

Eight persons were arrested. They are Emanuel Rocco, 20 years old, 435 Hanover street; Louis Polio, 22, Prince street; William Giano, 19, 368 Hanover street; John Sacketti, 22, 184 Salem street; Prisco Ambrosio, 20, 12 Greenough lane; Costanzo Solli, 20, 92 Prince street; Salvatore Bellis, 17, 10 Battery street; and Giuseppe Caruso, 18, 6 Salvation street.

The only statement that the police claim to have been able to get from the arrested young men was made to Patrolman Michael Alesi of the East Boston station, who is of Italian parentage. One of the prisoners stated to this policeman that a young man of the Italian colony of the North End was in East Boston Sunday night and because of the abuse which he and the young lady that accompanied him received, he was much provoked and made his feelings known to his home crowd.

Before hostilities had been opened many of the invaders, it is claimed, provided themselves with either a bat or blackjack, and that this is true was evidenced in the office of the East Boston station last night, where half a dozen bats and blackjacks, the latter about a foot in length, were on exhibition which had been taken away, the police say, from members of the arrested gang.

So far as is known the East Boston contingent escaped without any bloody marks, while several of the North Enders required the service of a physician to dress their wounds. The East Boston men also escaped arrest.

Dr. James J. McDermott treated those who required assistance at the station house. The police not finding it necessary to send any of them to the hospital.

It appears that the North End delegation had been in East Boston but a few minutes when the trouble started. They walked from the ferry landing up Border street to a point about midway between Maverick and Summer streets, and here the first blows are alleged to have been struck. J. Kearney claims to have been standing at the corner of Border and Summer streets. He stated to a reporter last night that the invaders seemed to be excited and all were talking in Italian. Kearney watched and when they had gone along about 200 yards he saw bats, bricks and stones were flying through the air.

From the Border street start the fight spread to the corner of Border and Maverick streets and then farther along on Border street near the plant of the Atlantic works an encounter took place.

The three engagements perhaps consumed between 10 and 15 minutes' time, during which more than 1000 people gathered. Patrolman Edward F. Murphy was on duty in that section last night and he was the first policeman on hand. He gave chase, but before he arrived word had been passed along and the fight broke up. Murphy got one of the crowd and rushing him to the station house, some five minutes later, he called for reinforcements.

In the meantime Kearney, who had overheard, he claims, the remarks about bloodshed, got into the battle. Kearney forced three into a doorway. Sgt. William F. Aubens was soon on the spot and he placed these three under arrest.

The warning having been sounded by Murphy at the station, Daniel J. Sweeney sent out Patrolman Patrick Hickey, George Greer, Stoddard Brink and Samuel Kelly and they apprehended four more of the alleged trouble-makers.

The young men will be arraigned at this forenoon's session of the East Boston court on the charge of disturbing the peace.

Are Leading in the Big Shoot at Camp Perry

CAMP PERRY, O., Aug. 16.—Six sharpshooters from the 6th Massachusetts are leading the field of 34 contestants in the National rifle association's regimental match for the regimental championship of the United States, the match which the 6th Massachusetts has won for the last three years, thereby capturing permanently the trophy.

The team scored 272 on the first stage of this contest, which will be continued at 600 and 1000 yards today. Second honors went to the Tennessee midshipmen with 270, third to the 11th Illinois 264, fourth to the 1st District of Columbia 263, fifth U. S. navy 262, sixth 15th U. S. infantry 262.

The 2d Connecticut landed 18th with 256, the 74th New York 17th 256.

High score on the 6th Massachusetts team was the 43 by Qm. Sergt. James H. Keough. The other scores were Private Reid 43, Lieut. Burns 46, Lieut. Fehr 45, Capt. Wise 46, Color Sgt. Jeffs 44. The 5th Massachusetts scored 245, ranking 23d.

Sergt. Keough came out victor in the grand aggregate match of the Ohio state rifle association in which he scored 833, second honors went to Lieut. Keough of Ohio, with 824.

Sergt. Keough got second money in the short range aggregate with 186, which Lieut. Rockwood beat with 187, and in the midrange Sergt. Keough was fifth with 194.

Capt. M. W. Parker got fourth money in the short range aggregate with 182. Private George W. Chesler of the 2d Connecticut was second in the long range aggregate with 229, which Col. Winder of Ohio won with 225.

The National Rifle association's Wimbledon cup match for the $500 cup presented by the National Rifle association of Great Britain was won by Capt. Guy Emerson of Ohio, who scored 99 out of a possible 100 at 1000 yards. Col. Winder of Ohio was second with another 99.

In the local cup match at 800 yards for the cup presented by the captain of the Irish team that visited America in 1871, bullock-making success as was never seen in an American rifle match amazed the camp. Out of 250 contestants not less than 71 made the perfect score. Among them were Col. J. D. U. and Priv. K. A. Burns of Massachusetts and Priv. Williams, Col. Parker, Corp. Long and P. F. Schofield scored 34, ranking from 120 to 123, respectively. Van Amburg, Wise and O. A. Schofield made 38 of

The Wimbledon cup match was won by Capt. Emerson of Ohio, who scored 93 of the 100 at 1000 yards. Col. Winder of Ohio got second place with 93 and Priv. Reid of Massachusetts 11th place with 97; Sergt. Keough 12th with 97; Capt. Wise, 14th, 96; Priv. C. J. Van Amburg 24th, 95; Sergt. Fehr 46; Lieut. George Palmer 45th; Sergt. H. E. Woods 56th, 94.

Maj. S. J. Fort of Maryland won the secretaries match and A. E. Gaartz of Milwaukee, the Press match.

Gives Some Facts to Fraternal Congress

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 16.—Growing demands by state insurance departments for regulation of the ten billions of fraternal insurance, coupled with united endorsement by representatives of both the National Fraternal Congress and Associated Fraternities of America of the legislative bill proposed and the co-operation of those two great organizations on all matters of legislation during the past year was disclosed by the annual report of President Thomas H. Cannon of Chicago to the National Fraternal Congress which began its sessions today at Hotel Poughkeepsie.

The ultimate amalgamation of the Associated Fraternities of America with the National Fraternal Congress in a giant merger that would mark the victory of the sound principles to which the congress has been pledged was indicated as possible. President Cannon said: "Should the revised tentative bill presented to the congress by our National Fraternity Congress may then include after a few years, all the reputable fraternal societies of the land." What he termed "scandalous transactions in the merger of fraternal societies" were scathingly denounced by President Cannon, who recommended that action be taken by the congress regarding them in behalf of the good name of fraternal insurance in general.

State Supervision

"The trend of the times seems to indicate a demand for more active state supervision by the respective insurance departments," said President Cannon. "This demand has been formulated through the Insurance Commissioners' conventions and during the year there were submitted to the societies by the fraternal committee of the insurance commissioners a series of some 30 questions, calling for information regarding the internal management of our associations. Some unfortunate misunderstandings of the merger of societies have concentrated the demand for wider and more active state supervision."

"During the past year there have been two important conferences between the fraternal committee of the Insurance Commissioners' convention and the officers of fraternal societies and the purpose of formulating a uniform fraternal law. At present of these conferences was held in Chicago and the second in New York. At the first conference a tentative bill was drafted. This bill was the outcome of an exhaustive discussion between the insurance commissioners and the society representatives. It was not entirely satisfactory to all concerned and after it was printed and circulated for comment it was revised. On June 15th in New York for the purpose of overcoming the objections raised and of moulding the bill into more satisfactory shape to all those interested."

The States Demand

"The insurance commissioners' fraternal committee takes the position that all fraternal societies should be placed upon a safe and solvent basis and that the societies should be compelled to take such steps in regard to rates of assessments as would place them upon this footing and that this result should follow by mandatory legislation governing all societies alike. The societies representatives were informed that this was the purpose of the insurance commissioners and that unless the societies would agree, legislation in the matter of a force bill would be pressed by the insurance commissioners."

"The outcome of the New York conference was a compromise tendered by some of the representatives of the fraternal societies which in brief provided that those societies at present not having adequate rates of contribution, might be allowed, within a reasonable time, to progress to a condition of solvency. This compromise is incorporated in section 22a of the revised tentative bill, which will be before this congress for discussion and action."

Your executive committee stood firmly for the principles of the National Fraternal Congress and heretofore announced. They decided, however, to report upon the compromise sections of the bill to this congress and are agreed that the revised tentative bill, under the circumstances, is the best that can be secured and will insure the united co-operation of all fraternal societies in the enactment into law of a uniform bill."

High Finance is Grilled

Concerning the mergers of fraternal societies which he referred to as "scandalous transactions," President Cannon said: "Regardless of the rights of members, promoters of high finance have undertaken to merge the memberships of different organizations. The main object seemingly has been to gobble the funds of these societies, pay large commissions to the merger promoters and entirely ignore the rights of the members. These transactions have been ventilated in the courts with no credit to the parties concerned and have given occasion to the enemies of the fraternal system to deny the whole system as unsafe and unsound. As a consequence, the good name of the fraternal system in general has been assailed and it is my opinion, therefore, that this congress should take some action or give some expression as to its position on the merging of fraternal societies."

Co-operation between the congress and the associated fraternities in litigation affecting fraternal insurance generally was mentioned by President Cannon. Important decisions in New York, Iowa and Texas were reviewed. The organization of an association of the general counsel of fraternal societies in both the N. F. C. and A. F. of A. camps was announced.

Uniform systems of accounting satisfactory to the Insurance Commissioners' convention have been proposed.
